Shawano man faces homicide charges

Michael Ingold held on $1M cash bond in woman's death

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A 57-year-old Shawano man is facing a charge of first-degree intentional homicide in relation to the death of a woman in the Town of Wescott on June 25.

During an initial appearance in Shawano County Circuit Court on Aug. 1, Judge William Kussel Jr. set bond for Michael E. Ingold at $1 million cash. If convicted, Ingold faces life in prison.

The criminal complaint states that at 4:13 a.m. June 25, the Shawano County Sheriff's Department received a 911 call from Ingold, where he stated that he woke up and checked on his girlfriend, only to find her deceased.

An autopsy showed that Sheila A. Laudon, 59, was strangled to death.

Ingold told the deputies that he got home at 6:30 p.m., talked with the victim, turned on the television and fell asleep on the couch, the complaint said. He stated that he woke up around 2:30 a.m. and heard the victim in the kitchen saying that she was getting a beer. He then claimed that he woke up again at 4:01 a.m. and found her deceased in the bedroom.

Detectives received the autopsy report of the victim's death on July 21, stating that the cause of death was manual strangulation.

On July 27, two detectives interviewed Ingold at the sheriff's department, told Ingold that the victim died from strangulation and that the detectives believed that he caused it. Ingold responded, saying, "No it's not, no it's not, I didn't touch her," according to the complaint. Ingold acknowledged he and Laudon were the only two people in the house but continued to deny touching her, the complaint said.

Court records show that Ingold was arrested after a previous incident with Laudon on June 29, 2020. Ingold was charged in Waukesha County with strangulation and suffocation, second-degree recklessly endangering safety, battery and operating a firearm while intoxicated. In that case, Ingold had allegedly strangled the victim and threatened to kill her. Bail conditions restricted Ingold from having contact with the victim.

Prosecutors said they could not locate her, and on Oct. 5, 2021, Waukesha County issued a witness warrant for the victim. The charges were dismissed in January, with prosecutors saying they could not proceed to trial.

The new complaint indicates Ingold told detectives that the two moved to Shawano County because he allegedly wanted to protect her.

Kussel scheduled a status conference for Aug. 12.

Pulaski man charged with child sexual assault

Incident involved 6-year-old girl in the Town of Angelica

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A 65-year-old Pulaski man is facing a charge of first-degree child sexual assault with a child under age 13, in relation to an incident in the Town of Angelica on July 5.

Jeffrey Wilson faces up to 60 years in prison if convicted.

Wilson was charged July 26 in Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court, where Judge Katherine Sloma set a $7,500 cash bond and a $12,500 signature bond. A resumed initial appearance for Wilson is scheduled for Aug. 17.

According to the criminal complaint, one deputy was notified and met with the victim's mother, who reported that her 6-year-old daughter had possibly been sexually assaulted. The mother alleged that her daughter had been to a family friend's house and said that she did not want to go back, because Wilson had touched her "private area."

The mother also alleged that her daughter had been to Wilson's residence on numerous occasions, including spending the night. The mother then stated that she did not want to answer any more questions.

In a supplemental report, a deputy reported that after talking with the mother, they learned that Wilson is a family friend and is known to the family as "Grandpa Jeff."

In a July 14 Child Advocacy Center interview, the victim told the interviewer that she was lying on Wilson's lap with a blanket on, when Wilson put his hand on the victim's private area and started to rub.

In a one-party consent phone call between the mother and Wilson on July 22, Wilson allegedly denied the sexual contact at first. According to the criminal complaint, the conversation went back and forth before the mother allegedly asked for the truth. The criminal complaint states that Wilson took a deep breath and admitted to the sexual contact. He allegedly told the mother that it was the only time it happened.

In a July 25 interview with Wilson at his house, a deputy asked Wilson if he knew why the deputy was there to talk about the incident. Wilson allegedly said yes and that he had sexual contact with the victim. When asked why he did it, Wilson responded that he didn't know why, said the complaint.

Conditions of Wilson's bond include that he have no contact with the victim.

Tech director post panned by school board

Board members concerned about adding another administrator

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The Shawano School Board applied the brakes on plans to reinstate a technology director position in the district July 25, concerned that there was more of a need for boots on the ground to fix failing technology than a leader to oversee it all.

The board did not vote on the position, instead opting to table the matter, after a discussion on what staff needs are to get new Apple equipment working properly for staff, with many current and former teachers reporting lack of training on the new equipment and frustration with older equipment not working.

Superintendent Randi Anderson brought the idea forth as an option for restructuring the technology department. She said she brought forth the one option to the district's finance committee, but it was recommended to bring forth other options, as well.

"With the needs that we have in the technology department, the capacity we have and the ability to meet all of those needs across the district between infrastructure, implementation and instructional strategies to leverage the resources that we have, we still believe this is the best decision for us, as a district, to have a tech director," Anderson said.

Anderson said the other options available would be to continue having a technology consultant, which elicited groans from people in the audience, or to just reconfigure the technology department to have somebody in charge.

"I think that is extremely short-sighted with the needs we have in our technology department," Anderson said, urging the board to reconsider the director position.

She suggested that funding from the Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief (ESSER) program from the federal government for two instruction technology coordinator positions could be used to pay for a director position. Anderson told the board that the district posted those two positions months ago and did not receive any applicants.

"We can cover the tech director at no increase to your general fund for two years with the ESSER dollars," Anderson said, suggesting that the district reassess the situation once those one-time funds are used up.

Board member Jeana Winslow suggested it would be better to assess something more permanent now, rather than using the technology director as a bandage on the district's technology woes. She noted that it seems highly unlikely the position would go away, even if the district's finances get even tighter.

"If we're reassessing after two years, that's not going to go away," Winslow said. "It's going to be here we're spending all this money, and then in two years, we come back and say, do we have the money to continue to do that. Let's not spend the money now, and reassess in a year where we are financially — can we afford a director?"

Anderson disagreed with Winslow's idea, suggesting there would be a "substantial learning curve" for someone currently in the department to assume leadership duties. She noted that was done with the human resources department, and it was not successful.

"We have had volumes of changes the last couple of years, and we've been working through some of those pieces to ensure that our system works smoothly for our teachers, our staff and our students," Anderson said. "It's shortsighted not to put that support in at this point in time."

Board member Chris Gull argued

"Most of these types of positions are already filled in other school districts. I'm not sure how much this position pays, but it's going to be quite expensive, I think."

MIKE MUSOLFF, Shawano School Board president that waiting to resolve the issue is only going to make it worse, comparing the wait-and-see approach to an ostrich sticking its head in the sand.

"For months now, we've been hearing that our technology is not a well-oiled machine," Gull said. "We're hearing that people have minimal or lack basic skills to using our technology, so we're going to take something that has been a hot-button issue for months and months and months and not address it?"

Board member Mart Grams called the technology director position a bureaucratic move that would not address the issues of faulty technology and employee frustration with it. He suggested it would be better to hire personnel with expertise on Apple products or offer bonuses to staff who are able to pass courses on Apple technology than hire another director.

"This isn't going to solve a single issue for a teacher or a child," Grams said. "We have a person who is a coordinator who is supposed to teach that stuff. This is just another bureaucrat to sign paperwork."

Board president Mike Musolf questioned if the district would have any better luck finding a director than it did for the technology coordinator positions offered months ago, citing a shortage of qualified IT professionals.

"Most of these types of positions are already filled in other school districts," Musolf said. "I'm not sure how much this position pays, but it's going to be quite expensive, I think. Are we able to readdress our internal candidates to be able to handle these situations?"

My name is Brad Olsen, I am a Republican running for Shawano County Sheriff. As a born and raised resident of Shawano I believe the Shawano County Sheriff's Department needs change and fresh leadership. For the past 8 years I have proudly led the Oconto Falls Police Department as Chief of Police. I have worked 24 years in law enforcement, demonstrating strong and positive collaboration with outside agencies, town boards, city councils, and administrations. A fresh perspective is long overdue and will elevate this department in training, preparedness, communication, and morale to better serve the community.

If elected Sheriff I will advocate to provide more law enforcement resources into our area schools. We desperately need additional School Resource Officers; not just for safety of our kids and school staff but to battle the drug problem before it starts. Expanding programs such as D.A.R.E. in the grade schools and Project Alert in the middle schools throughout the county will provide needed educational opportunities early on for our young community members. Additionally, I would encourage the deputies involved with the Special Response Team, Dive Team, and K-9 Units, telecommunicators and correctional officers to attend career days and school functions. This will provide mentoring opportunities and introduce local students to careers in law enforcement. Having a visible presence and increased connectivity with students will support future recruiting efforts which are increasingly challenging in this market. Police presence in the schools will also provide protection and reassurance to students and parents. I plan to add two additional K-9 Units to patrol to provide 24-hour K-9 coverage and make the drug task force a permanent assignment to battle the current drug issues plaguing our area. Please note that I have experience with creative financial resourcing to help ease the tax payer burden. Thank you for your support and consideration.

Shawano County approves buyout of vehicles

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Shawano County Board of Supervisors voted to approve the purchase of leased vehicles from Enterprise during its July 27 meeting.

Shawano County currently leases one vehicle for the land conservation department, one for the planning, development and zoning department, two vehicles for the building maintenance department and three vehicles for the parks department. The total cost for the buyout of the vehicles is $94,518.03. The money will be used from the general fund.

Shawano County Administrative Coordinator Jim Davel said that several supervisors asked him to look over the leased vehicles.

"We were not getting the bang for our buck," said Davel. "When you look at the vehicle usage and what we are paying for this in these specific departments, its not cost effective to lease these vehicles."

He added that this was brought to the table to look at if the county was using their money properly and to get the departments into a vehicle replacement plan.

"The vehicle replacement plan would be pretty similar to that of the sheriff's department," said Davel.

Officers unveil school attendance campaign

We Need You Here provides incentives for being in class

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano School District's school resource officers are looking more at a carrot versus a stick when it comes to addressing truancy issues at the school.

Brandy Hoffman and Tyler Thornborrow unveiled the We Need You Here campaign at the July 25 Shawano School Board meeting, which will look at positively reinforcing students who come to school every day and provide those with good attendance with prizes. The campaign approaches the issue from a restorative practice perspective.

"A lot of what we were doing with attendance — we know how to punish (bad) attendance with our guidance counselors, our social workers, our administration to identify the issues and why things are happening," Thornborrow said.

He noted that he addressed the issue with Superintendent Randi Anderson when he first took the school resource officer position, along with other administrators and the police department.

"Our students need something positive and a positive campaign between the police department and the school, the businesses and the students," Thornborrow said.

Poor attendance issues can be related to problems at home, according to Thornborrow, whether it's issues with drugs and alcohol or mental health concerns. He noted that the visits from him and Hoffman and subsequent police citations are not doing enough to encourage those staying away from school to come back in.

"Our school social workers are doing the same thing. They're knocking on the same door," Thornborrow said.

