Shawano schools buy five Raptor check-in systems

Board members stress importance that systems are always used

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

The Shawano School Board approved by a 7-2 vote a new security system that will keep better track of which visitors are in the schools during regular hours, but it also made clear to administrators that the system needs to be used across the board, not only the schools that feel like doing it.

The district will be purchasing five Raptor systems — one for each of the schools and one for Shawano Community Education, which is over at Shawano Community Middle School but has its own entrance. Interim Superintendent Kurt Krizan said the entry program checks individual IDs like driver's licenses.

"A visitor will come in, and they would hand us their ID and put it into a little device that looks like a toaster," Krizan said. "It would look at that ID and run them through a database and then print out a visitor's ticket for them with their name and their picture right off of their ID."

The devices will also check the database whenever someone comes in to pick up a child and see if that person is authorized to do so, according to Krizan.

"It's another systems check that allows us to look at visitors coming in and out of the building," Krizan said, noting that Raptor is utilized by 35,000 school districts through the United States.

Krizan pointed out the device would only be utilized during regular school hours when the office is staffed. Evening events would not require visitors to check in, and special events like Veterans Day ceremonies would not require everyone to check in, either, he said.

Board member Alysia Pillsbury saw the Raptor system as an essential part of keeping schools safe and noted that such a system should have been implemented long ago.

"What took us so long to get to this?" Pillsbury said.

Krizan noted the initial funding of $10,000 would be coming out of the second round of Elementary and Secondary Schools Emergency Relief funds initiated during the coronavirus pandemic. Following the initial investment, the district will have to pay $750 annually for each of the schools to continue to use the system plus $600 for SCE's continued use, which Krizan said would come out of the individual budgets.

Krizan said the district's policy has required any visitors during school hours to sign in and sign out, but many fail to return to the office to check out. With the Raptor system, visitors' IDs will be held at the office until they return to check out, he said.

The Raptor system will also be used to print passes for students who are tardy, according to Krizan.

Board member John Arens voted in favor of the system, but he said the district's going to have some problems, pointing out that the adhesive from ID stickers that are put on clothing will likely last five minutes before becoming worthless. He also stressed the importance of making sure the system is mandatory at every school and not used as a convenience.

"It's easy for an admin to say we need this, but the face of this thing is all administrative assistants," Arens said. "Not one of the administrators is going to stare that person in the eye at the other end of the table and tell them 'I need your ID.' I just want to make sure we've vetted this thing to the point that we know that we're putting people who are a lot less paid as the face of this whole thing."

Arens also questioned what would happen if the internet went out at a school, preventing the front office from being able to access the database.

"We have a ton of technology at this school that we paid for that doesn't work," Arens said. "I trust that you have, or you will, go through these situations, because I don't want to spend money on something that they decide they'll use when they want to. What we're saying is safety and security will be at our leisure. Either we have safety and security, or we don't."

Board member Sam Sousek expressed concern that the Raptor system should be used for students, as well. He noted an incident where a student was let in via a door other than the main office; when a staff member questioned it, a department head said: "He's my student. I can have him in here when I want."

"Who is going to be enforcing this?" Sousek said. "Who is this going to be protecting?"

Krizan pointed out a Raptor system is not being purchased for the district office because visitors are few to that part of Shawano Community High School. He said any district office visitor who needs to go into the high school would be escorted by someone at the district office to the high school office, where the visitor would need to submit their ID there.

Board member Mart Grams, who voted against purchasing the Raptor system along with Al Pyaskowit, was against the idea of tracking people, suggesting it wouldn't make an impact on security.

"I just have a real problem with tracking human beings, regardless of what our private businesses do," Grams said. "When I started looking at this company, they have a pretty good tracking system that can tell when I poop. That's how good they are. Tell me one school safety issue that's going to be stopped by this — 'Oh, I don't think I'll shoot anybody today because I had to show my ID.'"

Officer on leave after Shawano shooting

By NEW MEDIA STAFF

A Shawano police officer is on administrative leave following an officer-involved shooting that killed a man Nov. 19.

Shawano County Sheriff's Office, with assistance from the Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) is investigating an officer involved death in the City of Shawano that occurred on Nov. 19 at approximately 5 p.m.

Officers responded at about 5 p.m. to a home in the 900 block of Lafayette Street for a reported disturbance, according to a press release from Police Chief Bradley Rabideau. Officers were let into the home and directed to the basement, where officers observed someone with their hands in the air and another person holding a shotgun. An officer discharged their weapon, striking the individual with the gun. Rabideau said in the release that officers attempted lifesaving measures before the individual was transported to the hospital, where they died.

No law enforcement personnel were injured during the incident, according to Rabideau.

Shawano County Sheriff's Department is leading the investigation and is assisted by the Wisconsin Division of Criminal Investigation, Wisconsin Crime Lab, Wisconsin State Patrol, and the Shawano County Coroner's Office. All involved law enforcement officers are fully cooperating with the investigation, according to Rabideau.

Shawano Pathways recaps busy year

Highlights include, snowshoeing, new GRACE Trail 10-year anniversary of Bike the Barn Quilts

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Snowshoeing, a new GRACE trail and the 10-year anniversary of Bike the Barn Quilts were among the highlights of the Shawano Pathways' annual report during the organization's annual meeting at the American Legion building in Shawano on Nov. 15.

Shawano Pathways President Nancy Brown-Koeller presented a recap of the year, highlighting the major events in chronological order, starting with snowshoeing at Kroenke Lake and the Sugar Shack Trail.

"Kroenke Lake — we are very happy to see it used more and think that is a result of us putting trail markers down, making maps available and leading big hikes through the areas, so we are pleased to see it used much more," said Brown-Koeller. "Sugar Shack Trail has some very interesting sort of trail markers there — you never know what you are going to see."

Brown-Koeller noted the increased popularity of moonlight snowshoe hikes as well, saying that it is a fun and entertaining experience for those involved.

She added that Shawano Pathways also started selling trail passes this year, with all of the money going back to the county for Mountain Bay Trail maintenance.

"We want people to remember that if you buy a trail pass in Shawano County, the money stays in Shawano County," said Brown-Koeller. "If you buy it in Brown County or Marathon County, or anywhere else, that is the county that gets the money."

Trail passes can be bought through Shawano Pathways, at Shawano City Hall, at the Shawano County Chamber of Commerce, or at the Shawano County Court House.

Shawano Pathways President Nancy Brown-Koeller, right, presents a gift basket to Bike the Barn Quilts Chair Matty Mathison, during the Shawano Pathways annual meeting on Nov. 15. Bike the Barn Quilts recently hit its 10-year anniversary, giving Shawano Pathways an incentive to reward Mathison, as she heads the program.

LUKE REIMER | NEW MEDIA

Throughout the spring, Brown-Koeller said that the organization participated in a spring clean-up event on the Mountain Bay Trail and parks in the city. They are looking at doing the same thing this year.

"We have 16 miles of trails that we would like to do," said Brown-Koeller. "We need volunteers this year on Saturday, April 29. If you have two hours, please come and help us clean up the trails that are in the city of Shawano."

Back in May, Shawano Pathways opened a new GRACE Trail at the Navarino Nature Center. Brown-Koeller said that the trail has been popular and thanked Bike the Barn Quilts Chair Matty Mathison for her work in getting it in place.

"The GRACE Trail (idea creator) continues to tap into Matty to say that you are an example that we want to share around the country for what you've done," said Brown-Koeller. "It is a lot of work, but we have good volunteers who do that and it is a good addition to our county."

During her report, Brown-Koeller noted that Shawano Pathways has begun work to help improve the Mountain Bay Trail, partnering with the Friends of the Mountain Bay Trail.

"We added numbers to the 17 shelters on the Mountain Bay Trail — it is just a safety thing, it is easier to locate someone if you know what shelter they are at," said Brown-Koeller. "Thanks to some anonymous donors, we are able to experiment with adding two sides to the shelters. Adding two sides will be a good wind-break and rain-break."

The last topic that Brown-Koeller talked about was the 10-year anniversary of Bike the Barn Quilts. Brown-Koeller and the rest of the members of the Shawano Pathways all chipped in to recognize Mathison on her work with the program for the past decade with a basket of household items and treats.

"It started as a little idea at one of our meetings, and were just trying to figure out ways that we could make money," said Mathison. "(Barn quilts) are obviously something that Shawano has become famous for, and I remember blurting out, 'What about a barn quilt ride?'"

Mattoon doing its part to halt drugs

Drug awareness task force asks residents to be on lookout

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

One local organization is taking the necessary steps to help eliminate drugs in Mattoon.

The village of Mattoon recently established the Mattoon Area Drug Awareness Task Force and the group sponsored a drug awareness program on Nov. 14. Various village leaders are involved with the task force, including Shepherd's Watch President Wade Reimer, Vice President Laurel Collins, Mattoon Village Board Chairman Jim Zahn, Mattoon Village Superintendent Zak Kickhaver and community member Bill Stevens, who was appointed chairman of the task force.

"Concerned leaders and residents were becoming more and more aware of a drug problem existing in Mattoon, the township of Hutchins, as well as surrounding areas, and it has been getting worse over time," said Collins, on why a drug task force is needed for the village.

Collins said that the idea for the task force came up when Reimer found drug paraphernalia on the grounds of Shepherd's Watch.

"This incident had made it quite apparent that our children and teens were clearly in harm's way," said Collins.

When the task force was formed, Collins said that there was couple of goals that they wanted to meet. The first was talking to the village board and purchasing three large black and yellow signs to be displayed in the village that read — If you see something, say something. The second goal was to host a drug awareness meeting for the public that featured two members of the Shawano County Sheriff's Department, Drug Detective Craig Rekoske and Lt. Eric Chernetski, as well as Langlade County Crime Stoppers President Rhonda Drexler.

"Our request to Craig and Eric was to focus on educating the community on ways to recognizing drug use, how to report it and how we as citizens can help," said Collins. "During the presentation, Craig (Rekoske) stated that drugs are increasingly becoming a problem across the state in large and small cities, as well as villages and townships."

A yellow sign signifying that if Mattoon citizens see any suspicious activity that could be linked to drugs, to call the Shawano County Sheriff's Department. The sign was purchased and is displayed in response to drug being present in Mattoon.

CONTRIBUTED

The final goal for the drug task force is to continue to keep citizens educated and informed, in hopes that they can help to save lives from drug use.

"It isn't only the lives of drug users at risk, but the lives of our precious teens and children are at stake here also, which is completely unacceptable," said Collins.

When identifying someone who may be on drugs, Collins relayed Rekoske's message that drug users like to blend in with crowds.

"A few things to look for are any odd or unusual activities such as people stopping by a location and entering, but only staying for a short time of day," said Collins. "Any drug paraphernalia lying around such as used needles, sturdy plastic bottles with any unusual substances remaining in them, small spoons, tin foil, cut-up drinking straws, pipes and pill bottles are more of the common items to look for."

Collins said that drug use is becoming an issue in the village, due to how easy it can be to find the drugs.

"Craig (Rekoske) shared that because drugs are now pouring in over the border, they're readily available for distribution in and out of the larger cities to all points north, south, east and west," said Collins. "Because of this, drugs are now easier and cheaper to obtain for both distributors and buyers."

She pointed to fentanyl as the most glaring drug, but also mentioned meth and other opioids as areas for concern.

"According to Mr. Rekoske, fentanyl is the drug of greatest concern," said Collins. "That is because only two milligrams of this substance is a fatal dose — which is like three grains of table sugar. In pill form fentanyl looks like a prescription medication and when mixed with other drugs is undetectable."

OBITUARIES

Patricia E. Wendler

Patricia E. Wendler, 85, of Wittenberg, died on Monday, Nov. 14, 2022, at Rennes Health and Rehab Center in Weston.

Pat was born on March 22, 1937, in Wausau, the daughter of John and Erma (Schoenhofen) Suwyn.

On July 2, 1955, Pat was united in marriage to Clarence Wendler in Elderon. He preceded her in death on April 27, 2016.

Pat and Clarence farmed in the Town of Wittenberg for many years. Pat was active in the community and was involved with the Forest Home Cemetery, Wittenberg Historical Society and was a member of the Bloecher-Johnson American Legion Auxiliary. Pat was an active member of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Wittenberg and taught Sunday School for 20 years and was in the Ladies Aid. She enjoyed crocheting, gardening and canning.

In her free time, Pat enjoyed watching Westerns and the couple attended many Hodag Music Festivals throughout the years. Pat was an avid Brewers, Badgers and Packers fan. Family and friends were very important to Pat, and she truly treated anyone as family. Pat had a heart of gold and will be deeply missed.

Pat is survived by five children, Joni Adams, of Marion, Brenda (Brian) Retzlaff, of Clintonville, Charles (Shirley) Wendler, of Wittenberg, Theresa (Mike) Stai, of Watertown, and Clarence "Willy" (Laura) Wendler, of Chippewa Falls; grandchildren, Amanda Adams, Jason Adams, Rebecca (Steve) Niesen, BobbiJo (Josh) Ladwig, Jessica (Anthony) Miller, Travis (Rachel) Herrmann, Alisha (Craig Engelhardt) Wendler, Zachary (Cassie) Wendler, Samantha (Charlie Hustad) Doolittle, Anita (Dan Sengpiel) Stai, Kory (Emily Pomerich) Stai, Kristina (Matthew) Hoffman and Johnathon (Alexandra) Wendler; great-grandchildren, Serenity (Antwon Cross) Adams, Zane Forslund, Anton Fedie, Carlos and Gracie Gonzalez, Xander Adams, Channing and Jasmine Niesen, Brennon and Tristan (Halaina)

Fowler, Aiyana Miller, Emma, Georgia and Finley Ladwig, Ava and Jaxton Herrmann, Clara, Levi and baby (due in December) Hoffman, Ryleigh Stai, Charlotte and Boone Wendler; great-great-grandchildren, Gianna Cross and one on the way; special grand puppies, Rascal and Buttons; two brothers, William (Donna) Suwyn and Jack (Betty) Suwyn; brothers and sisters-in-law, Viola Konkell, Lucille Bricco, Evelyn Verkuilen, Roger Wendler, Mike (Georgia) Swenson and Merry (Roger) Voigt; and many nieces, nephews and other relatives.

Pat was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Clarence; one grandson, Ryan Wendler; one son-in-law, Chuck Adams; three sisters, Mary, at birth, Marjorie Cornell and Beverly Tomson; and many other relatives.

A funeral service will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 18, 2022, at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Wittenberg. The Rev. Matthew Christians will preside. Burial will follow in Forest Home Cemetery in Wittenberg. Visitation will be on Thursday from 4-7 p.m. and again on Friday from 9 a.m. until the time of service at the church.