The campaign will include a 12 Days of Christmas contest with area businesses, according to Thornborrow, providing prizes for some students who have at least a 90% attendance rate in school. Almost 150 businesses are involved with the project, he said, donating cash or prizes to the effort.

"That speaks volumes to our community, what they're willing to do for their students," Thornborrow said. "This is something really neat."

Hoffman noted that, in some cases, avoiding school is a generational issue. If there's not strong support by parents for their children to be in school, their children will pick up on that, she said.

"Some kids don't come to school because their parents didn't come to school, and the kids don't see "Why do I need to be at school?" Hoffman said. "We're looking at things to give them a reason to come to school. Our goal is get them to school, and then once they're there, we can work on the rest of it. When the kids aren't in school, they're not learning."

Hoffman said the campaign could also potentially benefit parents, noting that providing gift cards for gasoline, which remains above $4 in many parts of Shawano County, might give parents the incentive get their children to school.

"We have kids that don't come to school because they don't see the reward right now, but they go to work because they're seeing a paycheck," Hoffman said. "They're getting a reward, and they're seeing that it gets them somewhere in life, so if we can build that into this (campaign) and get them here, that's just what we need to do."

Thornborrow said some students also resist attending school even with authority figures, so We Need You Here could also implement a mentoring campaign.

"We can have older students, maybe ones that have been through the same problems, mentor some of the younger students," Thornborrow said. "We know they might push back against authority or the school. They won't necessarily listen to us, but they'll listen to their peers."

He added that the students doing the mentoring are also less likely to fall into old habits, and helping others will help to reinforce their will to attend school.

The campaign has three different sets of stickers, all designed by students, to reinforce the campaign in the public eye and the importance of having students in school.

"It's really neat that they're willing to advocate for themselves," Thornborrow said, noting that he and Hoffman have run out of some of the stickers.

The officers plan to have a freshman day soon at Shawano Community High School, with pizzas, to explain why it's important at that age to be in school unless illness or something else prompts the need to be away for a couple of days. Thornborrow said it only took one call to set something up.

"The community, the way they can rally, is just really neat," Thornborrow said. "Yes, we're going to have to have our disciplines, but if we combine that with incentives, I think we're going to be in a really good spot. We'll have some good results."

The statewide chronic absenteeism rate was about one in six students in the 2020-21 school year, according to the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction. According to the district's report card on the DPI website, Shawano schools had a chronic absenteeism score of 80.8, showing a higher absentee rate than the state average.

Student enrollment is checked on an annual basis on the third Friday in September, with about $10,000 in state aid estimated per student on the line.

Stickers like this one, done by students in the Shawano School District, are going up around the community to encourage better school attendance. CONTRIBUTED

$10K given to middle school band program

State Farm representative tells how music program helped to make difference in son's life

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Shawano Community Middle School's band program is getting a $10,000 shot in the arm from State Farm Insurance.

The substantial donation was publicly announced July 25 by Idell Johnston, who received the funding after getting the company's Outstanding Community Engagement Award to celebrate State Farm's 100th anniversary. Johnston had her choice of which entity would receive the money, but the middle school band had a personal meaning for her.

Johnston recounted how her family moved to Shawano from Fresno, California, in 2007 and how everyone in her life told her she must be crazy to do so. She said the local music program is phenomenal and better than anywhere else.

However, when that move took place, efforts to sell the Fresno home collapsed, leaving the Johnston family in financial straits. Feeling that the house could still sell, plans to buy a home in Shawano continued, but the California dwelling still was not selling shortly before the housing bubble burst in 2008.

"We were not able to sell our house for several years, and because of that, we were in the worst situation of our lifetime," Johnston said. "I was working three jobs. We had no extras, no cell phones, no cable TV. Michael and I skipped lunch every day so we were feeding our family on $40 a week. We cut everything we could just to keep a roof over our heads."

That situation caused a heartbreaking decision when Johnston's son, Will, was in middle school. She recounted how he came home from school excited about the prospect of being part of the band. When Johnston went to an informational night at the school, she read through the paperwork and saw that she would need to pay for the saxophone that her son would be playing, about $60 a month.

"It might as well have been a million," Johnston said. "We had no money. There were no more hours in the day we could work, and there was nothing else we could have cut. We had to go home and tell Will he could not play the saxophone, which may not seem like a big deal to a lot of people, but to me, I remember how it felt to tell him and the disappointment I saw in his eyes. It just broke my heart."

Johnston said her son went to band director Chad Bromeisl the next day and explained he could not afford to be in the band. Instead of accepting the explanation and letting the boy go on his way, Bromeisl told him that there was an older saxophone available for him to use.

"I truly believe that this changed his life," Johnston said. "The music department at the middle school, and then going on to the high school, he played the saxophone. He was in the jazz band. He started singing. He went on to go to college, and he went on to be a singing statesman at UW-Eau Claire, and it was all because he was able to play the saxophone in sixth grade in the middle school."

Johnston said she has tried to give when she could to the district's music programs over the years, but she desired to give more. She noted that she's involved in several community groups, but there was no doubt the money should go to the SCMS band program.

"If children do not start music in middle school, they're statistically not going to play in high school, and I wanted to help," Johnston said. "I'm hoping that, with the $10,000 donation, not only will Mr. B(romiesl) have the ability to purchase more instruments for families that cannot afford it, but that it will also raise awareness and get the word out that this is available so less parents will sit in the band room that night like I did feeling hopeless and knowing there are options."

Irvin J. Rozmiarek, 92, Shawano, died Sunday, July 31, 2022, at his home. The son of Felix and Regina (Lasecki) Rozmiarek was born on Nov. 21, 1929, in the Town of Maple Grove.

Irvin grew up in the Hofa Park area on the family farm and graduated from Pulaski High School. He helped build silos for Robaidek Construction after high school. From 1954-1956 he served in the U.S. Army as a stevedore and later was promoted to corporal. On July 25, 1959, he married Rita Socha at St. Casimir Church, Krakow.

Irvin and Rita raised their six children on a 40-acre farm near Hofa Park. The children were told that they were raised on the farm to keep the boys out of trouble (it didn't always work).

Irvin then worked as a trailer mechanic for Olson Trailer and Body and Service and Equipment Inc. for 15 years. He started Hofa Park Construction and worked for over 25 years until his retirement. Once he retired, Irvin continued woodworking, making beautiful bowls, and other keepsakes.

Irvin was a member of St. Casimir Parish in Krakow. He enjoyed fishing, woodworking, and watching the Green Bay Packers, and was proud to be part owner of the Green and Gold. He was an avid joke teller. Spending time with family and holidays were very important to him.

Irvin is survived by his loving wife of over 63 years, Rita; six children, Thomas (Debra) Rozmiarek, Krakow, Julie (Duane) Hille, Melita Island, Montana, James (Claudia) Rozmiarek, Shawano, Kathy (Mike) Statz, Madison, William (Heather) Rozmiarek, Green Bay, and John (Catrina) Rozmiarek, Arizona; his 11 grandchildren, Veronica (Gedare), Valerie (Brent), Zachary (Jennifer), Jay (Christine), Adam (Samantha), Sara (Tim), Noah, Alexander, Allison (fiancé Ryen) Natalie and Jacob; and nine great-grandchildren, Annalise, Linnea, Henrik, Casmir, Alaina, Hanna, Nicholas, Caden and Amy.

He is further survived by a brother, Joe (Cookie) Rozmiarek, Hawaii; brothers-in-law, Tom (Joan) Socha, Bernie (June) Socha, and Jim (Kim) Socha; sisters-in-law, Agnes (Bob) Miller, Clara (Fred) Fleishman, Mary Ellen Socha, Audrey Socha, and Jane Rozmiarek; and many nieces, nephews, and friends.

In addition to his parents, Felix and Regina, he was preceded in death by two brothers, Ralph (Marilyn) Rozmiarek and Harry Rozmiarek; brothers-in-law and sister-in-law, Sylvester Socha, Bill Socha, and Betty (Dick) Ostry.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Thursday, Aug. 4, with the Rev. Carmen Scuderi, O.F.M. presiding. Burial with military honors provided by the Pulaski Area Veterans followed at St. Casimir Cemetery, Krakow.

Online condolences may be offered to the Rozmiarek family at www.marnochafuneralhome.com.

Davel, Beyer resign from school board

Departures ignite debate on whether board should be reduced

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Two Shawano School Board members tendered their resignations last week, and the remaining members came together to look at what to do in the wake of their departures.

James Davel sent board president Mike Musolff an email July 26 that announced he would be stepping down. The next day, July 27, Jamie Beyer sent Musolff an email saying she was leaving as well. Both had been elected to their first terms in 2021 and weren't due for reelection until 2024.

Davel served in the at-large position on the board, while Beyer was one of the board members representing Shawano.

According to Musolff, neither of them gave specific details on why they felt they needed to resign. Neither were the subject of recall petition efforts carried by community members.

The recall petitions, which received more than 1,900 signatures each, were directed at Chuck Dallas and Michael Sleeper, both of whom were on the board when Superintendent Randi Anderson was hired. Community members are blaming Anderson for some recent problems, including a $2 million budget shortfall for 2022-23 announced in March and the exodus of dozens of teachers, all four school principals and other staff.

The board held a special meeting Aug. 1 to discuss their next steps, and it was agreed to announce the vacant positions and solicit letters of interest from people living within the district boundaries. The letters would need to be received by the district office by 4 p.m. Aug. 15, and then the board would conduct interviews at its next meeting Aug. 22. The new board members would serve until April 2023, when they would have to run for election for a one-year term, bringing the seats back into alignment with the election cycle.

JAMIE BEYER

Musolff initially said that the board would conduct the interviews in closed session, but it was later clarified that the district's attorney, Geoff

Lacy, recommended they take place publicly.

However, board members are also looking at the recent vacancies as an opportunity to shrink in size. Currently sitting at nine members, board member Mart Grams suggested that the board could function with seven or five members.

"Why do we have to have nine members? At the county, we reduced," said Grams, who also sits on the Shawano County Board of Supervisors. "We've been denied the necessary help at the Brener and Hillcrest schools by laying off two deans. Why should we not take that pain as well, as long as it's an odd number?"

The board's administrative assistant, Lori Sherman, noted that such action could only be taken by the public at the annual meeting, which takes place Sept. 26. Grams suggested that filling the vacancies should wait until that decision comes down, but the district is required, by law, to fill any vacant board seats within 60 days of the resignations being submitted — which would be Sept. 24, two days before the annual meeting.

Grams suggested that cutting the number of board members would reduce the amount of pay doled out. Currently, the board members get a $60 per diem per board or committee meeting, a rate that has been in place for over 10 years.

"If you figure out the amount of money we suck in from all of these meetings, it's quite a bit," Grams said. "There should be some limitations to us, as well."

Board member Alysia Pillsbury felt the topic should be discussed at the annual meeting and not at the current meeting, where the reduction of the board was not on the agenda.

"I agree that we should reduce to seven, but I think there's a better time," Pillsbury said.

Grams said that there should be some discussion now, saying that new board members might not have their positions long, as any changes in the makeup of the board would impact regular elections in the future.

Sleeper noted that a change in the number of board members would impact committee structure, as well. Currently, committees have four board members on each of them, and reducing the board to seven members means the committees would have a quorum of the board on them.

Grams suggested dropping the committees to three members. With the executive committee having the four officers on it, he recommended reducing the number of officers to three, having a combined clerk and treasurer instead of separate posts.

Pillsbury expressed concern about

FYI

Interested candidates should submit a written letter of application to: Shawano School District Office, Attn: Lori Sherman, 218 County Road B, Shawano, WI 54166

The application must include:

- Seat being applying for.
- A written letter of interest sharing interest and what makes the person a good candidate to serve on the school board. The letter must include a home address, phone number, and email address.
- A list of three names and phone numbers of references that may be contacted.
- A resume or description of academic and employment background, as well as any other pertinent experience.

how reducing the board would impact representation in the city of Shawano and the other towns that make up the district. She noted, for example, that the Town of Wescott is represented by two board members.

To that, Grams said that the district could consider making all of the seats at-large seats, instead of limiting them to representing certain areas.

Board member Chris Gull recommended that such discussions should take place when there is a full board again, indicating that to do otherwise "makes it look kind of shady."

In other action, the board also elected new officers to replace Beyer and Davel, who were vice president and clerk, respectively. Gull received unanimous consent to be the vice president, while Jeana Winslow, recently elected to the board in April, got unanimous approval to be the clerk.

Sleeper had, at first, been nominated to be the clerk, but he declined. It would have likely been a conflict of interest, as board policy states that the clerk is the district's chief election officer, and he is one of the board members under recall.

Wallace remains without public defender after over a month

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

LaNathan Wallace is still awaiting a public defender to represent him for an incident dating back to June 20.

Wallace, 32, was charged June 20 with one count of second-degree recklessly endangering safety, 10 counts of bail jumping, two misdemeanor counts of battery and two misdemeanor counts of disorderly conduct. After allegedly punching two victims and threatening them if they called the police.

If convicted, Wallace faces up to 10 years in prison along with $25,000 in fines for second-degree recklessly endangering safety, nine months and a $10,000 fine for each misdemeanor battery charge, 90 days and a $1,000 fine for each disorderly conduct charge and a $10,000 fine and six years for each bail-jumping count.

During his arraignment, Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma said that she would not make Wallace go through the arraignment if he did not want to since he is not currently represented.

"For whatever reason, I have had a couple of hearings from Mr. Wallace, but I have not received the general memo that I usually get from the public defender's office," said Sloma. "I do know from his initial appearance is that Mr. Wallace does qualify for representation."

Sloma set a status conference for Aug. 23, in order to give Wallace more time to find a public defender. He is currently being held on a $50,000 cash bond.

ELECTION 2022

Notice of Partisan Primary and Sample Ballots August 9th, 2022

Office of the Shawano County Clerk
To the voters of Shawano County:

Notice is hereby given of a partisan primary to be held in Shawano County on August 9th, 2022, at which the nominees for the offices named below shall be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office under the appropriate party, each in its proper column, together with the questions submitted to a vote, if any, in the sample ballot below.

Information to Voters

Upon entering the polling place and before being permitted to vote, a voter shall:

- state their name and address
- show an acceptable form of photo identification*
- sign the poll book

If a voter does not have acceptable photo identification, the voter may obtain a free photo ID for voting from the Division of Motor Vehicles.

*If the voter is unable to sign the poll book due to disability, a poll worker may write the word "exempt."

If a voter is not registered to vote, they may register to vote at the polling place serving their residence if the voter provides proof of residence.

Where ballots are distributed to voters, the initials of two inspectors must appear on the ballot.

Upon being permitted to vote, the voter shall enter a voting booth or go to a machine and cast their ballot. The vote should not be cast in any manner other than specified here. Sample ballots or other materials to assist the voter in marking their ballot may be taken into the booth and copied. The sample ballot shall not be shown to anyone so as to reveal how the ballot is marked.

A voter who is a parent or guardian may be accompanied by the voter's minor child or minor ward.

An election official may inform the voter of the proper manner for casting a vote but the official may not advise or indicate a particular voting choice.

Assistance for Voting

A voter may select an individual to assist in casting their vote if the voter declares to the presiding official that they are unable to read, have difficulty reading, writing, or understanding English, or that due to disability are unable to cast their ballot. The selected individual rendering assistance may not be the voter's employer or an agent of that employer or an officer or agent of a labor organization which represents the voter. If a voter is unable to state their name and address, an assistant may also do so for the voter.

At the partisan primary, the voter shall select the party of their choice. Voting for candidates of more than one party may invalidate the ballot. The voter must cast a vote for individual candidates.

Where Paper Ballots are Used

- The voter shall choose the ballot of the party of their choice.
- If the voter votes on more than one party ballot, no votes will be counted.

On the party ballot of their choice, the voter shall make an (X) or other mark in the square next to the name of the candidate of their choice for each office for which they intend to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall write in the name of the person of their choice in the space provided for a write-in vote. On referendum questions, the voter shall make an (X) or other mark in the square next to "yes" if in favor of the question, or the voter shall make an (X) or other mark in the square next to "no" if opposed to the question.

Where Optical Scan Voting is used

- If a party preference is designated, and votes are cast for ballot candidates of another party or write-in votes are cast in another party, only votes cast in the designated party will count.
- If a party preference is not designated, and votes are cast for candidates (or write-in votes are cast) in more than one party, no votes will be counted

Within the party of their choice, the voter shall fill in the oval or connect the arrow next to the name of the candidate of their choice for each office for which they intend to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall write in the name of the person of their choice in the space provided for a write-in vote and fill in the oval or connect the arrow next to the write-in line. On referendum questions, the voter shall fill in the oval or connect the arrow next to "yes" if in favor of the question, or the voter shall fill in the oval or connect the arrow next to "no" if opposed to the question.

When using an electronic ballot marking device ("Automark," "Express Vote," "Clear Access" or "ImageCast Evolution (ICE)" to mark an optical scan ballot, the voter shall touch the screen or use the tactile pad to select the party of their choice. The voter shall then touch the screen at the name of the candidate of their choice for each office for which they intend to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall type in the name of the person of their choice in the space provided for a write-in vote. On referendum questions, the voter shall touch the screen at "yes" if in favor of the question, or the voter shall touch the screen at "no" if opposed to the question.

Where Touch Screen Voting is Used

The voter shall touch the screen or use the tactile pad to select the party of their choice. The voter shall then touch the screen at the name of the candidate of their choice for each office for which they intend to vote. To vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ballot, the voter shall type in the name of the person of their choice in the space provided for a write-in vote. On referendum questions, the voter shall touch the screen at "yes" if in favor of the question or the voter shall touch the screen at "no" if opposed to the question.

Spoiled Ballots

If a voter spoils a paper or optical scan ballot, they shall return it to an election official who shall issue another ballot in its place, but not more than three ballots shall be issued to any one voter. If the ballot has not been initialed by two inspectors or is defective in any other way, the voter shall return it to the election official, who shall issue a proper ballot in its place.

The voter may spoil a touch screen ballot at the voting station before the ballot is cast.

After Voting the Ballot

After an official paper ballot is marked, it shall be folded so the inside marks do not show, but so the printed endorsements and inspectors' initials on the outside do show. The voter shall then deposit the voted ballot in the ballot box, or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit, and deposit the un-voted ballots in the discard box. The voter shall leave the polling place promptly.

After an official optical scan ballot is marked, it may be inserted in the security sleeve, so the marks do not show. The voter shall then insert the ballot in the voting device and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. If a central count system is used, the voter shall insert the ballot in the ballot box and discard the sleeve or deliver the ballot to an inspector for deposit. The voter shall leave the polling place promptly.

After an official touch screen ballot is marked, the voter shall leave the polling place promptly.

Shawano native to command Navy Reserve base

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

A Shawano Community High School graduate is about to take over as commanding officer of Naval Air Station Joint Reserve Base in New Orleans.

Capt. Lena Buettner Kaman, a member of the Shawano Class of 2000, is the daughter of a career enlisted sailor in the U.S. Navy, the late Clayton Buettner, and his wife, Lois, a retired Shawano teacher. Kaman's brother, Ron Buettner, is a long-time social studies teacher with the Menominee Indian School District. Kaman was administered the promotion June 15 by U.S. Rep. Derek Kilmer of the state of Washington. She has served as a Navy legislative fellow on Kilmer's staff since January 2021. She is married to Christian Kaman. They are the parents of twin sons, Theodore and Jean-Paul, soon to be 3 years old. Christian has a master's degree in data science and is employed as a data analyst. The captain was a member of the ROTC at the University of Wisconsin where she received her bachelor's degree. She received a master's degree in aeronautical science with specialties in human factors and aviation management from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. She later earned a master's degree in national security and strategic studies at the National War College. Kaman has been deployed to Iraq and Colombia. She completed maneuvers in South Korea. She served as an aide to Admiral Braun, the chief of Navy Reserve and commander, Navy Reserve Force. She trained to become a helicopter pilot in Pensacola, Florida, where she also served as an instructor and commanding officer of a helicopter training squadron. In October 2020, she was selected for Aviation Major Command.

Capt. Lena Buettner Kaman, a career Navy officer, with U.S. Rep. Derek Kilmer, D-Washington, after he administered her promotion to commanding officer of Naval Air Station Joint Reserve Base in New Orleans. CONTRIBUTED

County Road HHH bridge out starting Aug. 8

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Shawano Creek Bridge on County Road HHH is set for repairs, starting Aug. 8.

"The HHH bridge over the Shawano Creek is being replaced, due to meeting its life expectancy," said Shawano County Highway Commissioner Grant Bystol. "Currently, it is a single span structure and will be replaced with a two-span structure."

Bystol said that with the new bridge being a two-span structure, there will be space for two-way traffic below the bridge.

"The bridge will also be raised 2 feet in clearance height to allow for more clearance for boating traffic," said Bystol.

He added that the top of the bridge will be widened to a 44-foot top width that will include a polymer overlay for a snowmobile trail crossing and biking and walking traffic.

"It will be a better bridge," said Bystol. "We are doing it because the bridge was approaching its service

The bridge on County Road HHH is set to start being replaced on Aug. 8. Construction on the bridge will continue through the first week of November. The bridge is being replaced in order for upgrades and to add more room for boating, walking and snowmobiling traffic.

life, but obviously when things are built 60 years ago, standards change and we will build it to meet those current standards."

Bystol said that the process of replacing the bridge has been ongoing for the past five years.

"It has already been a couple years since our public information meeting," said Bystol. "Their big concern was the waterway navigational traffic. There were not really any other big concerns. I think that people were on hand, wanting to know the details on the timing."