Schmidt and Schulta Funeral Home in Wittenberg is assisting the family with funeral arrangements. Memories and messages of support may be shared at schmidtschulta.com.

Memorials to the St. Paul Lutheran Church Building Fund would be appreciated.

Mary Litzow

Mary (née Lindquist) Litzow died Nov. 15, 2022, at Cardinal View residence in Middleton after a long life filled with love of family and friends. Mary was born in Milwaukee on Jan. 8, 1943, to Alrich and Florence Lindquist. Mary graduated from Milwaukee Washington High School in 1961 and kept a collection of senior class photos of her many friends.

Mary's world came alive in 1965 and again in 1969, when her beloved kids, Scott and Carolyn, were born. That love ignited anew decades later with the arrival of her grandchildren, Peter, Joe, Julia and Ellie. With that, Mary became "Grandma on the River," entertaining her grandkids at her home on the Wolf River in Shawano. She was known for squirt guns, bountiful breakfasts, tuna and potato salads, and a screen porch where she and her husband, Tom Litzow, would share stories (his much longer than hers). Mary loved a good vodka gimlet, everything written by Stephen King and the peace of the river when she would wake up at sunrise.

A longtime staff member at Shawano High School, Mary also loved the many students who confided in her in the guidance office. Many words describe Mary — funny, kind, understanding, accepting — but one stands out, protector. Mary stood by everyone in her life. We will miss that about her but know she will continue to be with us as strongly and staunchly as ever.

Mary was preceded in death by her parents; sister, Arlene; husband, Thomas; and former spouse, Clair Culver, with whom she raised her wonderful kids.

She is survived by those she loved the most, son, Scott (Katy) Culver; daughter, Carolyn Pahl; grandchildren, Pete (Stevie), Joe and Ellie Culver and Julia Pahl; sister Kaaren (Bill) Kropf; brother John (Wendy) Lindquist, and niece Jessica; nephew, Greg Roy; and son-in-law, Dan Pahl. Mary also is survived by dear friends, Carolyn, Mary, Deb and Marilyn.

We are all grateful to Agrace Hospice, Cardinal View staff and many others for their kindness and care for Mary. We miss you, G'ma — the OG in every way.

We will gather for visitation at Cress Funeral Home from 10-11 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 19, 2022, with a memorial service at 11 a.m. A private family burial will follow in the coming months.

In remembrance of Mary's life, the family requests that any charitable donations be made to Agrace Hospice Care, <https://www.agrace.org/donate>.

Many affected by seasonal affective disorder

Does your mood seem to mirror the seasons — growing darker as the winter days get shorter and lifting as the brighter days of summer approach? You could have a condition known as seasonal affective disorder (SAD).

SAD is a type of depression characterized by its recurrent seasonal pattern, with symptoms lasting about four to five months per year in late fall to early spring. According to the American Psychiatric Association, about 5% of adults in the United States experience SAD.

"People may start to feel 'down' as the days get shorter this time of year. This is 'winter-pattern SAD' and can make you feel tired, crave carbohydrates, gain weight, avoid things you normally enjoy or withdraw socially during the fall and winter months," said Heidi Pritzl, Aspirus licensed clinical social worker.

Anyone can be affected by SAD, but according to the National Institutes of Health (NIH), those who are the most at risk are women, people living in the north, people living with other mental health disorders and those a family history of depression. In most cases, SAD begins in young adulthood.

If a patient is diagnosed with SAD, a variety of recommendations may be made, depending on severity. Pritzl recommends a well-balanced lifestyle and getting outside for regular walks when the weather is mild.

"Light therapy (utilizing a light box or dawn-stimulating lamp), talk therapy, vitamin D and in some cases medications such as antidepressants may be used alone or in combination. Talk to your health care provider about which treatment, or combination of treatments, is best for you," said Pritzl.

Late-night snacking an issue, says ThedaCare

Research continues to show excessive eating at bedtime results in weight gain and could keep people up at night with heartburn, so what's a person to do to stave off the hunger pangs?

"Sometimes hunger at bedtime is more of a head hunger and comes from boredom or a stressful day," said Lori Knapp, a registered dietician with ThedaCare Medical Center-New London. "Health experts recommend doing something to keep your mind busy — go for a walk, do a puzzle — something more than just watching TV. Sometimes we are just tired, so going to bed a little earlier might help avoid hunger."

Knapps suggested doing a hunger check before opening the fridge and cupboards, which includes asking if enough food and water were consumed during the day and if enough sleep was achieved the previous night.

"Sometimes we think we are hungry when really, we are craving more fluids," she said. "Our brains can confuse mild dehydration for hunger. Additionally, studies have shown a lack of sleep can trigger an increase in the 'hunger hormone' ghrelin, increasing the urge to eat and decreasing a feeling of fullness when you do consume food."

Knapp said being truly hungry can make it hard to sleep, so having something small can help.

"A snack before bed is fine for most people," she said. "I would recommend sticking to minimally processed, nutrient-rich foods."

She explained foods high in protein or vegetables are the best options in feeling full at night — whether someone is struggling to fall asleep or wakes up with the midnight munchies.

Healthy snack suggestions include yogurt with berries, string cheese, nuts, celery with peanut butter and vegetables with humus.

Even with healthy choices, she suggests eating 1-2 hours before bedtime, especially for anyone with acid reflux. Snacking could cause heartburn.

Whether truly hungry or not, Knapp explained people should avoid foods high in carbohydrates.

Wisconsin below nationwide average for Thanksgiving costs

Side dishes, overall prices increase, grocers say

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

According to a Marketbasket survey from the Wisconsin Farm Bureau, a Thanksgiving meal in Wisconsin will cost an average of $74.54, which is a 4.3% increase from last year.

While turkey and all the trimmings will cost more this year than in 2021, Wisconsin families still pay about $6 less for the meal than the national average, which sits at $81.30. Bryce Iverson, owner of Iverson's Piggly Wiggly in Oconto Falls, said competition among grocery stores is what helps keep those prices down for Wisconsin shoppers.

"There is a lot of different grocers that are located here in Wisconsin," said Iverson. "That market share is spread out."

Kelly Sufka, director of Charlie's County Market in Shawano, attributed part of the difference to Wisconsin's cost of living.

"I think it is the cost of things in general. We just have so much rural area compared to some of these other states," said Sufka. "I think it really comes down to what it always comes down to — the cost of living, the wages people get paid in Wisconsin and that in general. Gas is cheaper here than it is in Chicago. A case of beer is cheaper here than it is in Milwaukee. It is just cheaper here in general."

While average turkey and ham prices have decreased in Wisconsin, the cost of many side dishes has increased. Pie shells, for instance, jumped up 70 cents from $2.58 to $3.28, and milk increased 80 cents from $3.05 to $3.85. Iverson noted that prices are higher than last year at Iverson's Piggly Wiggly. On average, he said, store prices rose around 20%.

"Our turkey prices this year are, as far as I can tell, the cheapest in the area at 47 cents a pound with a $25 purchase," said Iverson. "Last year, they were 39 cents a pound with a $25 purchase. That is about a 17% increase just on the turkeys."

Traditional sides have also increased at Charlie's County Market. Sufka noted that a bag of potatoes, which cost $1.89 last year, rose 10 cents to $1.99 this Thanksgiving. Additionally, stuffing was a deal at two for $5 last year; this year, the price is two for $6.

"Prices have been going up since earlier in the year," said Sufka. "Everybody is kind of accustomed to (increasing prices)."

Iverson said that reason for the increase in costs across the board is due in large part to the increased costs for transportation and packaging materials.

"Everything has gone up — fuel prices, transportation prices. That is the main reason for these price increases in not just groceries, but everything," said Iverson. "For the average person, you are going to notice more when you are buying groceries and gas; it is something that people deal with on a daily business."

While prices have increased, Iverson said that business has not been too affected. Iverson said that can once again be attributed to staying competitive with prices.

"Piggly Wiggly Midwest, our home base, helps us by doing price checks with our competitors to make sure that in every category, we are matching or beating them on prices," said Iverson.

Iverson added that even though he thought there could be shortages on turkeys, that has not fully been the case and the store has been able to supply almost everyone coming in with the main Thanksgiving dish.

"It has been quite busy," said Iverson. "For the most part, we have gotten all of the turkeys that we have pre-ordered. There has been some shortages, but I thought that it would be worse."

In terms of shortages on food, Sufka said that Charlie's County Market has been lucky in keeping all of the shelves stocked in the store.

"Just prior to COVID-19, we brought in a secondary warehouse, so we are able to go out on the store and have two order guns," said Sufka. "You can really see when there is a shortage in both places."

Sufka added that she has noticed many of the big turkeys in the store being sold first, something that she attributed to people seeking a return to normalcy following the pandemic.

"I feel like the Thanksgiving gatherings might be going back to the bigger gatherings instead of everyone just having small gatherings with only part of their families," said Sufka. "It is just as busy here as last year, maybe even a little more busy. We have a lot of people looking for big birds this year."

Cellcom awards $1,000 to Berry Lake association

Berry Lake Property Owners Association (BLPOA) has been selected to receive a 2022 Cellcom Green Gift in the amount of $1,000 to support water quality monitoring.

The Green Gift from Cellcom will support the purchase of a digital dissolved oxygen meter, which will improve the accuracy of ongoing testing.

"More accurate data will help us better monitor the health of the lake," said Jennifer McDermot, BLPOA aquatic invasive species chairwoman. "New equipment will also allow us to test more often. With an easier testing operation, we will be able to invite lake residents and all members of our local community to see the testing live. During this time, we will be able to teach them why we gather the data and how it informs us on the health of the lake."

Berry Lake is a 209-acre lake located in Menominee and Oconto counties. BLPOA supports ongoing efforts to maintain a healthy lake ecosystem and educating residents on invasive species and water quality. Volunteers monitor water quality as a part of the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Citizen Lake Monitoring Network. This helps the DNR and BPLOA make informed decisions on how to best manage the lake.

A total of 32 green organizations received a share of the $30,527 in Green Gifts from Cellcom this year. The Green Gifts program uses funds generated from Cellcom's cell phone recycling program to fund green non-profit initiatives.

Bonduel pursues grant for EV charger

Shawano looks into adding charging stations around parks, other locations

By KEVIN MURPHY
Correspondent

The village of Bonduel is seeking a $15,000 state energy grant to fund installation of one of the area's first electric vehicle charging stations.

If Bonduel receives the grant, the EV charging station would be located on a village-owned parking lot at the intersection of Green Bay and Cecil streets, said Jesse Rankin, Bonduel's municipal services director.

Bonduel residents probably don't see the need for a charging station at this time, said Rankin, which is why he doesn't want to use taxpayer dollars to fund the project.

Buss Chevrolet-Oldsmobile, of Shawano, would be donating the station, a Level II charger, which are deployed where drivers can charge their vehicles while at work, shopping or dining.

Rory Buss, president of the Buss dealership, said the General Motors

Dealer Community Charging Program is in its infancy and there's more paperwork to do before the stations become operational.

"Besides Bonduel, we're looking at other locations, maybe Charlie's (County Market), maybe the hospital, but nothing's final yet," he said.

GM's program gives three charging stations to each dealer to contribute locally, and up to 40,000 nationwide, to make chargers more accessible and move closer to the goal of zero exhaust emissions.

Shawano City Administrator Eddie Sheppard said that Shawano Municipal Utilities has completed the electrical work and is awaiting the arrival of four chargers to be installed, within a few weeks, near SMU's offices.

"We'd like to be adding more in parking areas and parks," in the future, Sheppard said.

While EVs remain scarce in the area, Shawano's charging stations could be a draw for those driving across the state who could stop, shop and charge up, according to Sheppard.

"Having more stations pop up could encourage others to purchase an electric vehicle," Sheppard added.

Sheppard admits to being a little "out front" of the EV trend in the area but sees car manufacturers pushing them and expects to see many more down the road.

SMU's chargers won't be the quick-charge type, but an hour of charging should get an EV back on the road for a reasonable price billed to a credit card.

The chargers were donated by SMU's wholesale electric supplier, Badger Power Marketing Authority.

In Bonduel, the two-vehicle charging station also should have a positive economic and environmental impact on the community, Rankin said.

"Currently, (the village) doesn't have any electric vehicles and doesn't have any immediate plans to add any, but everybody is trying to reduce the carbon footprint and electric vehicles seem to be the wave of the future," he said.

The village gets a lot of north-south traffic on weekends, and an EV charging station in the center of town should attract those drivers to stop and charge up, "Because the stations will be more scarce further north," Rankin said.

The cost of charging an EV varies. Based on the national average price of electricity at 12.89 cents per kilowatt hour, and if an EV requires 40 kWh to fully recharge its battery, the cost would be $5.16, according to GM.

Applications for the state's Energy Innovation Grant Program are due by Jan. 30, 2023, and grant recipients will be announced sometime later. If Bonduel doesn't receive that grant, Rankin said he will look for other funding sources.

"My goal is to have a charging station here without any expense to the taxpayer," he said.

Board adds behavior support staff position

Members concerned one person may not be enough to deal with students' issues

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Eliminating the dean positions at Shawano's public schools has resulted in an uptick of bad behavior from students, so the Shawano School Board is looking at curbing the problem by hiring a behavioral support employee to work at all four schools.

"We've had some administrative positions removed, and we've been looking at how we can be more proactive in supporting both our teachers and our students when it comes to student behavior," said Kurt Krizan, interim superintendent.

Krizan said the position is considered a teaching position and not administrative. It will be a two-year position paid at about $50,000 annually, and the district plans to use its Elementary and Secondary Schools Emergency Relief funds to cover the position before looking at it and seeing if it's being effective in curbing behavioral problems.

"The idea with deans and assistant principals is more reactive, whereas this would be proactive, working with our students and working with our teachers to look at strategies we can have for some of the more challenging students that we have," Krizan said. "We have some higher needs at certain buildings, so much of the focus would be there, but it's looking at the processes and the systems in place to deal with student behaviors as a district."

Board member Alysia Pillsbury said she doubted the position would only last two years and wanted to know how the district could keep funding it once the ESSER funds expire in 2024. Krizan said that it would depend on whether the state increases its per pupil aid to schools.

Board member Karen Smith was also dubious, but her concerns were about whether the district would be able to find someone who meets the requirements but would only work for $50,000.

"I don't know if this is possible," Smith said. "You're requiring a master's degree and all that experience. I can't see that being effective. I have fears. We need boots on the ground right now in some of our buildings. I don't know that we need another person at the top directing."

Board member Bobbi Lemerond agreed with Smith, noting that one position is not enough and questioning how one person covering four schools could be proactive.

"We need boots on the ground, at Hillcrest (Primary School), in particular," Lemerond said. "The high school definitely needs assistance. We've got kindergartners assaulting teachers, students swearing at lunch staff volunteers. We need some positions that are permanent."