He added that motorists traveling County Road HHH will have to detour to state Highway 47-55 to get around the construction.

"That will be plus six to seven minutes for the people on that commute," said Bystol.

To sum up what community members and visitors can expect, Bystol said that there should be an expectation of a new bridge with current design standards.

"It will increase clearance for boat traffic underneath," said Bystol. "It will be a win-win for pedestrian and bike traffic, as well as snowmobile traffic. I think this will be a win-win for everything and everyone."

Bystol said the road closure and detour will begin Aug. 8; he anticipates the road will reopen during the first week of November.

Two men charged with armed robbery in Keshena

Incident occurred over $1,500 truck sale

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Two men are in custody after an armed robbery occurred at Standing Pines Gas Station in Keshena on July 26.

Leon Reyes, 35, New London, and Andrew J. Slaets, 35, Greenville face a number of charges each, including armed robbery with threat or force, two counts of first-recklessly endangering safety, one misdemeanor count of theft and one misdemeanor count of disorderly conduct.

If the two men are convicted of these charges, they face up to 40 years in prison and $100,000 in fines for armed robbery with threat or force, 12½ years in prison and $25,000 in fines for each first-degree recklessly endangering safety count, nine months in prison and $10,000 in fines for theft and 90 days in prison and $1,000 in fines for disorderly conduct.

The criminal complaint states that on July 26, two Menominee County deputies were field training, when they were dispatched to Standing Pines for a call about a man with a gun. The deputy was informed that one person was in custody, said the complaint.

The deputies arrived at the gas station at 9:10 p.m., according to the complaint, where they saw a suspect's vehicle parked in a handicapped parking spot. Upon inspection of the vehicle, the deputies allegedly found a gun, six rounds of ammunition, a Costco receipt, a cellphone and an envelope with 33 $100 bills inside.

A witness said that they looked out of the front window of the store and saw a man waving a gun around, according to the complaint. The witness reported that the man with the gun was apparently trying to steal backpacks from two victims.

Another witness stated that another man approached the scene and looked confused about the man with the gun, according to the complaint.

One of the victims told the deputies they drove a Ford F-150 to Keshena to sell. After selling the vehicle at the Menominee Casino Resort to Reyes and Slaets for $1,500 and walking to Standing Pines, the victim alleged, Reyes came up and said they had given him the wrong key. The victim alleged that Slaets told the victims to go back to the truck, which was parked at Menominee Casino Resort. They did so and used the key to start the vehicle.

The victim alleged in the complaint that Reyes and Slaets became aggressive and knocked one of the victims to the ground, pulled out a gun and said, "I am going to blow his head off if you don't give me the right key." The victim allegedly responded, "You have the right key. Don't do anything stupid."

Reyes then allegedly approached the victim who didn't have the gun pointed at him and took his backpack.

The other deputy reported that a Menominee Tribal Officer stated that Reyes admitted to possessing and unloading the gun. Reyes had a current carrying concealed weapon permit, read the complaint.

In an interview with Reyes, he alleged that the keys and the key fob that were given to him did not unlock the vehicle. According to the complaint, Reyes said that they were just trying to get their money back. Reyes allegedly denied unloading the gun.

The other victim, who had the gun pointed at him, stated that Reyes said that he wanted the keys, not the money.

The deputy then allegedly retrieved the key and key fob and opened the truck and started it without a problem.

During their initial appearances July 27, Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma set signature bonds for Slaets and Reyes for $25,000 each.

A status conference is scheduled for Sept. 1 for Reyes. There is no report for Slaets' next appearance.

Big tech trying to cancel local news

Facebook and Google have become the de facto regulators of news and speech — deciding what content people see and when.

Their dominating control over how we communicate has serious implications for Freedom of Press and our broader rights under the First Amendment.

To be sure, the First Amendment provisions on speech and press do not apply to private entities like Big Tech companies; they are only limitations placed on the government. The Founders could not have envisioned a future in which the distribution of nearly all news and information would be controlled by two private entities: Facebook and Google.

Any time a Big Tech company removes specific posts or bans a disruptive user, the op-ed pages of the most prestigious publications — and many of our Twitter timelines — often focus on the implications for free speech and the spirit of the First Amendment.

However, a sorely underexamined aspect of Big Tech's impact on the

DAVID CHAVERN

First Amendment is the control they have over the flow of news content, and the corresponding devastating impact on local newspapers. These companies decide what you see and whether (if at all) your local publisher gets paid for its work.

People go online all day every day to learn about the world and their communities. Local publishers report on tangible things — like the ribbon-cutting of a new small business or the state football championship. They also hold politicians to account and sustain democracy.

Big Tech likes the audiences that local publishers deliver, but they don't want to pay for the journalism. Facebook and Google rake in profits by simply curating "content," which is just a fancy word for the articles, photos and videos that are the work product of real journalists doing the hard work of reporting at local newspapers.

Google and Facebook's complete dominance of the digital advertising market has also allowed them to dictate terms and enabled them to cut side deals for themselves and shortchange small and local publishers across the country.

Big Tech companies have too much economic and political power in society, especially over the news industry. No companies should have this much control over an entire industry, especially the industry responsible for keeping Americans informed.

Legislative solutions like the Journalism Competition and Preservation Act (JCPA) are essential to reign in the influence of these out-of-control tech titans, revive struggling local news organizations and protect the First Amendment.

The JCPA levels the playing field between Big Tech and small and local publishers by allowing them to collectively negotiate fair terms for using their content by Big Tech companies. The bill has also recently been refocused to exclusively benefit small and local publishers — especially those that reinvest in journalists. The JCPA is also content-neutral, allowing outlets to receive their fair share from Big Tech regardless of how their opinion pages lean.

If Congress does not pass the JCPA, local newsrooms will continue to struggle to stay afloat, and Big Tech will continue to fill the void with their platforms, fueled by algorithms optimized to keep readers outraged and at each other's throats. All the while, their executives and investors will continue to reap staggering profits from the economic and political dysfunction they are creating.

In today's partisan political climate, it is rare for Democrats and Republicans to agree on anything — but the JCPA is one important exception. We need to pass the JCPA to ensure that publishers — especially small and local publishers — are treated fairly and compensated justly.

School board not listening to Oconto Falls residents

To the editor:

In response to the article entitled "Work continues on new referendum question," what part of the people don't trust the administration does our Oconto Falls School Board not get?

I would ask that the entire survey results be published along with all survey participant citizens' comments.

The NEW Media article reveals once again our school board's lack of transparency. President Clint Gardebrecht, you and the remainder of the board represent the people. Hear us.

WNAXLPPUBLIC NOTICE

The U.S. Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration (EDA) is considering a request for Federal assistance from Menominee Tribal Enterprises (MTE) to construct a Green Stacker Line and Replacement Building in Neopit, Menominee, Wisconsin to provide continued economic benefit to the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin into the future. Pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended, EDA is conducting an environmental assessment (EA) of the proposed project.

The Sawmill Green Stacker Project will replace the existing underperforming, inefficient, high maintenance green stacker line with a new automated, high efficiency stacker line. The new stacker line will be installed on a slab on grade foundation housed inside a new prefabricated metal building. The project will be located at N3580 HWY 47 Neopit, Wisconsin 54135. The purpose of the project is to create new infrastructure that will be capable of housing a new green stacker line to include modern technology and equipment. This investment will allow MTE to capture increased value from existing forest products, upskilling current employees as well increase the workforce within other areas of the sawmill. Project information is available for review at Menominee Tribal Enterprises Main Office N3522 Cottage Ave Neopit, WI 54135.

If you have any information regarding potential environmental impacts associated with this proposed project, please provide it in writing to:

EXPERIENCE & COMMITMENT

LENZNER for SHERIFF

SHAWANO COUNTY

ENDORSEMENTS FROM CITY OF SHAWANO MAYORS

VOTE AUGUST 9TH

- LORNA MARQUARDT

George has a proven record of serving the citizens of Shawano County with integrity and transparency. He will make a wonderful Sheriff.

- JEANNE CRONCE

George understands the needs of our community, and is committed to make Shawano County a quality & safe place to be.

- ED WHEALON

George knows the department and the employees; he is the perfect candidate to become Sheriff.

- BRUCE MILAVITZ

George has a long history serving Shawano County and I believe he is the right candidate to continue leading the Shawano Sheriff's office into the future with grace, honor and integrity.

ENDORSEMENTS FROM SHAWANO COUNTY SHERIFFS

- BILL ASCHENBRENER

Out of the whole team, George always stood out and went above and beyond what was asked of him.

- BOB SCHMIDT

I plan on voting for George Lenzner. I have personally observed George's dedication to Shawano County as one of his co-workers and as Sheriff.

- RANDY WRIGHT

George was the commander of the special response team during my time as Sheriff. He always worked well and remained calm under high stress situations.

- ADAM BIEBER

There is only one person ready to take over as Sheriff and that person is George Lenzner. He is the only candidate with experience in operating and managing the jail.

Wausau man charged after police pursuit

Raatz charged with first-degree recklessly endangering safety, attempting to flee/elude an officer

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A 62-year-old Wausau man was charged July 25 with one count of first-degree recklessly endangering safety and one count of attempting to flee/elude an officer, in relation to a July 21 incident in the Town of Wescott.

Thomas Raatz faces up to 3½ years in prison along with $10,000 in fines for attempting to flee/elude an officer and 12½ years in prison along with $25,000 in fines for first-degree recklessly endangering safety, if convicted.

The criminal complaint states that a Stockbridge-Munsee police officer was on a routine patrol on County Road VV, when he ran the plates of a vehicle turning south on County Road VV from County Road G and found that the owner had an active warrant through probation. The officer initiated a traffic stop, introduced himself to Raatz and stated that Raatz had an active warrant. After Raatz stepped out of the car, the officer told Raatz that he was going to use a transport belt. When the officer went to get the belt, Raatz allegedly got back into his car and drove off.

The criminal complaint states that the officer had contacted the Menominee County/Tribal Police Departments, due to the officer being in that jurisdiction. The criminal complaint also alleges that in the subsequent pursuit, vehicle speeds reached 97 mph on County Road VV. Raatz allegedly drove through a stop sign and turned onto Kittecon Road, and then on to state Highway 47 and into Shawano County. Raatz's vehicle operated left of the center line several times, causing other vehicles to swerve to avoid a collision, says the complaint.

Raatz's tires were then spiked by a Shawano County deputy on state Highway 47-55 near Lake Drive. The vehicle then allegedly drove into Shawano and pulled in the east side parking lot of the Shawano County Sheriff's Department. The pursuing officer struck Raatz's vehicle at a slow speed to prevent Raatz from fleeing. The criminal complaint states that there was minor damage to both vehicles.

The officer then ordered Raatz to the ground, where he was placed in handcuffs and walked to the jail.

Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court Judge Katherine Sloma set a cash bond of $10,000 and a signature bond of $15,000. She also scheduled an arraignment for Aug. 30.

Pamanet gets 30 years on child porn charges

Defense attorney pushes for lighter sentence, but Griesbach rejects the proposal

By KEVIN MURPHY
Correspondent

A former Keshena man who photographed the sexual contact he had with an 8-year-old girl was sentenced Thursday in federal court to 30 years in prison followed by lifetime supervised release.

Darwin Pamanet, 46, plead guilty in April to production of child pornography and faced a sentence of 20 to 30 years in prison under the agreement.

According to court documents, a girl borrowed Pamanet's phone to play games and found nude photos of an 8-year-old. She reported the photos to her father in January, who called the Menominee Tribal Police.

They took Pamanet into custody and seized his phone. Eighteen images of child pornography were found on Pamanet's phone that had been taken between October and December 2021. Pamanet admitted to having sexual contact with the girl and taking photos and video of it.

Unbeknownst to Pamanet, his phone made backup photos that were stored to a cloud-based service. A search of the cloud revealed more videos, including one recorded in July 2021, which constituted the charge to which Pamanet pleaded guilty.

The investigation also led to the discovery of two more young girls who were alleged victims of Pamanet, according to a statement released by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

In total, Pamanet was charged with three counts of aggravated sexual abuse, one count of production of child pornography and one count of possession of child pornography.

At sentencing, Pamanet's attorney, Federal Defender Tom Phillip, asked District Judge William Griesbach to impose a 20-year sentence saying it would sufficiently punish his client, promote respect for the law and deter him and others from committing the same offense.

In a memo to the court, Phillip asked Griesbach to consider Pamanet's impoverished upbringing on the Menominee Reservation where he lived in a household with 14 people.

"His family had no money, he had no toys, and Pamanet seldom even had clean clothing. Both of his parents were alcoholics, as were much of his extended family," Phillip wrote.

Pamanet has worked as a cook at the Menominee Casino Resort the past three years.

Phillip also wrote that his client is a long-term alcoholic who has admitted drinking at least eight to 12 beers daily for 20 years. He has been convicted of operating while intoxicated seven times spanning 1995 to 2014.

Pamanet's has admitted that "addiction has ruined his life," and that he's now going to have to pay for his behavior.

Given his age and health, a 30-year prison term would amount to a "lifetime sentence," Phillip wrote.

Pamanet has been in custody since his arrest in January.

Griesbach imposed the maximum statutory penalty, stating that there was an "obvious need for a substantial sentence" for a "terrible offense."

"To do this to an innocent child is one of the most heinous crimes possible," the judge said, according to the U.S. Attorney's press release.

Rejecting the request for a 20-year sentence, Griesbach said: "Some crimes are so unthinkable...that they have to receive a much higher sentence than a lot of other crimes."

Witt-Birn finishes 0-2 at state

Chargers unable to get offense going

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood Legion baseball team struggled to get its bats going during two Class A State Tournament games on July 29-30 in Viroqua.

Witt-Birn was defeated 10-0 by Altoona on July 29 and 3-1 by Prairie Du Chien on July 30.

"I think it was a great experience getting to play with the best at state," said Witt-Birn coach Jason Rieck. "Think the younger guys will be hungry to get back and watching the quality of ball down there, I think they will put in that much extra work to make another trip if given the opportunity. We have some really good players returning next year."

The Witt-Birn, Altoona game had the looks of a pitcher's duel through three innings.

Altoona grabbed the lead in the fourth, taking advantage of a Witt-Birn error. Altoona blew the game open in the fifth inning with four runs and then ended the game by scoring five times in the sixth to reach the 10-run rule.

Nathan Waupekenay pitched the first five innings for Witt-Birn before Pierson Potrykus worked the sixth. The duo combined for nine strikeouts, with Waupekenay tallying seven of them.

While both guys threw the ball pretty well, it was the team's lack of production at the plate that really hurt.

Witt-Birn was held to one hit in the contest and had just five baserunners reach.

Logan Thiex was hit by a pitch in the first inning for Witt-Birn's first baserunner of the contest. Chase Krull reached on an error in the second.

Bryce Zorowski singled in the third but was caught stealing later on. Ian Salvesen also walked in the frame.

Zorowski was also the team's final baserunner to reach, making it to first on an error in the sixth.

"Their pitcher was good, probably one of the best that we've faced all year and he kept our kids off balance. He threw a good changeup and I don't think a lot of our guys have seen a good changeup," said Rieck.

"He got ahead of everybody.

"I thought Nate really did a good job for the first 4 2/3 (innings) but the one difference was their pitcher got ahead every batter and when you have multiple pitches that you can throw for strikes, that's a big difference there."

Because of pitch count restrictions, Witt-Birn's Logan Thiex — who pitched three times at regionals, including the regional title game win against Marathon — couldn't take the mound until the second game of state.

Things got off to a shaky start for Thiex and the Chargers after Prairie Du Chien scored twice in the first inning, but Thiex settled in after that and gave his team a chance to rally.

Thiex ended up pitching all seven innings, allowing the third run in the seventh. He struck out three batters and was pounding the strike zone all game.

"I thought I pitched really good today," said Thiex. "I felt like I had a good groove when I was on the mound, and people made plays behind me. There was some pitches I missed spots and they produced hits off of them.

"PDC has a well-rounded team. All of them can hit and they did it the whole game. What else do you expect out of a state route team?"

Rieck said that's the best Thiex has pitched all summer and that he deserved the win instead of the loss.

"Being able to catch for Nathan and Logan at the state tournament was a great experience," said Zorowski. "They both pitched their best games of the season and were spot on. They couldn't have pitched better."

Witt-Birn was limited to four hits in the contest, but also had three batters draw walks and another reach on an error.

"Everyone who pitches at state is going to be good, but he was beatable," said Rieck of the PDC starter. "We just hit the ball right at people. Bats came to life in the seventh but just a little too late."

Ben Wesolowski belted a home run to left-center field to lead off the seventh for Witt-Birn.

Krull reached on an error with one out before Potrykus singled with two down to bring the winning run to the plate. David Gauderman pinch hit for Witt-Birn, but flied to right field to end the contest.

Zoromski walked to lead off the first for the Chargers, but was eventually stranded at second. Austin Worzalla walked to lead off the second, but a double play wiped out the threat.

Carter Herb drew a walk with one down in the third before Zoromski replaced him on a fielder's choice. Zoromski wasn't able to advance past first.

Wesolowski singled with one down in the fourth before being erased on another double play grounder. Herb led off the sixth with a double but never advanced any further.

Despite the tough showing at state, Witt-Birn was proud of the run it made and thankful for the memories made along the way.

"Being able to be a part of this team has been an amazing ride, and finally in my last year of playing we were able to make the state tournament," said Zoromski. "I had a great feeling about this year about being able to make the state tournament and we were able to live up to the hype."

Hofa Park wins Shawano Lobos Tournament

Panthers top Cecil in championship game

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Hofa Park Panthers won the Shawano Lobos Tournament that ran from July 25-29 after defeating the Navarino Rangers, Lobos and Cecil Mudhens.

Hofa Park opened the tournament with a 9-1 win over Navarino on July 25 before rolling to a 16-2 win in five innings over the Lobos on July 27. Hofa Park topped Cecil 7-3 in the championship game on July 29.

In the championship game, Eli Frank hit a grand slam in Hofa Park's four-run fourth inning. Robert Schuettpelez, Marcus Hornacek and Frank scored two runs each for the Panthers.

Schuettpelez earned the win after allowing two runs over five innings, helping him be named the tournament's MVP. Frank struck out four batters and allowed an unearned run over two innings.

The Panthers scored nine runs in the first inning and seven in the third to roll past the Lobos.

Gavin Rusch drove in three runs on four hits and scored twice to lead Hofa Park at the plate. Brinton Anderson, Luke Zablocki, Alex Brodhagen and Eric Dorn drove in two runs each. Schuettpelez, Hornacek, Anderson, Zablocki, Dorn, Zach Asher and Ty Myers scored two runs each.

Mike Delgado earned the win on the mound after striking out four batters over five innings.

Hofa Park scored in four of the six innings it batted in its win over Navarino.

Caden Czyzewski, Hornacek, Rusch and Myers drove in two runs each for the Panthers. Czyzewski and Hornacek both scored two runs.

Rusch earned the win on the hill, striking out seven and allowing an unearned run over five innings. Hornacek worked two scoreless frames to seal up the win.

Before its championship game loss to Hofa Park, Cecil topped the Shawano Lakes 9-3 on July 26 and the Bonduel Broncos 9-3 on July 27.

Against the Lakers, Cecil's Grant Bouche, Tucker Bouche and Jacob Polzin all tallied multiple hits at the plate. Cole Anderson earned the win after striking out eight batters over 5 1/3 innings. Isaac Banker started and got the first five outs.

Jacob Springborn took the loss on the mound for the Lakers.

In the Mudhens' win over Bonduel, Cecil scored nine runs in the opening inning.

Noah Beilfuss led Cecil with four hits, while Tucker Bouche, Grant Bouche, Polzin, Garrett Engel, Jordan Boldt and Jake Sager all finished with multiple hits. Isaac Boldt was the winning pitcher, striking out six over four innings before Tucker Bouche worked the final three frames.

Noah Weier, Adam Frost and Luke Kostreva all posted two hits for Bonduel, with Weier also scoring twice. J.C. Reinke pitched all seven innings, striking out four along the way.

In the Mudhens' title game loss, Sager led the team with two hits and a RBI. Kenny Casper scored two runs and got on base twice. Ben Lee took the loss, while Noah Beilfuss also pitched.

Bonduel opened the tournament with a 4-3 win over the Lakers on July 25. Frost drove in two runs, while Reinke drove in a run on two hits and a walk. Kostreva was the winning pitcher after working all seven innings.

Crew Weisnicht led the Lakers with two hits. Dan Buettner took the loss on the hill after pitching 3 1/3 innings.

Navarino defeated the Lobos 7-4 on July 26 after losing to Hofa Park at the start of the tournament.

Kyle Finger drove in Austin Deiter for Navarino's run against Hofa Park. Spencer Dauphinee took the loss on the mound after working four innings before Matt Krause pitched the final two frames.

Navarino fell behind 2-0 early on against the Lobos, but eventually led 7-2 after a four-run first and three-run second inning.

Tyler Rosin drove in three runs on two hits for the Rangers, while Brock Smejkal and Brett Krull added two hits each. Deiter earned the win after pitching six innings, with Smejkal working the seventh.

Chase Henning homered among his two hits, drove in three runs and scored twice to lead the Lobos against Navarino. Luke Krueger was the losing

Packers linebackers share thoughts on season

Campbell helping Walker become integrated into NFL

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Green Bay Packers linebackers De’Vondre Campbell, Rashan Gary and rookie Quay Walker talked about how they are preparing for the season and listed some goals that they want to reach after participating in the first three days of training camp.