Krizan noted there are still some positions that are not filled, including aides, but he said the district is filling the positions as fast as it is able.

"Would I love to come to you and say that we need one at every building? Absolutely, if that's our need," Krizan said. "I don't know if that's our need, but what I know right now is that we need some additional support."

Board member Mart Grams said there is a need for something stronger, pointing out that his own wife is a teacher in Shawano's public schools and was recently hit by a student.

"Four staff members that week were assaulted by students, and those students are still in this building," Grams said. "If you're going to start controlling bad students, maybe you don't need this stuff. It is out of hand. I come here every day to eat lunch with my wife and there are more kids in the hallway wandering than there are kids in classrooms."

Krizan said that, while there could be more administrators issuing punishment for bad behavior, it's not going to resolve the issue of that behavior repeating itself.

"If we're going to use the same strategies we've used, we're not going to get the results we need," Krizan said. "I'm not saying our teachers aren't doing a great job, but there's more research and more things coming out about the child/adolescent brain and also about social/emotional learning. How do we add those skills for our staff in that proactive away instead of looking at it as someone who comes in after the behavior is done and going to be the hammer on it?"

Menominee, Evers show off their new dual-language signs

Tribe third in the state to receive signs depicting their native tongue

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

Visitors to the Menominee Reservation will be able to not only know where they are due to some new dual-language highway signs, but they'll also know their location in the Menominee language.

The Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin unveiled its new signs Nov. 17 that indicate when someone has entered the reservation and county that makes up most of it, as well as specific community signs for Keshena, Middle Village, Neopit and Zoar. Besides tribal officials, Gov. Tony Evers, Transportation Secretary Craig Thompson and U.S. Federal Highway Administrator Glenn Fulkerson came out to sing the signs' praises.

Menominee Tribal Legislator Joey Awonohopay noted that the tribal elders from long ago had wished for everything to be displayed in the Menominee language, but that language was brought very close to extinction, with only a recent drive to reestablish the language through programs and other aspects prompting the people to embrace their mother tongue.

"It was their (elders) vision to have our signs in our language, our schools that spoke our language, our tribal business run in our language, our tribal departments in the language," Awonohopay said. "These were the visions that we picked up and we carried forward today."

The Menominee are the third tribe in Wisconsin to receive dual-language highway signs. In 2021, the Oneida Nation and the Red Cliff Band of Lake Superior Chippewa install signs on their tribal territory.

Menominee leaders described Evers as a friend of their people, and Evers spoke about how the signs are celebration for the bond shared between tribal officials in Keshena and state officials in Madison.

"First, we're celebrating the government relationship that we share with the Menominee Nation," Evers said. "Also, as governor, I'm committed to upholding tribal sovereignty. That's what we begin with and continue to do with the collaboration and partnership of these signs."

Evers noted the timing of the signs being unveiled in November, which is Native American Heritage Month, gives an opportunity to reflect on the state's history with the tribes.

"It's through these partnerships, folks that we better work together, build stronger communities and support the people that we serve," Evers said. "It is symbolic, but it's not symbolic. It's something that is really important to me ... and I know it's important for the tribal members."

Thompson saw the sign unveiling as an important day in history, acknowledging his longtime friendship with Corn.

"When we have these signs on the roadway, they really give a sense of place," Thompson said. "What better way than through this dual-language sign program that we give a stronger sense of place and of heritage for people to know what they are coming into?"

Menominee Tribal Chairman Ron Corn Sr. noted that Evers' leadership of the state helped to lead to the new signs being part of the reservation's highways. He also said that the tribe's commitment to reclaiming its culture also made an impact.

"For us, it's at the center of how we want to move forward as a people. We want to keep our language. We want to keep our culture at the center of everything we do," Corn said.

Culture and language are the keys to sustainability for the tribe, in Corn's opinion, and having the dual-language signs will move the tribe forward in its own prosperity.

"Sometimes, it feels like it's not fast enough, but we're moving in the right direction," Corn said.

Why I Give Thanks 2022

Local leaders share their thoughts at Thanksgiving

Editor's note:

It is so easy to overlook gratitude.

We are busy. We are distracted, overwhelmed, we have lives to lead, and what should be a routine — taking a moment to appreciate — is easily forgotten.

We set aside a day for thanksgiving, and although it is deeply rooted in our common historical tradition, it has come to mean so much more. We are grateful to our ancestors, and we are grateful to those whose lives have shaped ours, but Thanksgiving Day has become a day to reflect on many aspects of our lives.

For several years, NEW Media has asked community leaders to write a short essay on “Why I Give Thanks.” These essays can be about the Thanksgiving holiday, or what the writer is grateful for, or just the concept of gratitude.

These are personal reflections, but they also speak to issues and beliefs that many of us share. They are as interesting for how they are the same as for how they are different. Some of the authors find them easy to write, others struggle with the pressure of a blank screen, a blank piece of paper, and a looming deadline.

Knowing this, it is especially important for the editorial and advertising team at NEW Media to say “Thank you” to these writers. Thank you for sharing what is important to you. Thank you for being willing to make your feelings public. Thank you for making time to have a portrait taken. Thank you for facing that blank screen or blank piece of paper and writing the first word.

Thank you for showing us, again, how gratitude connects us all.

From everyone at NEW Media, a very happy Thanksgiving to you and yours.

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Grateful for family, country, friends

By GEORGE LENZNER

Recently I was asked to share what I'm thankful for. It caused me to pause and think WOW, I'm thankful for so many things in life.

Let me start with how thankful I am for having amazing parents and grandparents I was blessed with. They raised me and my siblings with strong Christian values and taught me the value of hard work. I could always count on them if I needed anything, and they always had great advice that at times I should have taken more than I did.

I was fortunate to have a son of my own whom I couldn't be prouder of. He followed in my footsteps with a career in law enforcement in which he continues to advance in and is very fulfilled in his career working for the Department of Justice in Madison. He alongside his wife and their four children are the epitome of happiness, and I love watching my grandchildren grow and prosper at so many different things.

I am so thankful for my wife, Brandi. We have been married nine years, and her love and support help me get through even the darkest days. We have two adorable dogs, Pablo Picasso and Molly, that make us laugh and smile every day and lighten our mood when we have hard times, we all endure in life.

I'm grateful for the four years I spent in the United States Air Force. The military taught me to appreciate this country and the veterans who sacrificed and served during times of peace and well as war. Without them we would not have our freedom in this great country that I love.

I have been in law enforcement for 35 years now; I recently ran for sheriff and never imagined the support from friends and family that I received, so many of them sacrificed their time and honestly their lives to help me accomplish my dream of becoming the next sheriff of this wonderful county. I have met so many great people while campaigning, between all the parade and community events. We should all be grateful to live here in this great community.

In closing I hope this article helps others to take a moment out of their hectic lives and reflect on what you are thankful for. God bless!

George Lenzner is chief deputy and sheriff-elect of Shawano County.

After a primary election in August, George Lenzner was unopposed on the November ballot and will be the next Shawano County sheriff.

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Thankful for family and the good in people

By JODY HAMMOND

My very first thought that comes to mind when asked “Why I Give Thanks” is to express appreciation for the life I have been given and the people in it. Having been raised in a Christian family home and grown up with love and kindness, I learned early on to appreciate the little things in life, be thankful for what I have, don’t take things for granted, and be caring and thoughtful to others.

To achieve success, you must work hard and do your best. Sometimes acceptance of how or why things happen in life can be very challenging, but remembering who you are as a person, how you react to the situation, and how you share your actions and words with others directly reflects on your own self goodness and gratitude. Having an open mind, respecting others’ beliefs and opinions, makes one appreciate the individualism that makes us all unique.

I am honored by people accepting who I am as a person and humbled to be singled out. It would be very lonely going through life without family, friends, neighbors, co-workers, and acquaintances and I feel that the people that have surrounded me in my life’s journey, helped mold me into the person I am today. Without all of them, I would stand alone, and unfortunately some individuals do by no choice of their own.

It is truly a heartbreaking experience when you see others struggle with daily living. This touches my heart greatly and makes me stop and think what all I have to be thankful for, and how one act of kindness can make such a difference in the lives of others. My entire career and experiences along the way has always led me down the path of helping others and taking pride in acknowledging the wonderful people I have had the privilege of working with. I would never ask someone to do something that I wouldn’t do myself. I do not believe you can ever share enough praise, whether it be to your work team, family members, customer service personnel, or anyone else you encounter on a regular basis. I am a Shawano native and proud to be a member of our community.

I am truly grateful for the wonderful family that I am blessed to have, my spouse, daughters, sons-in-law, in-laws, and my 3 beautiful granddaughters, my extended relatives, friends, and my work families, both past and present. They all help to inspire, encourage, and motivate me to be the best person I can be. Thank you!

Honestly, I am not sure how I feel about my personal reflection being shared publicly but coming from a person who tries to be positive, acknowledge and recognize the goodness in people, stay neutral and non-judgmental, I hope my words will inspire others in the many opportunities available that one can “give back.” So, the next time you see someone in need, ask yourself, how can I lend a helping hand? Personally, it is a wonderful feeling, and it will warm your heart!

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Thankful for a rich and vibrant culture

By CHRISTOPHER M. CALDWELL

Wāēwāēnen

It is to the Creator I give thanks.
It is to our ancestor's leadership and vision that I give thanks.

It is to today's leaders that I give thanks.

It is to the forest that I give thanks.

It is to my family that I give thanks.

It is to all my relations that I give thanks.

It is for the ability to serve that I give thanks.

In the Menominee language, wāēwāēnen is one way to say thank you. Even though I know so little of my people's language, I speak and write as much as I can throughout my day at work and at home. Sometimes when I struggle to understand what others say to me in the language, I feel a little sad. I wish I knew more. I wish I visited and listened to my elders more. I wish the boarding schools and assimilation efforts had never existed. On and on my mind goes.

But, then I stop and think, the word wāēwāēnen is a simple reminder of all our leaders did do to protect what we have today. We are still connected to the lands of our ancestors. We are connected to our forest, our language, and our culture. We are able to serve our families, our communities, and all of our relations. We are able to share knowledge as part of solutions that address global issues. Wāēwāēnen is a simple reminder that the Menominee language has been spoken across our lands since time immemorial through times of great uncertainty. That one word also reminds me to be grateful for the opportunities we have today to be good ancestors for future generations.

In my work at the College of Menominee Nation, I am privileged to be a part of helping our tribal land-grant institution serve the Menominee people and all those who wish to come learn with us. Yet, there are many others in our community focused on revitalizing the Menominee language. Community grassroots organizations like MenominiYou and Menikēnaehkem, tribal government programs such as the Menominee Language and Culture Commission, Menominee Tribal Historic Preservation Department, as well as the Menominee Indian School District. But, just as important are the many individuals who continue to practice and share language and culture with others as a way of life. This collective effort is what will move our language from endangered status to being the vibrant foundational part of our community life. Thinking about all of this work is a way to truly be thankful and say wāēwāēnen.

Yet, in thinking about all of this, I find one more important thing to remember is that saying wāēwāēnen is not just a Menominee way but can be found in the languages and cultures from across this world. If we were all able to focus on remembering and doing, that would be truly something to give thanks to.

Eneq (that is all).

Christopher M. Caldwell is president of the College of Menominee Nation.

Christopher M. Caldwell is the fourth person to serve as president of the College of Menominee Nation since its inception in 1993.

WHY I GIVE THANKS

We live in such a wonderful part of the world

By SAMANTHA BOUCHER

Ten years ago, when I became the tourism director for Oconto County, I took on a huge responsibility. Oconto County offers some of the best vacation experiences in the Midwest. Suddenly, I was in charge of telling about these experiences and supporting the people who made them happen. I knew I couldn't go at it alone. So, when NEW Media asked me to explain why I give thanks, I immediately thought of everyone who makes my job promoting Oconto County so easy.

I'm especially thankful for my family and friends who go along with my crazy ideas and jump in with two feet to volunteer with community projects. Winter Wonderland in Oconto is a great example. You need a lot of volunteers and a lot of hours to set up all of the holiday lights. I don't think people realize how much work goes into a light display like Winter Wonderland or the Avenue of Lights (the Oconto Falls Christmas display organized by the Lioness Club). One day alone is spent just laying down extension cords! What really surprises me about these volunteers is their smiles. They're so happy to participate and generously give of their time for the betterment of others, not themselves.

I'm so grateful to all of the civic organizations that organize community events like Winter Wonderland, Avenue of Lights, Fourth of July celebrations, the Oconto County Fair, Oconto Fly-in, Breakfast on the Farm, Lena Dairyfest, and so many other festivals and events. These celebrations truly inspire a sense of community pride and community spirit, bringing together local residents and visitors as well. I encourage you to get involved in your local civic organization, because a couple of hours

For the last 10 years, Samantha Boucher has helped guide the effort to welcome visitors to Oconto County.

volunteering goes a long way.

Tourism is a $123 million industry in Oconto County, and these events contribute to that number. Festivals, craft fairs, farmers markets, and other events are so important to the local economy.

I'm also grateful for the volunteer organizations that support and maintain our wonderful trail systems and natural resources. Visitors love spending time in Oconto County because it's their ticket to the great outdoors. Guests come here to camp, hunt, fish, snowmobile, take ATV and horseback rides, ski, kayak, and hike. Our trails and waterways are well-used. The Chequamegon-Nicolet National Forest in northern Oconto County is a fantastic scenic playground year-round. I'm grateful to all of the businesses and local residents that welcome guests and help them enjoy the Northwoods to its fullest.

The Oconto County Economic Development Corp. wholeheartedly supports the tourism industry and the business community in Oconto County. In addition to promoting Oconto County near and far, we help local small businesses start, expand, and transition their companies. For example, we help business owners apply for grants and microloans to buy equipment and inventory or renovate their facilities.

The Main Street BounceBack Grant is a great example. These grants are available until Dec. 31 as part of the American Recovery Plan Act, also known as the COVID-19 stimulus package. Numerous businesses in Oconto County opened new locations or expanded operations with the help of this grant. Recipients use the grants to pay leases, mortgages, business costs, and operational expenses. Research shows that everyone benefits from a strong local economy, higher property values, and a better-skilled workforce. For me, watching local businesses open, grow, and thrive is so rewarding. I'm grateful to all of the companies that make their home in Oconto County.

But enough about work!

I'm also grateful to my family – my husband, Dustin, and son, Bodhi, who are always there for me. I'm thankful for my parents, Clark and Julie Routheau, who always encourage me and guide me in the right direction.

This Thanksgiving, I'll be spending time with my family around a traditional Thanksgiving dinner at Grandma June's house in Oconto. It's just where I want to be on this special holiday.

From the Routheau and Boucher families and all of us at Oconto County Economic Development Corp., I want to wish you and your loved ones a Happy Thanksgiving.