“The first couple days of training camp have gone well,” said Walker. “It can be better, like always. I am just trying to take in everything of what it means to be a pro.”

Walker noted that the first three days of training camp have helped him loosen up and become integrated into the NFL.

“I am trying to get everything situated and just trying to calm down,” said Walker. “It is nice to get the jitters out and just run as much as I can.”

Campbell, who is coming off of a season that saw him selected as a First Team All-Pro, said he has been doing what he can to help integrate Walker into the NFL.

“I try to give him as much advice as I can, but a lot of things that you learn in the NFL, you learn through experience,” said Campbell. “The more reps he gets, the better. We are going against the best in the business with Aaron (Rodgers) — if you can play well against Aaron, then there is no one that he can’t play well against.”

Walker echoed Campbell, saying that he is trying to learn as much from the veterans as he can.

“I have learned a whole lot from De’Vondre,” said Walker. “I have learned different techniques, different coverages and why we do certain things.”

Campbell added that playing against Rodgers in practice, gives the defense practice against different throws and different schemes.

“The looks that he gives us, the throws that he can make, and the situations that he puts us in gives us invaluable experience,” said Campbell.

In regards to what he wants to accomplish this year, Campbell kept it simple.

“I just want to get better than we were last year,” said Campbell. “I know that we finished as a top-10 defense and I think that we can continue to take another step forward. We aren’t making any expectations or predictions — we just want to keep getting better.”

With players like Jaire Alexander, Darnell Savage, Adrian Amos, Kenny Clark and Campbell, among other players, Campbell said that there is still room for improvement in order to play at the best of the team’s abilities.

“We still have a lot of work to do,” said Campbell. “It is still early in training camp, but I think that we are heading in the right direction. We have all of our guys here, we are battling every day and we are getting great looks, so we just have to keep taking it day-by-day and let the chips fall where they may.”

In terms of goals for himself, Walker said that he does not set goals.

“I stopped setting goals after college, because once you reach that goal, you could probably go further with it,” said Walker. “I don’t really believe in individual goals, but of course I have team goals. I am trying to get respect from everyone and show that I am a guy that can be trusted day in and day out.”

Walker finished saying that he has noticed a difference in practice between the University of Georgia and the Green Bay Packers.

“We are much more relaxed here,” said Walker. “The tempo that I see is much more different here than in college.”

In his press conference, head coach Matt LaFleur noted his excitement for Rashan Gary this season.

“Rashan is a tone-setter,” said LaFleur. “He has the capability to wreck practice. He is relentless, plays with a great motor and with great energy.”

LaFleur noted that the energy that Gary brings to practice rubs off of on other players.

“He makes everyone around him better,” said LaFleur. “One of the important things is to make sure our offensive line does not lose confidence against a great player like that.”

Gary echoed the words of Campbell and Walker saying that a goal of his right now is to continuing improving day by day.

“I am just trying to get comfortable,” said Gary, talking about how he is practicing without pads and without hitting other players. “I am just trying to tell coaches and players what I am seeing and trying to give them the best that I can.”

He noted that young offensive linemen are asking for tips on how they can improve.

“I am trying to bring the young guys along and the older guys along,” said Gary. “I am trying to help them learn what it means to be a Green Bay Packer.”

In terms of personal goals for the season, Gary said that he keeps them to himself.

“I keep them between me and the Lord,” said Gary.

Marion pair excited for college opportunities

Scheef, Gueths staying in state

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Marion High School graduates Ethan Scheef and Isaiah Gueths are ready to take their athletic talent to the college level.

Scheef is set to play football for Lakeland University, while Gueths golfs for Northland College.

Scheef said his recruitment process was a lengthy one.

"I had to work my butt off being that I was at such a small school. I honestly have to thank my coaches and my parents for helping with that process," said Scheef.

"I just remember sitting down for hours sending my film off to at least 50 colleges and sending long emails to each one of them. Lakeland was the school that made me feel at home. Coach (Colin) Bruton has made me feel like I belong there

— he took me in the moment I got there and it just felt right. I love it there, it's a beautiful place and I have yet to meet someone I don't like."

Gueths' recruitment process wasn't as complex, but it was still time-consuming process.

"It started sometime in winter, one afternoon I got a text from the Northland golf coach. My mom wanted to make sure it was legit and told me to ask my high school golf coach. He confirmed it was legit. Then we kept texting until I met him up at the campus."

Along with football, Scheef played basketball and baseball for the Mustangs. His passion was always football, so that's the sport he wanted to keep playing.

He expects to play quarterback at Lakeland and has already been introduced to a majority of the team.

"So far I've met my coaches and the senior QB as well as some other football players they are all great people," said Scheef. "I know that I won't be a starter right out of the gate, but I'm there to work my butt off and I want to take over the starting job."

While becoming a college starter is Scheef's next goal, his long-term goal is even bigger.

"My biggest goal is to make it to the big leagues — sounds like a long shot from a small town kid but I'm there to work harder than anyone else," said Scheef, who made the Central Wisconsin Conference 8-player second team as a quarterback and linebacker as a senior. "I'm excited to get to college and play at the next level."

Academics played a role in Gueths' decision to attend Northland College, as the school had his degree. Being able to continue playing golf at a college close enough for his family to keep watching him was another bonus.

"I am honored to continue playing golf at the next level," said Gueths. "I am excited to keep improving my golf game and to be a part of Northland's golf program."

Gueths already has an idea what to expect for the coming season, as the coach sent him a practice plan.

Gueths was the Mustangs' top golfer in CWC action this past spring. He came in 18th in the conference, capping a memorable senior season.

"Senior year was filled with fun practices with my teammates, coaches, and the staff at Glen Cairn Golf Course," said Gueths, who also mentioned late night golfing with teammates as another moment he wouldn't forget.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Steve Rickert taking over Oconto Falls boys team

New coach hoping to give program stability

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Steve Rickert will look to provide the Oconto Falls High School boys basketball program with stability after being named the head varsity coach.

The boys basketball team started last season under first-year coach Aaron Zepnick, but it was interim Todd Skarban who ended the year as the coach.

Since Kirk Hirst resigned after the 2018-19 season, Gary Regal and Joe Bebeau also coached the boys team.

Rickert has several years of basketball coaching experience, all in Illinois. He coached at the middle school level starting in 2004. He coached freshmen and sophomores and was also a varsity assistant for six seasons. He also was a varsity girls coach for a couple seasons.

After coaching in Illinois for several years, he's hoping to do the same in Oconto Falls. While he is new to the area, there's plenty of familiar faces on the coaching staff.

"Continuity plays a critical role in the success of a program, and we're very fortunate that the other three coaches on the staff are all returnees from last year," said Rickert. "We're all 100% focused on getting this program to where we believe it can be. We also know that getting to that point is a process and we're committed to doing the necessary work now and in the years to come."

Oconto Falls athletic director Jerry Moynihan said Rickert will serve as the high school's special education teacher.

"We are very excited to have our boys basketball coach in the building to help build our program," said Moynihan. "His daily contact with our athletes will be able to build a program on a daily basis throughout the school year. He is a former principal in his previous job, and we are looking for him to be a great leader for our program."

While the team won't start playing games until the winter season, Rickert already has an idea of the talent he has at his disposal.

"Prior to our participation in summer league, the only thing I had to gauge the team was last year's win/loss record. I have been encouraged to observe considerable talent at each level in our program. I'm confident that if every member of this program does their part, we're going to begin stacking successes," Rickert said. "I believe great things are on the horizon for Oconto Falls basketball, this season and beyond, and I am honored to be a part of it."

In terms of his coaching philosophy, Rickert has things that pertain to the program and things that are more game-oriented.

"First and foremost, everyone in the program needs to understand that it is a privilege to represent our school and our community," said Rickert. "With this privilege comes responsibility. We must commit to putting in the time and work necessary to be properly prepared for each game, we must conduct ourselves in a manner that demonstrates high levels of character, and we must be all-in on with a team-first mentality. These qualities should manifest themselves both on and off the court."

"As it relates specifically to my game philosophy, my expectation is that each time we step onto the court, we will be confident in our preparation and we will expect to be successful. We won't be out-hustled, we won't back down from a challenge, we will play at our tempo, we will limit mistakes and we will display high level basketball IQ. If we meet these expectations, then win or lose, we can walk off the court with a sense of pride."

Oconto Falls finished the 2021-22 season with a 2-23 overall record. The Panthers went 0-18 in North Eastern Conference.

HIGH SCHOOL SWIM

Mellissa Reed named new Shawano girls coach

She was assistant for team last year

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Mellissa Reed was named the new girls swim coach for the Shawano Community High School team.

Bonduel is also expected to have a couple of girls swim this coming season, so Shawano and Bonduel will be a co-op.

While there's been some turnover with the team's coach over the past couple seasons, Reed is actually a familiar face in the swim program at Shawano. She's been involved with the girls and boys teams for six years. She started as a coach for the

MELLISSA REED

Shawano Sting-rays Swim Club, helping run the computer system for the club. She was also a board member for the club as a parent of a swimmer.

Reed served as the boys varsity assistant coach during the 2020-21 season. She then held the same role for the girls team this past season before serving as the interim head coach for the boys team at the end of its season.

"We are grateful to Mellissa for stepping up and agreeing to coach our girls swim team this fall," said Shawano activities director Joel Wondra. "Her past involvement with the team, her involvement in the club program, and her strong organizational skills and care for the kids will allow her to effectively lead our program."

Reed is hoping her involvement with the swim teams the past few years will help provide some stability to the program.

"I have known most of these girls since their years swimming in club as younger swimmers," said Reed.

While the season begins in the fall, Reed has already begun leading the team.

"During our summer camp at the end of June, I talked to our young ladies a little about my philosophy and hopes for the team," said Reed.

"I truly believe that due to uncertainty with coaching and COVID, our team needs to bond and build a team effort philosophy. Swimming takes a lot of dedication and hard work. I want our swimmers to learn to deal honorably with success and failure because they will experience both of these at some point during swim and life.

"As a varsity swim team, swimmers swim individual events and relay events and all of these events culminate in our team's final score, so team effort is imperative. I expect our swimmers to support each other and give their best to create a positive environment. Always give it your best, set goals for yourself to achieve, yet take it one day at a time."

Shawano placed sixth at the Bay Conference Championships last season under first-year coach Robyn Bartal.

Speedway raises over $23K for childhood cancer

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

The Shawano Speedway held Racing for a Reason, an event which saw the organization raise $23,891 for Child Life Services on July 30.

Since Racing for a Reason started 12 years ago, the Shawano Speedway has raised over $224,000 for Child Life Services of St. Vincent in Green Bay.

The event was started after former Shawano Speedway's promotions and operations manager Brad Luepke's son, Reed, was diagnosed with leukemia.

"It actually feels really good to put this on to raise money for cancer," said Linda Springborn, who was on the committee for Racing for a Reason. "We went out collecting donations and everyone was very receptive towards it. Mostly everyone that asked donated and we got a good turnout."

With Luepke recently leaving the speedway, Springborn said it was important to keep the event going.

"Brad had started it to benefit childhood cancer," said Springborn. "We felt that even with Brad leaving, we wanted to continue hosting this event, as the proceeds go to a big cause. We just wanted to keep this going."

Springborn said that almost everything with the event stayed the same as previous years, noting that the only thing that was different was the limited amount of time that the organization had to put the event together.

"We had five weeks to get everything ready," said Springborn. "Normally, they start right away after the event for the next year. Unfortunately, we lost our promoter, so we just made a committee and got it done."

She added that Racing for a Reason is often one of the most attended events that the speedway puts on.

"It is a big one," said Springborn. "I think that part of raising money has to do with that."

In terms of reception to the event, Springborn said that visitors have given very positive feedback.

"I received messages from quite a few people that said they wanted to make a donation and thanked us for keeping the event going," said Springborn. "We plan to continue this in the future."

Kennel produces award-winning terriers

Tibetan dogs a rare breed for Wisconsin, surrounding states

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

Northeast Wisconsin is known for its cherries, its cattle farms and plenty of tranquil waterways, but there's one other claim to fame that the region has — award-winning Tibetan Terriers.

In one part of Nikkie Kinziger's home between Oconto Falls and Abrams, the dogs provide a friendly atmosphere. In the other part are rooms full of ribbons won by the terriers both past and present, a testament to Kinziger's 42-year history of raising them and showing more than 100 champions.

Kinziger recently came back from the Westminster Dog Show with a couple of those ribbons. Ivy was named the Select Bitch for the breed, while Vivienne won Best of Opposite Sex. Kinziger took five of her dogs to the Kennel Club Dog Show in Tampa Bay, Florida, and all came home with awards.

She was the breeder of merit from the American Kennel Club with the Tibetan Terriers and has the top winning female in the history of the breed, which broke a 30-year-old record for the number of best of shows won that has been held for 12 years. Kinziger has many times had to go up against celebrity dog owners in order to come home a winner.

"Bill Cosby, he was very big into his show dogs," Kinziger said. "Martha Stewart and Greg Louganis. There's Jane Firestone of Firestone Tires. When you're competing against people of that caliber and money, and you have a small-town girl from Oconto Falls, Wisconsin, going to New York and winning, it's quite an honor. I don't have the pocketbook to spend on the advertising and all the magazines. My dogs have won on their merit."

Kinziger noted that what makes the victories so much sweeter is the fact that Tibetan Terriers aren't as popular a breed as cocker spaniels, Irish setters or golden retrievers.

"They always say that when you win, you have a target on your back, which I do," she said. "That's OK. I earned it the honest way. I'm not the child of judges, and I did not work for a professional handler."

For Kinziger, showing animals is in the blood, with her parents showing race horses and other dog breeds. However, Tibetan Terriers are not a common dog in Wisconsin or any surrounding states, so bringing the breed to the frozen tundra was a bold move.

"My mother had wanted to find a breed that was, at the time, not around here, and there are still very few and far between of this breed," Kinziger said. "We had our first couple imported from Missouri and then one from Illinois, and that started us in the breed."

Kinziger was gifted a Tibetan Terrier when she graduated from high school, and from there, she has raised dozens. She recently welcomed new puppies into the home that will eventually go to homes, but their training to acclimate to humans and prepare for the shows starts almost immediately after emerging from their mother's womb.

"I start from two days old, starting to do their toenails and things like that, handling them a lot so they get used to the manipulation," Kinziger said. "When they get to be four or five weeks, I stack them on the tables and start looking at structure, because with Tibetans, what you see at five weeks is basically what you get as an adult."

She also gets them used to various stimuli, including a kiddie pool with an assortment of balls that allows them to adapt to noises and tactile sensations.

"I'll leave empty dog food bags on the floor," Kinziger said. "They'll look at it and be like, 'What is it?' They'll kind of stalk up to it and then they'll start pouncing on it and crawling in it. If you leave a grocery bag in the middle of the floor, this breed is so perceptive. If they see something that's out of place, they know it."

Getting the dogs used to unknown factors prepares them for exhibiting the proper behavior at dog shows, with Kinziger noting there will be things like chairs dropping or babies crying.

"You want to get them so that, when they're in the ring at the exact moment that the judge is looking at your dog and the baby starts screaming or the chair gets knocked over, that the dog isn't freaking out," she said.

Kinziger also starts getting her dogs accustomed to bathing and grooming rituals at a young age, getting them used to hair dryers and laying them on a grooming table.

The Tibetan Terriers can be aloof with strangers at first, according to Kinziger, but once they realize that she's not in any danger, they will be friendly and welcoming. However, first impressions are key when the dogs meet certain humans.

"If they don't like you when they first meet you, they will never like you," Kinziger said.

Running a dog kennel in a wooded area on County Road E during the day allows Kinziger time to work with her own dogs while providing care for others. She also occasionally substitute teaches in the Oconto Falls School District.

"I'm very fortunate. I'm not saying it's an easy job. It's definitely a lot of work, but it beats a nine-to-five clock job. I'm lucky. I've got that to look at every day," Kinziger said as she pointed to Ivy, one of her award winners, "versus sitting behind a desk or that kind of thing."

Corn — good for eating, looking nice

Indigenous workshops help to reintroduce tribal ways long lost on reservations

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Corn can be a vital staple in meals for Native Americans and other Indigenous cultures, but certain corns can also have other uses, as well, including making necklaces and bracelets.

Dolly Potts showed a small workshop of people on July 27 at the Sustainable Development Institute on the College of Menominee Nation's Keshena campus how to cook with Bear Island flint corn to make the hard shells edible, but she also showed them how the uncooked kernels can be combined with beads and other things to make beautiful items to wear. While much of this knowledge is a part of the history of many tribes, it has become lost as those tribes were forced to assimilate into the white man's world in America through reservations, boarding schools and tribal terminations.

One of the benefits of Bear Island flint corn, according to Potts, is its ability to withstand colder temperatures, which makes it a good crop for tribes in Wisconsin and other northern states.

"So many times, this corn is grown on islands and near water, because the water warms the earth and helps to grow the corn," Potts said. "Another reason we like it is because it has a short growing season (85 days), and a lot of corns take a lot longer."

The Bear Island flint corn is more commonly associated with the Ojibwe than the Menominee, but the colorful corn helps to prop open the door for Indigenous knowledge with the tribe as it tries to reclaim its identity and its past. The corn currently grows in the community garden at the institute, but Potts and others affiliated with the college have been working with other tribes to learn about its uses and how to prepare it properly.

"We went through the process of processing it, drying it out, and then we decided to hull it," Potts said about the efforts to learn about growing and using the corn.

Potts noted that she and the others learned about the flint corn's hard shell and how it needs to be boiled for hours to remove the hard shell and make it ready for consumption. However, it takes more than water to soften the corn, and during the workshop, bags with a hardwood ash from oak trees were used to aid the processing.

"It's the best ash to hull corn," Potts said. "It's a traditional way of hulling corn. It adds a smoked flavor to the corn."

With a forested area comprising much of the reservation, the Menominee are in a good position to hull the corn and prepare it for consumption, according to Potts. The institute was able to use the burned wood as biochar to help grow the corn, she said.

Prior to the workshop with the flint corn, Potts did a workshop about milkweed, showing participants how to harvest it and use it in cooking. More workshops are in the development stages, and information about them can be found on the CMN Sustainable Development Institute's Facebook page.

"A lot of our knowledge exists with our elders, and they pass it down to others," Potts said. "In these times, we've got to go back to these old ways. I'm glad that young people are learning that way of doing things. We didn't have tractors and cultivators, and we couldn't go to Farm and Home and get fertilizer. We had biochar and fish emulsions, and those things were found in the ancient garden beds (on the reservation)."

Potts is eager to continue her work in showing the Menominee and other Native Americans how the old ways can still be the best ways to maintain a healthy and sustainable lifestyle.

"This is my life," Potts said. "I do this everyday."

Adam Schulz pours some Bear Island flint corn into a pot with boiling water and hardwood oak ash July 27 behind the Sustainable Development Institute at the College of Menominee Nation's Keshena campus.

FARM LIFE FROM A FARM WIFE

Remodeling projects have to be bad to be good

In 1997, we had a heifer barn built with three separate pens dividing the animals by age and size, transferring them out there from the main barn just after being weaned off milk.

KAY REMINGER

Moving from pen to pen to accommodate their growth, they'd be artificially inseminated when ready and then relocated back to the cow barn just before calving. We had purchased a standing silo from a neighbor and had that moved over for feeding. We ran a water line underground in an 8-foot trench, directing it from the northeast end of the barn up to the heifer barn.

When we sold the cows in May 2016, we had seven or eight heifers left. After selling them that summer, we had no need to keep a water line going to the heifer barn. In any event, it would have frozen solid with no cows to keep it open. We disconnected that line and installed a hydrant closer to the barn in case we'd have animals out there in the future.

Fast-forward to 2022. We've been housing dry cows and first-calf bred heifers for a couple of years for my brother and his sons. They approached us with the proposition of converting our almost-empty heifer barn to be able to house approximately 46-month-old calves. Remodeling usually comes with some headaches, and this adventure was no different. My mom had always said remodeling "has to be bad to be good."

To have young stock back in the heifer barn, it needed a water line installed. The line went back in — this time from the hydrant, burying it in an 8-foot trench so it wouldn't freeze in the winter. The headlocks were repaired, welding in places to reinforce; some busted fence rails had to be re-welded, as well as a waterer installed. Twelve-foot-high, 6-by-6 structure poles were replaced, and a strip of plastic panel had to be put up in one section on the roof. Otherwise, the building itself was intact.

My husband and nephew cleaned out the back of the heifer barn pens with skidders, scraping it down so gravel and then limestone screening could be filled in. Corn stalks shredded and baled in big rounds this spring and stored in our barn will be used for bedding on top of a layer of sawdust.

Limestone screening was also hauled along the front right hand side of the feeding area as a base to dump the feed. We had a couple of fellas come last year to demolish two silos on the property, and the area where the one had been by the heifer barn was smoothed over and filled in, making feeding and cleaning easier as we drive over it.

The gates were checked and new or good-used replaced old. Just behind the heifer barn an outside pasture area about 60-foot long by 20-foot wide was fenced in using cedar posts from our swamp and panels left over from our Angus pasture fence. We reuse as much as possible, plus utilize natural resources from our land. This outside pasture area is where the animals will be partitioned off so my husband can clean their pens easier.

One day I even got out there and lent a hand, hopping into the skidder dumping limestone in post holes to secure the posts and picking up ends of panels to haul them over in place. I'd hold stuff while they pounded. Every hand helps.