Samantha Boucher is the tourism director for the Oconto County Economic Development Corp.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING FROM YOUR FRIENDS AT 22 SHELL!

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Life in Wisconsin leaves much to be thankful for

By LUKE REIMER

Going from growing up in De Pere, to attending college in La Crosse, to landing a job in Shawano, to now living in Green Bay, has predominately shaped who I am as a person.

I, personally, am most thankful for my time growing, learning and becoming an adult in Wisconsin. Winters might be cold, summers might be short and mosquitoes may take over any vacation, but one thing that stands above all that is the people. Wisconsin has shown me that no matter who you are — whether it be a different race, gender, ethnicity, age, income level, have different political ideologies, or even just have different interests — we can all enjoy a cold beer or hot chocolate together like we are brother or sister. Growing up, my parents instilled in me to accept others for who they are, and so far in my short adult life, I have made so many friends, that seven years ago, I probably wouldn't have thought of introducing myself to, due to different interests. Living in Wisconsin, where everybody wants to go out for a fish fry and an old-fashioned, makes it that much easier to do so.

I think that is proven best at Green Bay Packers games. Even if you don't have tickets to the game, I implore everybody to tailgate before a game. Everyone hosting a tailgate will be more than happy to grill you a hot dog or offer a beer, but what makes it Wisconsin is that those same people will make you feel like family. In the maybe 10 minutes that you stay at each tailgate, you will know someone's whole family heritage. That speaks to who the people of Wisconsin are — something that I am incredibly thankful for. Minimal drama, minimal fighting, but maximum amounts of friends, family and laughs.

I know that I am only 24 years old, but living in Wisconsin has given me more than I could have imagined so far in my life. I have interviewed hall of fame boxer Virgil Hill, seen Sir Paul McCartney in concert and met my childhood hero, Aaron Rodgers. Bigger than that, Wisconsin has given me a college degree, a professional job and the start to the rest of my life.

It would be negligent of me too if I didn't talk about my parents here. My dad, Mike, and my mom, Beth, have been the two strongest support pieces on my journey. With both of them being social workers, they have taught me a number of life lessons that nobody else will understand, because they have seen the worst of the worst. I am at the Shawano Leader today, because my father had inquired about the open position here for me. I was able to apply for and be accepted to college, mostly due to my mom constantly asking me if I filled out applications or scholarships. For every thing that I have seen and experienced, my parents have done all they can to put me in the right position to do so, which is something that I will always be thankful for.

Finally, I am thankful to be able to serve the residents of Shawano, Oconto and Menominee counties and provide them with the news that is happening around them. I started here in March 2021, during a pandemic, and the reception and support that I received from each municipality in those three counties has been overwhelming. I know that I have already made some lifelong friends, and I cannot wait to see what the future holds here.

With an incredible mixture of family, friends, supporters and anyone else who has taken time out of their life to get me here, I thank you. God Bless and Go Pack!

WHY I GIVE THANKS

Past years have brought many blessings

By BRUCE MILAVITZ

As I reflect on the past year and years of my life, these are some of the things I am thankful for:

My continued health especially since I had battled prostate cancer, and through the grace of God and the help of alternative treatments, I have beat it.

I am thankful for my family, for my loving wife, Charlene, of over 30 years; she is my soulmate, my business partner and the glue that holds our family together.

I am thankful that I was blessed with five wonderful, healthy, productive children, and through those children our family thus far has grown to include four healthy, fun, rambunctious grandchildren who I absolutely adore.

I am thankful for the relationship I have with God and His guidance in my life.

I am thankful for a successful business for over 25 years in Shawano, first starting out as Tires Plus then with a name change to American Car Center. I am thankful that with months of prayer, when we had the opportunity to sell, we were at peace with that decision and still are.

I am thankful that we still have a successful towing business and for the past year our son Aaron, mostly runs it and will soon take over.

I am also thankful that I was able to take flying lessons and become a pilot while still a business owner of American Car Care Center and for the past year I have been flying an air ambulance, helping patients in need.

I am thankful that selling our business gave me the opportunity to run for and become the mayor of Shawano, which opened my eyes even more to all the great things about Shawano. I'm thankful to live in such a grateful and kind community, and as your mayor I will strive for continued forward progress of our city.

Bruce Milavitz is the mayor of Shawano.

GUEST COLUMN

Let's allow children to be whole selves

I am a Vietnamese American educator, and I want you to know that, every day, you are empowered to be fascinated by the prior experiences and knowledge that all of our students, educators and families bring to us. Sharing stories provides space for us to connect with one another and helps build authentic relationships.

In any profession (and especially in education), it is important that we think through our “why” — the reason we do the work we do — and that we share our story with each other. By doing so, we strengthen our understanding of each other's perspectives and the experiences and strengths each of us bring to the table. My personal story and experiences growing up helped shape me and the work I do for Wisconsin students.

My family left Vietnam as refugees in the 1980s because we did not believe in the political construct that ultimately took over. It took us four attempts to flee Vietnam to finally be united as a full family of 11 in America.

As all our educators want to do right by each of our students, our schools and districts are continuing to dig deeper into understanding and supporting different marginalized subgroups. Growing up, I fell into many of these — low socio-economic status, language learner and Asian.

In elementary school, I learned early on that my family struggled with access to food.

I still remember being handed the bright orange lunch tickets to let our food service staff know I needed to be accounted differently for lunch. The awareness at 5 years old that my family and I were not worthy of food, that I had to be treated differently, is steeped in my identity.

At the same time in elementary school, it was decided that I was unable to speak English proficiently. Because of that, I was sent to a separate classroom and was tasked with playing a computer game to help me learn. Instead of using my knowledge to think critically like other students in my class, I was isolated and spent some of my days deciding if I wanted to eat the virtual fish, ignore the bait or escape from predators.

As one of the only Vietnamese students in school, it was clear to me that I was different, and for me to fit in, I had to act and be someone else. In this case, I assimilated to a point where I was embarrassed of who I really was and where I came from.

Years later, I look back and have so many questions.

What if I had educators who acknowledged my prior experiences and background and saw them as my strengths to then build upon?

What if we develop the capacity for compassion — to see the good in each other? To notice the fact that having food is a basic need for all children? To see that our children do not come to us broken; they are whole. They come to us with prior experiences and knowledge to be valued and acknowledged.

What if my educators recognized that my understanding of language was higher than my ability to speak? What if I had the chance to be with my peers, in the classroom, to feel connected, to be visible and to know that my story was worthy of inclusion?

What if I could be my whole self? Not ashamed of my genesis story; instead, proud knowing that it is the counter story that supports the work of wanting all humans to flourish.

It wasn't until I had the opportunity to be with people who believed in me, people who were fascinated by me, that I could start to put my compelling “why” I am in education into words. As an assistant state superintendent at the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, I want to give every child a voice, so they do not end up being adults without one, or who don't recognize their own. I encourage all of us to know our own stories and find ways to engage in storytelling and “story listening.”

As an American educator and Wisconsin's first Southeast Asian assistant state superintendent, please join me in lifting our students' lived experiences, so we can start to appreciate and allow them to be their whole selves. This will go a long way toward becoming the lifelong learners that we need to be.

Our amazing educators have a deep respect for our students. Let's lean into our curiosity and fascination with others by taking the time to slow down and truly know who is in our school communities. I firmly believe that hearing their stories and learning from one another will help every student flourish; in turn, our educators will continue to thrive and be inspired to persist in the incredible work they do.

Duy Nguyen is the assistant state superintendent of public instruction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Enough with the dark money ad campaigns

To the editor:

On Nov. 8, the Town of Bartelme in northwest Shawano County held a referendum to weigh in on the Wisconsin United to Amend question calling for a U.S. Constitutional Amendment to once and for all disallow corporations, unions, Super PACs and others from making unlimited contributions to political campaigns.

The same question has been posed 167 times previously in WIUTA referendums and resolutions in Wisconsin. It passed with an 88.8% approval in Bartelme, giving the WIUTA initiative a 168 wins, zero losses record in the state, and now represents over half the state population on the issue.

Ironically, the midterm elections also set a record for campaign spending totaling $16.7 billion nationwide. That's more money than any previous election in world history, including every previous presidential election. The most amazing thing? With few exceptions, all that money simply maintained the status quo by returning incumbents to their preordained gerrymandered outcomes.

The Wisconsin United to Amend effort, like the other 22 states that have already called for the constitutional amendment, compares its nonprofit grassroots bottom-up populist effort to the ground swell for women's suffrage that occurred in the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Women's suffrage in America began in Seneca Falls, New York, July 1848. It took 70-plus years to come to fruition with the passage of the 19th Amendment in 1919. The 19th Amendment is 39 words long and takes less than a minute to read. It took over 70 years to simply agree that women get to vote, same as men. When viewed from today's perspective, it's hard to comprehend why or how it could take so long to pass such a basic, fundamental right.

With the unprecedented record-breaking spending spree that each new election cycle digresses into — complete with non-stop, back-to-back, fact-check-immune negative ads sponsored by dark money Super PACs — it's impossible to fathom what our elections will look like in another decade or two, let alone 70 years and whether our citizens can or will be able to make wise choices through the thickening smoke screens, distracting noises and intentional disinformation.

The vast majority of people agree with the voters in Bartelme. It's really just a matter of getting our elected officials to agree with us — to forsake the allure of special-interest money and all the strings that come entangled with it — strings that profit them, always at our expense.

Steve Parks, Bowler

BOOKS AND STUFF

CeeCee James' book club to the rescue

Well, I did it again. I grabbed book two instead of book one when I selected "Pawsibly Guilty: A Secret Library Cozy Mystery" by CeeCee James.

Young Laura Lee has taken a housekeeping job in the foreboding Thornberry mansion. The house is massive and includes many hidden passageways and rooms. When Mr. Thornberry passed away his widow, Miss Janice told the staff to destroy his large collection of books. Knowing that some were very valuable, they chose to take them to one of the hidden rooms where they gather for their 'book club' meetings. After a long day of work, the group reads and discusses books.

Not long ago, their sharp minds combined to solve a nearby murder, and they enjoy the challenge. This evening the group had spent a chaotic night serving a dinner party where guests arrived and stepped out at odd times. Even the usually reliable grandfather clock was off by 20 minutes.

The exhausted group has just settled in for a meeting when Butler bursts in saying that Andy Fitzwater had just dropped dead in the cigar room. The head housekeeper, Marguerite, takes charge until the police arrive and declare the death a murder.

JAN JONES

Keen investigators Laura Lee and the rest of the staff look for anything that might identify the killer. Those in the room when Andy died include their neighbor, Andy's aunt, Ms. Fitzwater, Reverend Bay, Andy's friend Austin Danver, a businessman, and a politician. Now all are suspects.

When Marguerite takes Laura Lee to the cigar room to get a bottle of brandy and check the body, they find the resident marmalade cat Hank. He has managed to sneak into the room through another unknown passage. Hank sniffs the body and doesn't like what he smells.

When Laura Lee is summoned to Ms. Fitzwater's mansion, she learns that Ms. Fitzwater wants to hire the 'book club' to find Andy's killer. She explains that Andy was a charming crook who robbed people with investment schemes, scammed and discarded several women and ruined lives in the process.

Ms. Fitzwater isn't surprised he was killed but is eager to prevent a scandal. The book club must squeeze their investigation in between their many duties at Thornberry but work together to do both. Andy was poisoned by inhaling a common, but lethal garden chemical. It must have been on the tip of his cigar or on the fancy cutter he used.

The list of Andy's enemies is long, and all had motives but who had opportunity and means? Each of the dinner guests is checked out and slowly eliminated from the suspect list. They may have reason to hate Andy, but not enough to murder him.

Laura Lee follows a previously unknown secret passage and finds a small room, some boots and recent tracks on the damp floor. Mr. Thornberry showed Andy the secret entries, did Andy show someone else? Did that person slip in to poison him?

When Miss Janice decides to hold a masked ball, the serving staff must wear black dresses. Since Laura Lee has none, she is given two dresses and sent to Andy's tailor for alterations. While there she gets information on Andy that helps to point the book club toward a real suspect. During the masked ball Laura Lee puts it all together.

The book club has prevailed again, and Thornberry mansion is peaceful for the moment.

A secret room would be handy when you want to 'just hide out and read' but sometimes we struggle to find someplace quiet. If you can find the place your public library can supply the books. This would be a good week to go in and check it out.

Support, achievement comes in many forms

Over the past week, we have observed an absolutely amazing outpouring of community support!

As I write this newsletter in early November, our varsity volleyball team is headed to Green Bay in preparation for their semifinal contest against Howards Grove at the Resch Center. Regardless of the outcome, my point is, the energy, excitement and support our parents, friends and community members have provided has been completely astounding.

Support comes in many forms. And for however each of you have provided this, we are grateful and appreciative.

I would be remiss to not acknowledge the success that has come in many forms as well by our students at all grade levels.

Athletic achievement is but only one example of a stage where demonstrating excellence is apparent.

Over the past couple weeks, I have been a part of many conversations where attention to excellence in the form of individual achievement through sport, academics and the arts has been emphasized. Regardless of individual interests and one's pursuit of positive outcomes, our students' hard work and attention to detail in their respective endeavors will continue to benefit them in the game of life.

And the great news is, we continue to see here in our very own district performance that exhibits students achieving personal and team goals, staff working hard to foster an environment where they are able to grow academically and personally, and a community that values the experience and journey our students are taking.

Thank you for your continued support! It has been an exciting place to be and we look forward to continued success and examples of personal and collective achievement as we move into the second trimester of the 2022-23 school year.

Garrett Rogowski is superintendent for the Wittenberg-Birnbaum School District.

SMU seeks larger, more modern facility

This is how the exterior of the proposed Shawano Municipal Utilities building is expected to look once it's complete.

CONTRIBUTED

State approval needed to construct new $12.6M building

By KEVIN MURPHY
Correspondent

Shawano Municipal Utilities has outgrown its service center and wants to replace it with larger modern facility.

"I've been here 18 years," said Rob Koepp, electrical supervisor and engineer, "and we've talked about (a new building) on and off that whole time."

A 2017 space study concluded that new construction and not remodeling would be best option to provide SMU with more functional and efficient facilities.

This week, SMU submitted plans to the Wisconsin Public Service Commission seeking authorization to construct the estimated $12.6 million project.

PSC approval would mean demolition of the 21,000-square-foot structure at 122 N. Sawyer St. and 213 E. Green Bay St. and then construction of a 29,000-square-foot replacement building.

Although SMU has acquired adjacent properties over the years, its 2.45-acre site isn't large enough to accommodate both buildings simultaneously. So, SMU would set up temporary offices in town while the new building is built, Koepp said.