During the remodeling, I sometimes felt helpless; there's only so much physical labor I'm able to offer. So what do I do when I can't do anything else? I do food. I ran popsicles, cookies, tubs of thermoses filled with ice cold water and buckets of chilled watermelon out there, giving the fellas a short reprieve from some pretty hot working conditions.

While the remodeling was going on, the pigs in the next door pen ran in circles for the first while until they got used to the idea of the busyness. Rona, our red Hereford, was stuck in there too during the project. They're all pretty much the same color. In order to feed the pigs and Rona, we had to move their feed bunk and water. I had to make sure they each stuck to their own food; Rona likes ground feed and the pigs like cracked corn. The pigs would huddle around her corn and she was nosing in their grain. Taking a long-handled stick, I tried to get them all back to their own food trough. It was a circus.

After much time and effort the calves got hauled over, and it's been working out great. My brother, his boys, a hired hand and my husband and sometimes me, all contributed to the mission. My mom's declaration of remodeling projects, "It's gotta be bad to be good" is spot on.

("So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are fellow citizens with the saints, and are of God's household, having been built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus Himself being the corner stone." Ephesians 2:19-20)

Kay Reminger was born and raised on a dairy farm, and she married her high school sweetheart, who happened to farm for a living in Leopolis. Writing for quite a few years, she remains focused on the blessings of living the ups and downs of rural life from a farm wife's perspective.

Climbing vines a tall order for gardens

One of the most common questions I receive is regarding flowering or climbing vines for backyards and gardens.

ROB ZIMMER

There are a number of excellent vining plants that can be used in gardens in our area. Some are perennial vines, while others are annuals. All provide excellent growth and foliage, along with colorful blooms.

Perennial vines include clematis, a favorite among many gardeners. Clematis are a longtime garden stalwart and a traditional climbing plant for use in perennial gardens. Their flowers come in a wide range of colors, including shades of pink, red, purple, lavender and white.

While sometimes tricky to get started, once they are established, clematis do wonderfully in our area. Many of these can grow quite large, and I often see clematis covering sides of garages and outbuildings.

Be sure to do your research, as there are varieties of clematis that are better suited for our area than others. Be sure to purchase well-established, compact potted plants. Clematis are very touchy when transplanted and often need a bit of care. Once they are established, however, they are virtually maintenance free.

Another excellent climbing perennial vine for our area is trumpet honeysuckle. Do not confuse this with Sky blue morning glories are wonderful for summer bloom, lasting well into fall. While these are annuals, they will often reseed freely, coming back year after year.

ROB ZIMMER

the large, orange-flowered trumpet creeper. While that is also a nice woody vine for our area, it tends to be quite invasive and aggressive.

Trumpet honeysuckle is a more herbaceous plant with a softer stem and loose clusters of flowers in red, orange, yellow, as well as several garden hybrids such as peaches and cream.

Trumpet creeper and trumpet honeysuckle are both excellent choices for hummingbirds. If you go with trumpet creeper, be sure to give it plenty of room and do not plant close to a building. The suckers and shoots can actually grow beneath the shingles and siding and cause damage. Plant in an area where it can go free and climb to its heart's content.

Climbing hydrangea is another excellent choice perennial vine. This one can also get quite large. It is often seen climbing up the sides of barns and silos in our area.

Climbing hydrangea features large, lacy clusters of white blooms that may be a foot across. It does best in part shade.

There are several varieties of climbing ivy that are often used in our area. Be aware that the suckers on these plants can also damage siding and brick and wood structures.

There are a number of excellent annual vines that can be used on trellises and obelisks or in containers. Morning glories are one such vine. These bloom in a number of different colors and shapes and sizes.

Cardinal climber is a beautiful climbing vine with long, bright red, tubular-shaped flowers that are prized by hummingbirds.

Purple hyacinth bean and scarlet runner bean are two decorative beans that work excellent as ornamental vining plants in the garden. Purple hyacinth bean features lovely pinkish-purple blooms followed by large purple bean fruits later in the season.

Scarlet runner bean features deep red blossoms and long reddish blooms in summer and fall.

Tropical vines such as Mandevilla and Passion flower make excellent accent and specimen plants in the summer garden. They should be treated as annuals or, ideally, brought indoors as house plants during the winter season.

These as well as many other vines are fun to experiment with in the summer garden. Whether you choose perennial vines, annuals or tropicals, enjoy the beauty and vertical interest they provide.

Rob Zimmer is a nature and garden author, public speaker and radio show host on WHBY. Readers can find him on Facebook at www.facebook.com/RobZimmerOutdoors.

Summer flowering vines, like this clematis, are in hot demand.

Framed cross quilt has John Deere colors

Jody Wilmet, daughter of Jim and Sandy Raddant, has sponsored Shawano County's 390th barn quilt that now adorns her parents' barn at W7101 Ranch Road, Shawano.

The pattern they picked out is called Framed Cross and is painted in John Deere colors.

"This barn quilt is very special for my parents and they are very happy to have it displayed on their barn," Jody said.

Jim and Sandy have enjoyed seeing the beautiful barn quilts around Shawano County and had talked about getting one. Now, after a little nudging from Jody, they are a part of the nation's largest trail of 8-square-foot barn quilts.

Jim was born and raised on a farm just a few miles away and always loved farming. He and Sandy purchased 40 acres, nine of which are wooded, in 1988 from Archie Schroeder. Prior to Schroeder, Ferner Froeming had lived there with his sister for many years. The cropland is rented out, although Jim still enjoys helping with the fieldwork.

Jim and Sandy have a combined family of three sons and three daughters and now have nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

"All the kids love to come to the farm and play with Grandpa's 'toys' — snowmobiles, UTVs, tractors and the golf cart," Jody said.

Several of the grandchildren learned how to drive on the farm.

Since owning the farm, Jim and Sandy have put in many hours of hard work improving the farmstead, including building a new driveway, restoring the yard, remodeling the house, and demolishing a couple of old buildings which were replaced with a shop and a shed in which the toys are stored.

Over the years, has Jim collected and restored many tractors, mostly John Deere. He also built a special people wagon for hayrides in the fall, which he pulls with a restored 1936 John Deere A. The wagon can hold 24 people.

Jim and Sandy enjoy feeding and watching birds, gardening for canning and the quietness of living in the country.

The Raddant barn quilt was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee and was put on display by LeRoy and Keenan Raddant, both of whom work for Raddant Electric in Shawano.

Sandy and Jim Raddant, along with their daughter, Jody, at right, are shown with Shawano County's 390th barn quilt on the Raddant farm at W7101 Ranch Road, Shawano.

Too much sun in summer not a good thing

Summer is a good time to get outside, be physically active, and enjoy seasonal activities after being cooped up during the Wisconsin winters.

While being outdoors and active is good for you in many ways, sometimes you can get too much of a good thing — like too much sun.

"Outdoor time is an essential part of the summer for many of us," said Dr. Abigail Taub, a dermatologist with Aspirus Health in Stevens Point. "Enjoy it, but plan for that time accordingly."

Putting safety first and taking necessary precautions will help people to have a safe and enjoyable summer. Too much exposure to the sun can cause sunburn.

Ultraviolet rays can penetrate and change the structure of skin cells, damaging tissues and increasing a person's risk of developing skin cancer, the most common type of cancer in the United States.

The American Cancer Society and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention have some tips to remember while out enjoying the heat and sun:

- Limit outdoor activity, especially between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when the sun is the hottest.
- Apply a broad-spectrum, water-resistant sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher. This will protect you from both UVA and UVB rays. Reapply every one to two hours, or after swimming or sweating. Consider a mineral sunscreen (zinc oxide and titanium dioxide). These are naturally broad spectrum and are coral/reef friendly.

- Shield young children. It's best to keep infants out of the sun completely for the first six months, but other measures such as sun-protective clothing and stroller sunshades are still recommended for unintended exposure. Mineral sunscreen can be applied at six months.

- Drink more water than usual.
- Wear sunglasses and a hat.
- Take breaks from the heat and sun in a shady or air-conditioned space.

"Be sure to drink plenty of water," Taub said. "It's a good part of nutrition and great for our skin, but it's especially important during the summer months when it's easier to become dehydrated. Our bodies tend to lose a lot of water when we sweat, so we need to replenish with water often when it's hot out."

As people grow older, their skin slows down its production of collagen, which is one of the primary contributors to elasticity. Water is one of the key components of collagen, so that is another important reason to drink enough water every day.

People should watch for signs of dehydration and not taking in enough fluids, such as extreme thirst, dry mouth, headache, muscle cramps, lightheadedness and lethargy. They should also keep an eye out for those most vulnerable to extreme heat and sun, including children, older adults, and pets.

NWTC names its new VP of student services

Northeast Wisconsin Technical College has appointed Dr. Jennifer Flatt to the role of vice president of student services.

In this position, Flatt will serve as a member of the college's executive leadership team where she provides strategic direction for student service programs and activities to enhance student success. As part of her role, she oversees enrollment, recruitment and admissions, student development, student support and success, special projects and regional learning.

JENNIFER FLATT

Flatt is an educational leader with over 22 years of experience in teaching and higher education administration. Joining the college in 2019, she served as the dean of learning effectiveness and early college as well as dean of NWTC's Marinette campus.

"Seeing students succeed is what motivates all of us at NWTC, and I look forward to collaborating with partners across our district and within the college to ensure all students have access to the resources they need to be successful in their educational journey," Flatt said.

Flatt is a published author and has presented at various conferences nationwide on topics like institutional change in higher education, student success initiatives and effective teaching techniques.

Prior to her time at NWTC, Flatt was the associate dean for academic affairs and college coordinator for engaging students in the first year at University of Wisconsin-Marquette. She was also a faculty member with UW-Marquette and UW-Green Bay.

Flatt earned her doctorate in English from Loyola University in Chicago, master's degree in English with a related field of Spanish from the University of Minnesota-Duluth and bachelor's degree in English and Spanish from UW-Eau Claire.

3 local grads receive SNBT scholarships

For information, call Pastor Wolf Parsons at yourparsonparsons@gmail.com or by calling 715-584-2912.

The Stephenson National Bank and Trust (SNBT) recently awarded scholarships totaling $13,000 to recent local high school graduates. These scholarships recognize the achievements of outstanding area students.

The Louis W. Staudenmaier

Scholarship is named in honor of the bank's former president who served from 1952 through 1980. Some of the high school graduates who received this $1,000 award are:

- Alexandra Brown, from Oconto Falls High School, who will be attending UW-Green Bay.
- Braeden Neta, from Lena High School, who will be attending St. Norbert College and will major in history.
- Eleanor Finger, from Oconto High School, who will be attending Carroll University focusing on business administration.

The scholarship program is one way SNBT supports youth education. Others include donating to the Future Fund, sponsoring Newspaper in Education, hosting bank tours, providing financial literacy programs and making classroom presentations such as Teach Children to Save and Get Smart About Credit.