A site won't be selected for the temporary offices until the PSC's four-to-six-month approval process is closer to completion.

SMU has two sheds off Fifth Street where the equipment and materials would be stored and the crew would work out of, Koepp said.

SMU has committed to remaining downtown to support revitalization of the underused East Green Bay Street corridor. No similar sized site is available downtown, and the nearest acceptable site would likely be several miles from the center of the city. That wouldn't be convenient to the hundreds of customer visits that occur monthly, according to SMU's construction application submitted to the PSC.

"Also, relocation would likely result in leaving a vacant brownfield site for a new greenfield development, which is not an environmentally positive outcome," according to the application.

The building was constructed in the 1930s as a fire station and public works shops. SMU moved in in the 1980s and expanded the structure to its current size.

The service center is showing its age with roofs, windows, doors and pavement in need of replacement in order to continue to use the building.

Public offices are on the second floor, which isn't considered a desirable location. Also, the building was remodeled without present-day concerns for employee security, Koepp said.

"We haven't had any issues, but we do make people mad when their service is disconnected and we get some disgruntled people here," he said.

The employee kitchen is the only area large enough to accommodate SMU Commission meetings, and there isn't an area large enough to hold all the staff for training sessions. Employee bathrooms also require extensive remodeling, according to the application.

Field staff locker room, restroom, and break rooms were always cramped for space.

SMU's vehicle fleet has outgrown its current facilities, requiring many "front line" trucks, trailers and materials to be stored outdoors.

The new service center would provide space for indoor vehicle storage and adequate accommodations for employee and public needs.

A rooftop solar array is in the plans as well as a geothermal heating system with some lines extending 150 feet deep to heat and cool the offices.

Aesthetic landscaping and improved storm water management for the site are also in the plans.

Miron Construction estimated the building's cost at $12.6 million but the actual price won't be known until the project is bid, Koepp said.

Construction would be financed by utility revenue bonds which would be paid off by a 5.35% increase in rates, according to an estimate calculated by SMU Manager Brian Knapp.

SMU currently has an electric rate increase before the PSC. Financing the building project would be addressed in a subsequent rate case, probably within two or three years, Koepp said.

The project's timetable tentatively calls for construction to begin next year and occupancy about 18 months later.

The modern facilities are expected to be appreciated by the employees and public, Koepp said.

"We haven't had much trouble retaining office staff ... with many being here for several years. Our turnover comes in the line department. The vehicles they work out of are newer but our facilities, especially downstairs, are bad. Anything we can do to make them feel that this is a good place to work helps our retention rate," Koepp said.

Shawano council approves 2023 budget

The Shawano Common Council approved a budget of almost $14.3 million on Nov. 16.

The city tax rate is going from $9.90 per $1,000 of assessed valuation this year to $10.67, which means the owner of a $100,000 property can expect to pay $1,067 in city taxes alone.

However, a steep drop in the tax rate for Shawano School District has positioned city property owners to pay $2,339.80 on that same $100,000 property in 2023 when the tax impact in 2022 was $2,362.53.

NOTICE OF SNOW AND ICE REMOVAL VILLAGE OF WITTENBERG

MUNICIPAL CODE 8.05 SNOW AND ICE REMOVAL. (1) SIDEWALKS TO BE KEPT CLEAR. The owner, occupant or person in charge of each and every building or structure or unoccupied lot in the Village fronting or abutting any street shall clean, or cause to be cleaned, the sidewalk in front of or adjoining each such building or unoccupied lot of snow or ice to the width of such sidewalk and to the street surface within 24 hours after the cessation of a snowstorm. When the ice has formed on any sidewalk so that it cannot be immediately removed, the persons herein referred to shall keep the same sprinkled with salt, ashes, sawdust or sand. (2) DEPOSIT IN STREET PROHIBITED. No person shall deposit, or cause to be deposited, any snow or ice taken and removed from his premises or elsewhere upon any sidewalk, alley, parkway, public place or street in the Village. Snow shall not be piled at or near intersections so as to obstruct the view of pedestrians or operators of motor vehicles. (3) REMOVAL BY VILLAGE. The failure to remove or the deposit of any snow or ice upon any sidewalk, alley or street of the Village contrary to the provisions of this section shall be and is declared to be a nuisance and, in addition to the penalty provided for violation of this section, the Village may summarily remove any snow so deposited and cause the cost of said removal to be charged to the owner of the property from which said snow or ice has been removed. If not paid within 30 days, such charge shall be extended upon the current or next tax roll as a charge for current services, as provided in §66.0627, Wis. Stats.

Oconto Falls opens season with home win

Panthers hold off late charge by Eagles

By MORGAN RODE

The Oconto Falls girls basketball team opened the winter season by taking down Menominee Indian 46-39 on Nov. 17 in Oconto Falls.

Oconto Falls built a big lead in the first half behind some strong 3-point shooting before needing to hold off a valiant Menominee Indian comeback effort in the final half.

"It's crazy, senior season, me and Kate (Pytleski) are definitely really excited and we really love our teammates so it feels really good to start the season with a win," said Oconto Falls' Ashlyn Allen.

Fittingly, it was the two seniors that got Oconto Falls going in the first half. Pytleski converted a contested shot near the rim on the team's opening possession, and then Allen knocked in a 3-pointer to put the hosts up 5-0.

Menominee Indian's first basket was a 3-pointer from Mariah Fish, making it 5-3 briefly before Oconto Falls took over. The Panthers scored the next 12 points.

The run began with a pair of free throws from Morgan Moynihan before Allen and Pytleski hit 3-pointers. Madeline Maloney joined the scoring parade with a bucket before Bailee Gorman capped the big spurt with a bucket.

A 3-pointer from Menominee Indian's Kaysha Wilber put a halt to the run, but Oconto Falls then then went on an 11-1 run to push the lead to 21, 28-7.

Amber Otto scored five points, including another 3-pointer, to lead the Panthers on that spurt. Gorman, Moynihan and Allen all chipped in a bucket.

Menominee Indian settled in during the last four minutes of the half, with a 3-pointer from Anisa Peters stopping the run before Wilber hit another shot. Oconto Falls still led 32-13 at the break and seemed in complete control.

After dealing with some foul trouble in the opening half, Allen was tagged for her fourth foul early in the second half.

A couple free throws and 3-pointer from Peters got Menominee Indian within 14 points, but a triple from Gorman and baskets from Maloney and Pytleski put the hosts back up 19 again.

After a timeout with 12:03 to play, Menominee Indian started applying some full-court pressure. The pressure got to Oconto Falls, leading to more turnovers than attempted shots over the next several minutes. During that stretch, the Eagles slowly crept back into the game.

Fish and Natalie Peters converted shots to start an 8-0 run from the visitors. Emma Komanekin later hit a shot, and Fish and Wilber made a free throw each to cap the run.

"I feel like Menominee has a big thing of like being a second half team," said Wilber. "We don't start out too good but the next half we're pretty good. We just cut it a little short every time."

Oconto Falls' Hannah Ludemann connected on a key 3-pointer to stop the Eagles' run and the Panthers' long scoring drought, but Wilber answered with a basket and then hit another shot to get the deficit down to 10, 42-32.

Maloney had the game's next basket, but Menominee Indian still didn't back down. A triple from Wilber made it a nine-point game with just under four minutes to play. A free throw from Otto was answered by two free throws from Fish with exactly three minutes left.

Oconto Falls was able to hold on for the win by holding Menominee Indian scoreless until the last final seconds of the contest.

Pytleski thought the Panthers got overconfident after going up big and then started to make mistakes as a result. "But we finished strong, so it was a good first game."

The senior added that as the young, inexperienced group of players get more familiar with the varsity level of play, that the team will respond better to pressure. "We have to be more confident with the ball. Who wants it more, pretty much."

While the comeback effort fell short, Menominee Indian was pleased with its finish to the contest and anticipate better results going forward.

"It's really nice to see because I feel like we have a good season in store for us coming ahead — because most of our varsity is full of young girls and we can tell the heart they already have and all of the energy they're giving us this early on," said Fish on the team's strong second half.

Menominee Indian 13 26 — 39

Oconto Falls 32 14 — 46

Oconto Falls (46): Hannah Ludemann 0-0 3, Ashlyn Allen 0-0 8, Kyndra Staidl 1-4 1, Morgan Moynihan 2-2 4, Bailee Gorman 0-2 7, Amber Otto 1-4 8, Madeline Maloney 0-1 8, Kate Pytleski 0-0 7.

Menominee Indian (39): Anisa Peters 0-2 6, Kaysha Wilber 3-6 17, Mariah Fish 5-8 10, Emma Komanekin 0-0 4, Natalie Peters 0-0 2.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

8 Hawks make all-conference lists

Henning the Bay's top receiver

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Shawano Community High School football team had eight players make all-conference teams after helping the team to a 3-4 finish in the Bay Conference this fall.

Senior Ashton Henning earned the highest honor after being tabbed the conference's Wide Receiver of the Year. He made the first team unanimously as a receiver and also earned a second team honor on defense for his play as an outside linebacker.

"It meant a lot to me, especially with having my surgery and not knowing how many games I was going to be able to play," said Henning of his honors. "So the help from my coaches and teammates played a big role into me accomplishing what I did and I couldn't be more happy."

Henning hauled in 32 receptions for 755 yards and 11 touchdowns in just six games. He also carried the ball seven times for 59 yards and an additional score.

Sophomore Jerzy Brocker earned double first team honors for the Hawks. He unanimously made the first team for his play as a defensive back and also was honored as a flex player on offense — he served as the team's quarterback most of the season.

Brocker completed 118 passes for 1,683 yards and 22 touchdowns. He also led the team with 573 rushing yards and five scores. On defense, he picked off three passes, had one fumble recovery and took three of those takeaways back for scores.

"First of all, I would like to thank all the seniors for what they did and I couldn't have done it without them," said Brocker. "At the start of the season I just wanted to get on the field and help the team out as much as I could. When our QB went down, I knew I had to step up and this was my chance, the team really helped me out and was willing to accept my mistakes early on."

"Earning the two all-conference spots meant a lot to me and is one of my biggest accomplishments of my young sports career. After our playoff loss to Mosinee, it really sunk in and I didn't want it to end that way. That game really motivates me and it will for next season as well."

Sophomore Logan Sipple was a unanimous selection to the first team for his play as a wide receiver.

He caught 30 passes for 388 yards and four scores. Sipple also returned a kickoff for a touchdown this fall.

"It means a lot to me, especially being my first year playing wide receiver. It feels good to know that work is paying off," said Sipple. "Receiving a first team award will push me even harder for the next couple of seasons. It definitely motivates me to keep pushing hard during the offseason and working for the next year."

Senior Brady Glysch was another unanimous first teamer, making the list as an offensive lineman.

Glysch helped the Shawano offense throw for 1,935 yards and rush for an additional 884 yards. The Hawks scored the second-most points in the Bay.

"It means a lot. One of my goals going into this year was to be named first team all-conference, and the fact that every coach in the conference voted for me makes me feel proud of how my senior season went," said Glysch.

Senior Michael Metcalf-Grassman joined Brocker on the all-conference first team defensive list. Metcalf-Grassman made it as an inside linebacker.

The senior picked off two passes and returned one for a touchdown.

Metcalf-Grassman made the second team as a wide receiver. He caught 21 passes for 266 yards and six scores. The senior also rushed for over 100 yards and threw for 252 yards and two scores after starting the year as the team's quarterback.

"It means a lot. It was a goal of mine to win all-conference awards both ways my senior year," said Metcalf-Grassman. "I could not have done it without the help of my teammates and coaching staff."

Senior Jacob Landon was a second team selection as a tight end. Landon hauled in a team-leading 45 receptions for 444 yards and three scores.

Senior Deacon Carroll made the honorable mention list after helping Glysch fill out the offensive line.

Senior Owen Curran was also an honorable mention pick, making it as a defensive back. He led the team with four interceptions.

Senior will wrestle in Minnesota in future

By MORGAN RODE

Shawano Community High School senior Caden Young took the next step in his wrestling career after signing a letter of intent to Southwest Minnesota State University.

Young signed the letter of intent in front of family, coaches, teammates and friends inside the high school on Nov. 17.

"It means a lot. I've been working for this for probably 13-ish years, or whenever I started wrestling," said Young of signing. "Just very happy to finally find a home where I can continue on."

Young's wrestling career at the high school level has been a unique one, as he began wrestling at Clintonville before transferring to Shawano as a sophomore.

"It means a lot. I've been working for this for probably 13-ish years, or whenever I started wrestling. Just very happy to finally find a home where I can continue on."

"I came here to just continue on and improve my skills, but I didn't know that many people in Shawano," said Young. "Thank you to the wrestling team, they really helped me just transition in — they're my best buds here. Of course, I have my Clintonville boys, and they've always supported me throughout life and not just wrestling."

Before Young signed, Shawano wrestling coach Mike Homan helped introduce the senior wrestler, listing off some of his accomplishments to this point of his life.

Young has made an all-conference first team three times, never losing a conference match. He's also won a pair of regional titles and a sectional title, and qualified for the Division 1 state meet at 170 pounds last winter.

Young is also an All-American, has won 10 high school tournaments and is an Academic All-American.

"His attention to detail in wrestling and in the school environment will be a great addition to the Mustangs of Southwest Minnesota State University," said Homan.

Young then thanked all the people that came to watch him sign, which included some of his Clintonville friends.

After signing, Young exclaimed: "Roll 'Stangs," before soaking in the minute with some pictures.

Young said he didn't receive "that much interest" because of some injuries he's dealt with in high school.

He filled out an online questionnaire to Southwest Minnesota State before getting in contact with the coach. After taking a visit, Young liked what he saw and decided to call that home after high school.

Having signed before the season has gotten underway, Young now has the opportunity to show everyone why he's getting a scholarship to wrestle at the next level.

"This year, it's state title," said Young on any goals for his final high school season. "That's been my goal all four years, that's what I'm shooting for and I'm really prepared to do that this year."

Southwest Minnesota State is a Division II wrestling program that competes in the Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference.

10 Witt-Birn players honored for CWC-Large play

Gauderman tabbed as Co-Offensive Player of the Year

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School football team had 10 players earn spots on Central Wisconsin Conference-Large Division teams after strong fall seasons.

Six of the players recognized earned double honors after Witt-Birn went 5-2 in conference play (officially 6-1 after a forfeit win over Amherst).

Senior David Gauderman earned the highest honor of the Chargers after being tabbed the Co-Offensive Player of the Year. He was honored for his play as a running back.

Gauderman also made the first team as a linebacker on defense.

The senior rushed for 1,168 yards and 10 touchdowns in seven conference games. Gauderman also caught 11 passes for 152 yards and three more scores.

Defensively, Gauderman finished with a team-leading 77 total tackles, with 19 going for losses. He also had 6½ sacks, two forced fumbles and a fumble recovery.

"It means a lot, I think I came a long way throughout my high school football career," said Gauderman. "From playing o-line and d-line to being first team running back and first team linebacker just puts a smile on my face, seeing how far I've come over the last four years means a lot to me. All thanks to my coaches and teammates for putting me in the best position to succeed."

Junior Charlie Nowinsky was also a double first team honoree, making it for his work on the offensive and defensive lines.

On defense, Nowinsky tallied 34 total tackles, with nine going for losses, and a pair of sacks.

"It means a great deal to me to be named first team all-conference for both offensive line and defensive line," said Nowinsky. "Going into the season it was one of my personal goals to receive all-conference honors. My all conference recognition, along with my all-regional honors for both sides of the ball, raises the bar for me next season and motivates me to keep working hard in the weight room and on the field."

Juniors Casey Kielman and Nathan Waupekenay also earned spots on the first team.

Kielman made the first team as a defensive back, while also picking up an honorable mention nod for his play as a receiver.

Kielman finished with 12 total tackles in conference play. He picked off three passes and recovered one fumble.

As a receiver, Kielman caught 10 passes for 260 yards and three scores.

Waupekenay was a first teamer as a kicker, and made the honorable mention list as a quarterback.

The junior threw for 850 yards and 12 touchdowns while rushing for an additional 427 yards and two scores.

Senior Max Fraaza earned two second team honors — which he called a surprise — for his play on the offensive and defensive lines.

Fraaza finished with 45 total tackles, with 11 going for losses, in CWC-Large play. He also tallied five sacks, forced a fumble and recovered a fumble.

Junior Coye Brillowski landed on the second team for his play as a defensive lineman.

Brillowski finished with 34 total tackles, eight of which went for losses. He also recovered a fumble and had one sack.

Senior Chris Crews was a second teamer as a linebacker.

Crews was second on the team with 65 total tackles. He also posted three sacks and eight tackles for losses while recovering a fumble.

Senior Dylan Resch and juniors Braeden Groshek and Marshall Fraaza were all honorable mentions for Witt-Birn.

Resch made the list as a defensive back. He finished CWC-Large play with 25 total tackles, two interceptions and a fumble recovery.

Groshek was recognized as a linebacker. He registered 28 total tackles and an interception in conference play.

Fraaza was on the honorable mention list as a linebacker and wide receiver. On offense he rushed for 140 yards and two touchdowns, while hauling in 18 passes for 326 yards and a team-leading five scores. Defensively, the junior had 33 total tackles, one interception, one forced fumble, one fumble recovery and three tackles for losses.

Bonduel falls to St. Mary Catholic in opener

Bears struggle with pressure

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Bonduel High School girls basketball team started strong but struggled to adjust to full-court pressure and eventually fell 55-41 to St. Mary Catholic in a nonconference battle on Nov. 15 in Bonduel.

The rematch of a Division 4 sectional semifinal last winter was a back-and-forth battle in the early going before the Bears created some separation. That's when St. Mary turned to a full-court press, and Bonduel was never truly able to get in a rhythm again.

The Bears scored 21 points in about nine minutes of game time before tallying just 20 points in the final 27 minutes.

"We have a lot of young blood, a lot of people that were on JV last year, so the pressure kind of got to us," said Ella Hischke, who led the Bears with 15 points, six rebounds and four assists. "First game, so we were a little out of shape too. But I think the next part of the season we'll be better under pressure."

"I mean, we weren't really used to the pressure, so we need to work on that in practice," said Kendra Troxel, who was second on the team with 11 points. "Just put more pressure on everyone so they understand what's going to be coming since our team is so young."

St. Mary scored first in the contest, but a 3-pointer from Audrey Weier on the next possession gave Bonduel the early advantage. Weier knocked down a couple free throws after a steal a couple minutes later to put Bonduel up 5-4, and then Troxel hit a shot to make it 7-4.

The Zephyrs tallied the next five points before free throws from Bonduel's Hailee Thompson tied it. Macy Niles converted a shot for Bonduel's 10th and 11th points, but St. Mary took a 13-11 advantage soon after.

Hischke knocked down two 3-pointers and then converted another shot for a personal 8-0 run that made it a 19-13 lead with just under 10 minutes to play in the half. Troxel then hit a shot, making it 21-16, before St. Mary turned up the pressure.

Bonduel's Hailey Zernicke, right, battles for a rebound during a nonconference game against St. Mary Catholic on Nov. 15 in Bonduel. MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

Bonduel's next points came on a Hischke bucket with 3:03 left in the half, but thanks to strong defense of their own, the Bears still led 23-19. Troxel hit a couple shots and Hailey Zernicke hit a layup in the final seconds of the half to give the hosts a 29-24 halftime advantage, making it appear as if Bonduel had weathered the storm and settled in against the pressure.

Hischke drilled a triple to start the second half and put Bonduel up 32-24, but St. Mary caught fire from deep, and after making three 3s and another bucket, led 35-32.

Trailing for the first time since early in the game, coach Jerry Reinke thought his team started settling for long jumpshots instead of attacking the rim like it had most of the first half.

Troxel made a shot to stop the 11-0 St. Mary run, but the next time the Bears scored was over five minutes later, and by then, the Zephyrs led by double digits.

"I think they made it a point to make sure that they were reversing the ball several times, and they got some pretty good open looks against our 2-3 (zone)," said Reinke of St. Mary. "I think we maybe ran out of gas a little bit, but I probably waited a little too long, we probably should have went to man-to-man a little sooner — we actually played some pretty good man-to-man defense tonight."

It was Troxel again that stopped the St. Mary scoring run, this time with a free throw. A bucket from Zernicke made it a 10-point game, 47-37, with still over eight minutes to play.

The next several minutes saw more strong defense from each team and not a lot of great looks. St. Mary scored the next points with 6:30 remaining in the contest, and Bonduel was next to score with under four to play.

Hischke scored for the Bears, and then two Thompson free throws got the Bears within eight with 3:28 to play, but those were the final points for the hosts. St. Mary sealed the win by knocking down six free throws.

St. Mary 24 31 — 55

Bonduel 29 12 — 41

St. Mary (55): Chloe Vogel 5-8 15, Emily Vogel 4-9 12, Audrey Norville 0-1 15, Nolie Anderson 2-5 6, Sienna Anderson 2-2 7.

Bonduel (41): Macy Niles 0-0 2, Kendra Troxel 1-2 11, Ella Hischke 0-2 15, Audrey Weier 2-2 5, Hailee Thompson 4-4 4, Hailey Zernicke 0-1 4.

4 Gresham/Bowler players make all-conference lists

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Gresham/Bowler boys soccer co-op had four players named to all-conference teams after the fall season wrapped up.

While Gresham/Bowler was unable to earn any wins in Central Wisconsin Conference play, seniors Edward Castellanos, Blade Hoffman and Wesley Thiex were joined by sophomore Kaidyen Zaitz on the honorable mention list.

Zaitz served as the co-op's goalie this fall. He averaged about 13 saves per game, helping Gresham/Bowler stay in matches.

"It made me feel very important and valuable and it will motivate me to play hard next year," said Zaitz of his conference honor.

Thiex earned his all-conference nod mainly because of his play on defense, but did chip in a goal and an assist on the season.

Interim coach Cory Bougie said he'd move Thiex forward on the field if the team needed a spark.

"Making the honorable mention is a big step in my success in sports, but also my last success in high school soccer, which I'll truly miss. All my honor goes towards my teammates and coaches," said Thiex.

Hoffman and Castellanos controlled the central midfield for the co-op.

Castellanos scored a goal and added two assists for the season, while Hoffman had a pair of assists.

"It means a lot knowing that all my hard work towards the sport paid off even though it wasn't first or second team — I am still honored to get honorable mention," said Castellanos.

"Making honorable mention means that the hard work and good sportsmanship I showed in the sport paid off," said Hoffman of his honor.

After the regular season wrapped up, Gresham/Bowler was a No. 9 seed in Division 4 for the playoffs. The co-op was topped 6-1 by No. 8 Northland Lutheran in its opening postseason match.

Mertz's late sneak for TD pushes Badgers past Nebraska

Badgers become bowl eligible

By ERIC OLSON
The Associated Press

A Wisconsin team that has endured the midseason firing of its head coach and the death of a former teammate let its emotions spill out as groups of players gathered near midfield at Memorial Stadium to celebrate and pose for pictures with the Freedom Trophy.

Graham Mertz scored on a 2-yard quarterback sneak with 35 seconds left to complete a comeback from an 11-point deficit entering the fourth quarter, and the Badgers beat Nebraska 15-14 on Nov. 19 for their ninth straight win in the series.

"It's everything that this team has overcome off the field; that was what came up on the field today," Mertz said. "There's so many emotions and feelings that guys have had to deal with this year. There's so many different things that have happened to us this year that could easily have buried us and made us just fold. It's really cool to see how guys come together and want to succeed together."

Wisconsin (6-5, 4-4 Big Ten) arrived in Lincoln with heavy hearts and left eligible for a bowl for a 21st straight year.

The Badgers had to cope with the death of former teammate Devin Chandler, who was one of three Virginia football players killed in a shooting in Charlottesville. Interim coach Jim Leonhard had said late in the week that he sensed players who were friends with Chandler could be distracted.

"It was such a rough week, and early on the game mirrored that," said Leonhard, 4-2 since taking over for the fired Paul Chryst. "It was ugly for a long time, and the guys just continued to battle and find ways to make plays."

The Badgers were held to three points through three quarters and lost their top defensive player, Nick Herbig, to a targeting penalty and its top offensive player, Braelon Allen, to a leg injury on their second-to-last possession.

Mertz's 10-yard TD pass to Skyler Bell cut Nebraska's lead to 14-9. Mertz was off target with his 2-point pass, leaving the Badgers down five with 10 minutes left.

Wisconsin started its final drive from midfield with 3:11 left. Mertz passed to Isaac Guerendo for 27 yards to set up the winning touchdown.

Chez Mellusi led the Badgers with 98 yards on 21 carries. Mertz was 8 of 18 for 83 yards on a day when the feels-like temperature was 16 degrees with a gusty north wind.

Herbig was ejected for targeting when he hit a sliding Thompson in the head. By rule, Herbig must miss the first half of next week's rivalry game against Minnesota.

Allen, already playing with a banged-up shoulder, had 92 yards on 18 carries before he hopped off the field with an apparent leg injury late in the game.

"There was a lot going on this week," Allen said, "and that was a great way to turn the rough side of the week into something positive and get a big win and keep the trophy at home."

There was no immediate word on the extent of Allen's injury.

The Badgers had to work hard for this one even though they rushed for 235 yards and outgained the Huskers in total offense 318-171.

The game was the Big Ten's first that matched interim head coaches since Illinois' Bill Cubit and Minnesota's Tracy Claeys squared off in 2015. Leonhard said he hopes he's made a case to have the interim tag removed.

"We're playing much better," he said. "Winning games is No. 1, and there's a way, style, even in a loss — how you play, togetherness, how hard you fight, that matters. Even in games we come up short, the fight and grit factor have been there."

Rogowski, Metropulos, Bruss make all-state teams

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Wittenberg-Birnamwood's Reese Rogowski and London Metropulos and Pulaski's Emily Bruss were named to Wisconsin Volleyball Coaches Association All-State Teams on Nov. 11.

Rogowski and Metropulos each made the Division 3 honorable mention team, while Bruss was an honorable mention in Division 1.

In her senior season, Rogowski accumulated 367 attack kills, 201 service points, 36 aces, 30 total blocks and 325 digs.

Rogowski also made the WVCA All-Tournament Team for her play in the team's state semifinal match.

Metropulos tallied a team-leading 416 attack kills and 50 total blocks in her junior season. She also totaled 217 service points, 62 aces and 247 digs.

Both Metropulos and Rogowski were first-team selections in the Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division this fall.

Bruss was the Co-Player of the Year in the Fox River Classic Conference.

The Pulaski junior racked up 593 assists, 235 digs, 116 attack kills, 141 service points, 52 aces and 32 total blocks during the season.

All-state honorees are invited to the WVCA Player Awards Banquet on Dec. 10 in Madison. Details of the event can be found at www.wisvca.org/news_article/show/1247217.

Gauderman, Marquardt, Kristof earn all-state honors

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

Wittenberg-Birnamwood's David Gauderman and Lena/St. Thomas Aquinas Academy co-op's Sam Marquardt and Josh Kristof were named to Wisconsin Football Coach Association's All-State Teams on Nov. 14.

Gauderman made the Small School All-State Team as an offensive back. Marquardt made the 8-player All-State Team as a running back, while Kristof was an honorable mention as an inside linebacker.

Gauderman was a workhorse for the Chargers, rushing for 1,539 yards and 16 touchdowns on 149 attempts. He also caught 12 passes for 157 yards and three scores.

The Witt-Birn senior was the Co-Offensive Player of the Year in the Central Wisconsin Conference-Large Division. He also made the all-conference first team for his play at linebacker.

Marquardt capped his senior season with 1,563 rushing yards and 25 scores. The quarterback also threw for 491 yards and nine scores.

Marquardt was the Offensive Player of the Year in the Peninsula Conference, while making the second team on defense.

Kristof finished his senior year with 124 total tackles, with 22 going for losses. He also forced a pair of fumbles.

Kristof was the Defensive Player of the Year in the conference.

Garden grows into accolades for founder

Christianson gets state environmental award for work put into Grow With Us Garden

By LEE PULASKI
City Editor

The dream of having a school garden was something that Noreen Christianson had ever since she started with the Bonduel School District 25 years ago, and that dream finally became a reality in 2019.

Her goal was simply to teach students about where their food comes from, she said. That effort, however, has had far-reaching effects as Christianson was the recipient of the 2022 Earthguard Award from the Wisconsin Association for Environmental Education.

"There was a teacher that came in and broke the news to me, and I started crying," Christianson said. "I was just humbled. I had no idea that I was nominated."

Several teachers pushed for Christianson to get the award, noting that her work has included thousands of volunteer hours — including several summers teaching students about various fruits, vegetables and other growable crops. However, Christianson is the first one to say that others deserve much of the credit, including the students who regularly help with the garden, the administration that gave the project its blessing and the staff members who helped her to form a garden committee to plan what should go into it.

"I wanted this garden for our students for a long time," Christianson said. "I proceeded to do a lot of grant writing, and I went to several local meetings of organizations and told them about our vision."

The garden project seems like a perfect extension for what Christianson does, which is working as a cook for the district's schools. Christianson also has a degree in horticulture, and it's only the lack of a teaching license that keeps her from educating young minds on her own full time.

Between the grants and the donations, more than $12,000 has been raised for the Grow With Us Garden, located behind Bonduel Elementary School.

"This does not cost the district anything," Christianson said. "This is just solely with donations, volunteer time and grant money. We will be self-sufficient forever."

Even though much of the education is going toward the younger students, the upperclassmen have made their mark on Grow With Us, as well, according to Christianson. The middle school students created metal flowers to decorate the garden through their welding class, while high school students in the technical education department built a garden shed, eight raised beds that are 32 square feet in size, picnic tables for the younger kids to sit on when they do their journaling and other projects.

High school agriculture students have also helped out with composting and fertilizing the garden beds, Christianson said. They also helped to set up the fencing so that deer and other animals could not easily get in and gobble all the students' hard work.

"Everybody at the schools feels like they're part of this project," Christianson said.

With the garden came a summer school program where students get to learn about growing things. Christianson said she has an average of 50 students taking classes.

"The summer school class is just phenomenal," she said. "The kids have so much fun, and we do a lot of hands-on experiments, and we did some field trips and even a walking trip to three of the community members and get them aware that we have this green and growing space, too."

Christianson said she expected some positive response when she kicked off the garden project, but even she is overwhelmed at how much the students and staff have embraced it. She works in the kitchen during the day, and at 2 p.m. steps away to speak with students about gardening until school lets out an hour later. "The response has just been amazing," Christianson said. "There was a group of second graders that went out with me, and we dug potatoes. They said, 'This is better than a treasure hunt.'"

Teachers also utilize the garden when teaching math and science, according to Christianson, bringing real-life relevance to the lessons they teach.

"There's a lot of math that goes into planning our garden," she said.

Students who are caught up on school work get to come out and help tend to the garden. Christianson described it as a "reward" for being good students.

"They have a sense of teamwork, perseverance. They have to have patience, and they're discovering that, for them to plant that carrot seed and get a carrot in the fall, that's a long span of time," Christianson said. "They're learning where their food comes from. They're learning how to be a little more appreciative of their food."

That appreciation extends to when they come into the cafeteria for breakfast or lunch. Much of the produce harvested helps to offset the district's food costs as Christianson incorporates it into meals.

"We'll put up a sign that says: 'This is from your garden, and this is what you've grown,'" she said. "They are just asking, when can we come out again? A lot of the kids, they eat right out of the garden."

Shawano-born artist sweeps stamp contests

Retired minister's work has been featured on many stamps

By GREG SEUBERT

Sam Timm is used to winning awards for his art.

The retired minister, who was born in Shawano and now lives near Wautoma, has painted wildlife scenes for almost 50 years and his handiwork had been featured on several of Wisconsin's trout, salmon, turkey, pheasant and waterfowl stamps from 1985 to 2007.

Three of Timm's latest creations caught the eye of judges of the state Department of Natural Resources' annual turkey, pheasant and waterfowl stamp design contests. Hunters, conservationists and collectors purchase the stamps, which help fund habitat management and restoration around the state.

He placed first in all three contests, which the DNR holds each year to give artists an opportunity to submit entries to be featured on the next renditions of each stamp.

"I was quite shocked, actually," Timm said. "I didn't find out until several days after the contest. I thought I didn't even place because nobody had called. I thought, 'Well, there must have been some really good entries.'"

Artists submitted 34 works for this year's contests, which were judged Aug. 27 at the Wisconsin Waterfowl Expo in Oshkosh.

"Winning stamp contests was a way to get your name out," Timm said. "That's why I started entering these stamp competitions that the state had. I was a youth pastor living in Green Bay. I entered some of those competitions and in 1984, I won the two trout stamp (contests) and was the first one in the state to win both of them, the inland trout and the Great Lakes salmon and trout."

After moving from Shawano, Timm grew up in the Madison and Mount Horeb areas.

"I've always loved wildlife," he said. "My dad was not a hunter, but my grandpa was a hunter and a trapper. He totally lived outdoors and was a very successful trapper. I was always enamored by the hides in his attic. That was the first place I went as a kid."

Timm attended North Central University in Minneapolis, Minnesota, which led to him picking up a paint brush for the first time.

"My first painting was in 1975 as a senior in college," he said. "I saw some art on the wall in one of the offices. It was your typical outdoor scene: two trees, a mountain and a stream."

"I looked at the painting and in 30 seconds, I decided I want to try that," he said. "I went to a Target store and bought a black, white and burnt sienna tube of paint. My first painting was pheasants. I didn't even take high school art, so I was self-taught. It sort of progressed from there."

Timm's winning inland trout and Great Lakes salmon and trout entries were featured on stamps in 1985. He followed that up with the 1988 and 1996 waterfowl stamps; the 1989-90 and 2007 turkey stamps; the 1993 pheasant stamp; the 1994 and 2003 inland trout stamps; and the 2000 and 2006 Great Lakes salmon and trout stamps.

"I've made it a study of what it takes to win these competitions and produce some quality images," Timm said. "It's up to the judges. You have no control and in some years, it's very frustrating. I've placed second numerous times. You do your best, you have good entries and hope for the best."

Timm decided for the first time to enter all three of Wisconsin's bird contests this year.

"I've been so busy for a whole bunch of years and haven't entered," he said. "I've now been retired for two years. About a year ago, I said, 'I'm going to enter the duck stamp, turkey stamp and pheasant stamp (contests) and see if I can do any good.'"

Timm has painted hundreds of scenes over the years and most of them include wildlife.

"I go in and draw a lot of designs and I will show it to my daughter and wife," he said. "We will have our own judging competition. My wife Jan and daughter Stephanie both have artistic eyes. My wife's an interior decorator and my daughter has a very sharp eye for art."

Timm has no plans to quit painting.

"I'm not just some guy in the city trying to paint a duck, but I'm far from the top of the heap," he said. "There are many great artists out there. When I look at other artists' art, I continually realize how good I'm not."

Dark-eyed juncos herald in Wisconsin winter

The dark-eyed juncos seemingly arrived early this year. We are more used to seeing these birds against a backdrop of snow, not working our yet-green lawn dotted with the reds, yellows, and brown of fallen leaves searching for seeds. They are a welcome sight and a harbinger of winter to come.

According to the Cornell Lab All About Birds (AAB) website, there are 15 described races of the dark-eyed junco reflecting their regional variation. Our junco, the "slate-colored" junco which occurs in the eastern U.S., is one of the two widespread forms of the species; the other is the "Oregon" junco found across much of the western U.S.

The dark-eyed slate-colored junco is just that, mostly gray in coloring on the head, back and wings with a contrasting white belly and coal black eyes. The edges of their long tail feathers are white and easily seen when the bird takes flight. Their short, stout, light pink bill is made for seed eating. Winter's backdrop of white sets off the beauty of the bird's simple black and white patterning and their constant presence is good company.

Dark-eyed juncos frequently announce their arrival in our yard with a high short "chip" call repeated in rapid succession. The males, when moved to do so, according to AAB, also sing a musical trill seven to 23 notes in length and lasting up to a couple seconds.

Dark-eyed juncos are energetic sparrows, constantly on the move. Watch them and you will observe their hop-hop, peck-peck foraging behavior at work as they hunt for seeds. According to AAB, juncos prefer millet seeds but seem happy eating the sunflowers seeds we put out as well. They also eat weed and grass seeds such as buckwheat, sorrel, and lamb's quarters. During the breeding season, insects (beetles, ants, wasps, caterpillars, flies, etc.)

are included in their diet and fed to their young.

When you see one junco, you generally see more as they move about in large flocks sometimes with other birds; we often see them at our feeders with cardinals, finches and chickadees. We've noticed that some juncos are more aggressive when feeding, chasing off other birds. According to the AAB, this reflects a flock's hierarchy or pecking order where those arriving first to feed tend to rank higher than those arriving after them and are not shy in demonstrating their "I got here first," attitude.

AAB describes dark-eyed juncos as resident to medium distant migrants. Most migrate to our northern climes (Alaska and Canada) to breed, others breed in the northeast U.S., along the southern Great Lakes region (including northern Wisconsin) and in the western U.S. Their breeding habitat includes coniferous and mixed coniferous forests.

The birds are ground nesters laying three to six eggs per clutch and raising up to three broods of young during the breeding season. Most of the birds spend winter in a greater variety of habitats including open woodlands, fields, roadsides, parks, and gardens across the U.S.

According to the North American Breeding Bird Survey reports, while dark-eyed junco populations have declined about 31% between 1966 and 2019, their global numbers are still high (over 200 million) and therefore of low conservation concern compared to other species of declining birds.

The dark-eyed slate-colored juncos are some of the most common birds visiting feeders fall through spring, bringing their energy and simple beauty to our everyday lives. Scuff through the fall leaves or the coming snows to fill your feeders and watch for the juncos, they will come.

Hunting more enjoyable when it's kept safe

Another historic Wisconsin gun-deer season is now about halfway through, and many lasting memories have been made afield as about 550,000 hunters pursue America's premier big game animal in the state with the most record-book bucks.

It doesn't matter if you harvest a wide-racked buck or a fat doe. What really matters is enjoying a safe hunt.

ROSS BIELEMA

Wisconsin's mandated hunter safety education program, combined with mandated blaze orange or blaze pink upper-body clothing during the firearms deer seasons, have dramatically reduced hunting accidents and fatalities. The last hunting fatality occurred in 2021.

Firearms safety is a huge part of the equation, and is a major lesson in every hunter safety class. Instructors stress TAB-K:

- Treat every firearm as if it were loaded.
- Always point the muzzle in a safety direction.
- Be certain of your target and what's beyond.
- Keep your finger off the trigger until you are ready to shoot.

If every hunter followed TAB-K, accidental shootings would disappear. Fortunately, they are already rare, and hunting remains one of the safest sports. In fact, hunting is statistically safer than golf, basketball, soccer and even walking, according to a study by Families Afield.

Hunters get injured or killed in two ways not officially classified as hunting accidents — falls from tree stands and heart attacks associated with dragging deer out of the woods.

As a hunter safety instructor in Waupaca, I've spent at least two recent Saturdays demonstrating the safe way to climb and descend a tree stand. Since I once ran into a hunter on public land whose climbing tree stand had fallen about 10 feet, stopping just short of the ground, I've never been a fan of climbers. Use a metal ladder stand well strapped to a tree or a permanent "pill box" type elevated stand that is checked annually for rotten wood and rusty anchors.

The most important piece of equipment for a tree stand hunter is a quality harness made for the person's Sean Bradley, left, of Menasha, and his son, Alex, 16, share a special moment after Alex shot a doe during the 2021 gun deer season south of New London on Fox Valley Muzzle Loader Club property, using a muzzleloading rifle. The mandated use of blaze orange and blaze pink clothing for firearms deer hunters, as well as mandatory hunter education, have dramatically reduced the number of hunting accidents.

ROSS BIELEMA

weight. It's designed with a tether strap with multiple loops of stitching that slowly tear in the event of a fall, slowing the person's descent. Be sure to use a locking carabiner to attach the harness to a lifeline: A rope tied from above the stand to the ground. A sliding Prusik knot that links the lifeline to the harness allows the hunter to climb up or down while secure in the event of a fall.

Make sure to use three points of contact when climbing up or down. This means that two hands and one foot or two feet and one hand are in contact with the ladder at all times.

Always use a haul line to bring your unloaded firearm, bow, quiver of arrows, crossbow or other weapon up and down the stand. This is a separate rope used only for this task. Never climb a stand while carrying any of these items.

I avoid tree stands in favor of ground blinds. When I fall asleep while hunting, I can never fall more than a foot or so out of my chair. I've had deer within a few feet of my blind, so deer definitely get used to them.

One advantage of a tree stand is that the shot is going down and into the ground, reducing chances of a ricochet. It's usually easier to see a greater distance from a tree, too, but the comfort of a ground blind, with a rain-resistant roof and walls, sure beats an open tree stand on a rainy or snowy morning.

Many deer hunters only get some serious exercise a few weeks a year when pursuing deer. The long walk to and from our stands is one thing, but dragging out a 150-pound deer by ourselves is a sure recipe for stressing the heart. With a little common sense, you can avoid a heart attack.

Many hunters use ATVs or UTVs to not only make the trip to the stand a fun ride, but also makes dragging or hauling a deer out of the woods a snap. The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources stresses ATV safety for hunters, encouraging that every rider wear a helmet and a seat belt, if so equipped (UTVs typically are and ATVs aren't). Long guns must be unloaded, bows can't have an arrow nocked, and crossbows can't be cocked and loaded on these vehicles.

Use your head when hauling deer. A plastic sled works great for dragging, even if there's no snow on the ground. A wheeled deer cart or lawn cart also work well. Get a buddy or two to help, especially if you are older or out of shape. Make frequent stops if no help is available.

Drinking alcohol while hunting or otherwise handling a firearm will increase your chances of an accident. It's also illegal to be impaired by alcohol or controlled substances while in possession of a firearm. It's a myth that alcohol warms the body; it actually has the opposite effect.

Be careful with your knife while gutting your deer. In the excitement of a successful hunt, it's easy to slip. A Wyoming knife is the best way to open a deer. This little tool has a protected razor blade that won't cut your hands or the animal's intestines and works almost like a zipper on the chest cavity.

Stay safe so you can enjoy our hunting legacy again next year.

Is your house clean for Thanksgiving?

When I was a teenager, deep cleaning our farmhouse was an annual ritual. Every spring and fall, my mother would announce that it was time to “house-clean.” I would argue and complain. “Why must we do this again? We clean the house every Saturday.” Her terse response: “That is top-cleaning; this is house-cleaning.” Oh. Yeah. That’s why it took several Saturdays of hard work to get the house ready for relatives and guests who came at Easter time and then again from Thanksgiving to Three Kings Day (Epiphany) on Jan. 6.

OK. Houses today can get cluttered and messy and dirty, but nothing like farmhouses in what some people fondly and foolishly call the “good old days.” What people forget is that those were the days of wood- and coal-fired furnaces belching out heated air that coated plastered walls with a gray glaze. During the summer, cooking, baking and outdoor air coaxed through open windows by box fans added another layer of grime. It was a major challenge to get a house clean, especially when the leader of the pack (Mom) set very high standards.

Not one to break tradition, Mom gave us our marching orders. I fetched stomach turn.

Using Sani-Flush for cleaning the toilet was a fearsome task. Sani-Flush came in crystals containing sodium bisulfate. When mixed with water, sodium bisulfate produces a highly corrosive acidic solution that dissolves iron, magnesium and calcium from the bowl. It can also badly burn human skin and was discontinued in 2013 due to environmental concerns, but it’s all we had back then. So cleaning the commode was exclusively Mom’s job. I didn’t complain about that.

While Mom attended to the toilet, my older sister, Marge, replaced the bag in the Kirby vacuum cleaner. My younger sister, Mary Beth, got out the Kirby attachments and threatened us with the “snake” (accessory tool the rags, buckets, sponges, mops, dust cloths and enough cleaning agents to turn Lake Winnebago into a toxic dump. I especially hated the smell of Pine Sol, which to this day makes my hose), giggling as she waved it around in our faces until Mom emerged from the bathroom and got us back to the business at hand.

Ready. Set. Go. Armed with our world-class cleaning arsenal, the four of us attacked one room at a time. Mom’s sole motivator was to let us fire up our 45 RPM record player. As we worked, we were either bickering about who had the hardest job or singing along to Buddy Holly, Elvis, Johnny Cash and, my personal favorite, Ricky Nelson.

I was the one who complained the most, so I had to do the ceiling. This meant wrenching my neck to wash overhead while dangling from a wooden stepladder while Mom took down, cleaned and replaced the ceiling light globes that contained a disgusting collection of dead bugs. My sisters were each assigned a wall, washing from bottom to top to prevent the cleaning water from dripping down and creating “tracks.” Mom did the surfaces they couldn’t reach.

We scoured doors, trim and baseboards. We flipped mattresses, got out the winter quilts and opened the floor registers so we would have a bit of heat in the upstairs bedrooms.

My younger sister polished the wood tables; my older sister vacuumed the upholstery. Mom and I took the throw rugs outside, shook them hard several times until all the dirt and dust that had been trapped in them rained down on us. When she was satisfied that they were as clean as they were going to get, we draped them over the porch railing to “air out.”

Right on cue, my sisters always managed to disappear while we were outside. You’d think I’d learn, but no. I whined so long and loud that I had to scrub and wax the linoleum floors on my hands and knees while Mom ironed and hung the freshly washed curtains.

At last we were ready for company which came in a steady stream. Unfortunately, this included boy cousins who would track in mud and snow, leave handprints on the walls and spill soda all over the furniture and rugs. It’s a good thing I had my Ricky Nelson records, or things might have gotten really ugly.

Bonduel, Gillett United Methodist churches get new pastor

Jeremiah Cottrell-Duebner was recently appointed to be the pastor of Bonduel Zion and Gillett Tabor United Methodist churches.

“It is truly my honor to serve not only one but two churches within the beautiful Shawano and Oconto counties of Wisconsin,” Cottrell-Duebner said. “I am a third-generation pastor in my family. My parents were and are still very active with my home church, Oneida UMC. My mother has been the pianist for Oneida for over 46 years, and she refrom Seymour High School. He has recently joined the staff at Bonduel Zion as their pianist. My father is a talented guitarist, and he is also the groundskeeper for Oneida UMC.”

Cottrell-Duebner was raised in Seymour, graduating always lived in the area because family is everything to him. After attending UW-Green Bay, Cottrell-Duebner worked in retail management for 15 years.

Cottrell-Duebner currently resides in De Pere with his spouse of five years, Benjamin Duebner, who until recently was the finance treasurer at Oneida UMC.

Prior to being licensed, Cottrell-Duebner served as Oneida United Methodist Church’s staff parish relations committee chairman and lay speaker.

“Having served in two different roles within the church for over seven years made me want to seek more in Christ’s name,” Cottrell-Duebner. “With the help of former pastors, family, and friends, I took my leap of faith into bigger waters, and I attended licensing school where I eventually became a licensed local pastor.”

Next spring, Cottrell-Duebner will continue his theological education by attending seminary school.

COLLEGE NOTES

Biola University

Anayo Kwazema was named to Biola University’s dean’s list for academic excellence.

Kwazema, of Gillett, was one of approximately 1,600 students who were named to the dean’s list in spring 2022. Biola students are placed on the dean’s list to honor those with a grade-point average of 3.6 or higher while enrolled in 12 or more credits and whose cumulative GPA is at least 3.2.

University of Minnesota-Duluth

The University of Minnesota-Duluth has announced its dean’s list for spring semester 2022.

- Sobieski: Lauren Dixon
- Leopolis: Levi Schick

Students on the dean’s list have achieved a grade-point average of 3.5 or higher while earning a minimum of 12 letter-graded credits.

Palmer College of Chiropractic

Issabella Stueck, of Clintonville, has been named to the summer 2022 trimester dean’s list at Palmer College of Chiropractic’s Main Campus in Davenport, Iowa.

St. Norbert College

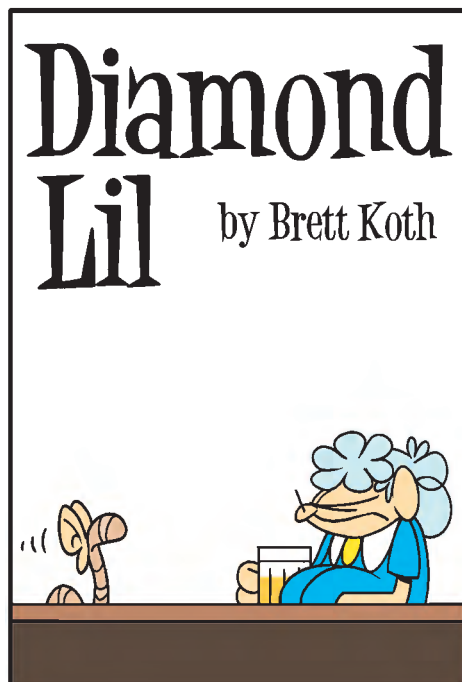

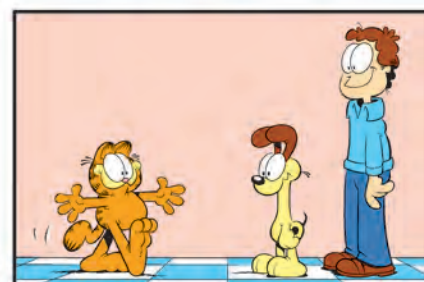

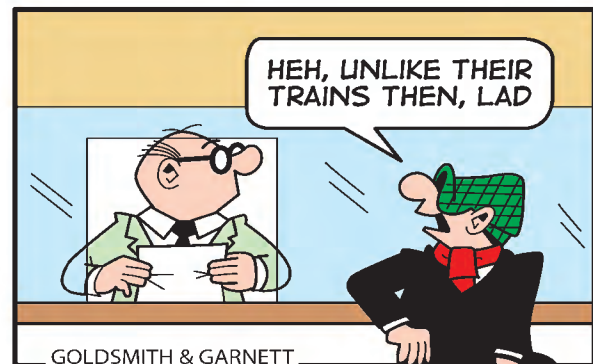

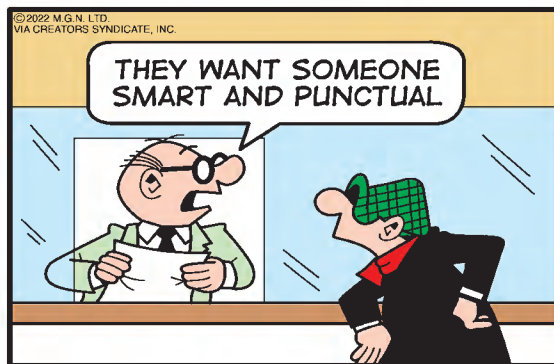

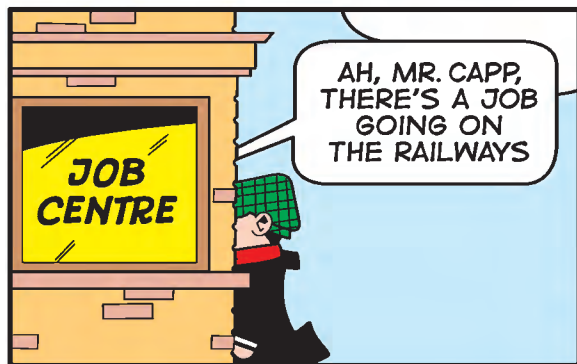

Andrea Waschbisch, a native of Oconto Falls, was recently initiated into the St. Norbert College Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, the National Leadership Honor Society. The society welcomed 235 new initiates from 11 universities during October 2022.

Students initiated into the society must be sophomores, juniors, seniors, or graduate/professional students in the top 35% of their class, demonstrate leadership experience in at least one of the five pillars, and embrace the ODK ideals. Fewer than 5% of students on a campus are invited to join each year.

Better Business Bureau, Amazon team up to deal with holiday scams

The Better Business Bureau is partnering with Amazon to drive an education campaign aimed at helping consumers spot impersonation scams during this holiday season (BBB.org/ImpersonationScams).

This scam tactic occurs when a scammer pretends to be a trustworthy organization or individual to steal a person's money or personal information. This co-branded campaign will run through the holiday season, when there is typically an increase in scam attempts with more people seeking to make purchases.

The campaign follows new research published by the BBB Institute for Marketplace Trust on Oct. 5. The new report, Start With Trust Online, the 2022 BBB Online Scams report, highlighted new scam tactics, particularly scams perpetrated online, including online purchase scams that impersonate the brands of well-known businesses.

"Fifty-four percent of survey respondents said the scammer claimed to be from a legitimate organization, according to our latest research," said Melissa Lanning Trumppower, executive director of the BBB Institute for Marketplace Trust. "Of those who said they were targeted by an impersonation scam, 50% said they were targeted by scammers pretending to be a trustworthy business. Our partnership with Amazon will help us reach more consumers with important information about how to spot and avoid losing money to these scams."

Data for the campaign and the BBB Institute research report were provided through BBB Scam Tracker, an online reporting and prevention tool that enables people to report and search scam reports. A new-and-improved version of BBB Scam Tracker will be launched in November in partnership with Amazon and Capital One.

"Amazon is committed to protecting consumers from impersonation scams and helping them protect themselves," said Kathy Sheehan, vice president and associate general counsel at Amazon. "We're grateful to partner with consumer advocates like the Better Business Bureau to educate consumers."

BBB and Amazon recommend the following tips for shopping online:

- Stay calm. If you receive a suspicious phone call, resist the urge to act immediately, no matter how dramatic the story is or how threatening or intimidating the caller sounds.

- Don't reply directly. Instead, visit the company's website or app to use their customer service channel and verify the message or phone call you received.

- Go to the source or get help. When in doubt, call a friend, loved one, or your local BBB to ask for a second opinion. Regardless of what is said in the phone conversation, tell someone.

- Never feel pressured to give personal information (Social Security number, account numbers/passwords, license number, etc.) over the phone, especially if the call is unexpected. Scammers may try to use calls, texts, and emails to impersonate a company's customer service. If you are unsure, end the call/chat and reach out directly to the company's customer service phone number or website.

- Never pay over the phone, especially if the call was unsolicited. If you need to make a payment, go directly to the organization's website or app.

- Never allow remote access to your computer if somebody offers tech support. Shut down your computer immediately and seek support directly from your service provider.

- Search BBB Scam Tracker. If you're suspicious about the situation, search BBB Scam Tracker to see if anyone else has reported a similar situation. The new BBB Scam Tracker enables you to search by email, URL, phone number, and more. You can also report suspicious communications that mention Amazon directly to the company.

- Check that email address or URL more closely. Scammers use similar website addresses or emails to appear legitimate, but if you look closely, you may find one letter or number that is off.

Sacred Heart hosts 50 veterans at ceremony

Sacred Heart Catholic School welcomed nearly 50 veterans during its Veterans Day program Nov. 11.

The day started with a special breakfast prepared by food services manager Tanya Myerchin and her mother, Melea Norton, prior to the ceremony, which featured a packed gymnasium.

The ceremony began with the AmVets Post 10 posting the colors, followed by the singing of the National Anthem and the Pledge of Allegiance led by our School Choir. Each veteran stepped forward to introduce themselves and share their rank/post and then Lori Mathwich and Autumnne Gee handed a blessed cross and flag pin to each veteran.

Wisconsin National Guard Chief Warrant Officer Jed Meidam, school parent, gave a presentation. Gee then surprised Mathwich with a patriotic floral arrangement and recognition for her work on the Veterans Day program, 21 years of service in the U.S. Army, and her work at Sacred Heart.

Deacon Jim Lonick shared a closing prayer and blessed the veterans, and then the AmVets held the 21-gun salute with "Taps," before retiring the colors. The veterans gathered around the gym so students and staff could pass out special gifts and cards they had made.

Bahrke program director for leadership group

The Leadership Oconto County Board of Directors recently announced the appointment of Ashley Bahrke to the position of program director.

Bahrke is a 2019 graduate of Leadership Oconto County and has been involved with the organization in various roles over the last four years.

"We are excited to have Ashley in this capacity as we move forward in growing the Leadership Oconto County program," said board president Greg Gauthier. "The board and I are looking forward to the energy and experience she brings to the role."

WE'RE NOT “THE MEDIA.”

There's a lot of talk about “the media,” the talking heads on cable TV who pander to political views for profit.

That's not the news, and it's certainly not this newspaper. Our goal every day is to fully and fairly report the news about this vibrant community and the people who live here.

That's at the heart of American newspapering—preparing timely and insightful reports about what matters most, prepared by hometown journalists who love this town and care about its future.

That's our pledge and our purpose.

Watson the playmaker Pack's offense needs

North Dakota State product has 5 touchdown catches in last 2 games

By LUKE REIMER

Reporter

While the season is not going the way that the Green Bay Packers hoped, there have been bright spots that have appeared.

Rookie wide receiver Christian Watson has become one of those bright spots and a major part of the offense.

With the receiver problems that Green Bay has experienced in the offseason and during the regular season, seeing a receiver who looks confident is a sound sign for Packers fans.

After scoring five touchdowns in the past two games, Watson took the lead for most receiving touchdowns by a rookie wide receiver as of Nov. 17.

"I think we had all our playmakers, and he stepped up the last two weeks, the last two games, the last five days," said Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers on Watson. "The last few days, no drops. He caught everything today. Yes, we have to get him the ball more."

Watson has game-breaking speed that should only open up the middle of the field for Green Bay. It has come to the point where if Rodgers sees Watson with only a corner over him, it seems likely the quarterback will air it out and let Watson run under it.

That is part of the reason why Green Bay traded up to draft the North Dakota State product. Randall Cobb returning to the field also opens up Watson to continue to run go and post routes.

Cobb's rapport with Rodgers has been on display for almost a decade, forcing defenses to respect the middle. If the Packers can create a complimentary high-low route combination with Watson and Cobb, the team may look a little more like what fans are accustomed to seeing.

With Green Bay's inconsistency running the ball this year, Watson has shown that he can provide those much-needed sparks to keep the Packers in games.

Rookie receiving is something that the Packers haven't had in many years, and Watson has proven that he can be the guy in Green Bay.

Sitting at 4-7, the question surrounding the Packers is when do you sit Rodgers and let Jordan Love get some much-needed QB experience?

While that does sound preferable, the Packers may not want to mess with the potential budding relationship and connection between Rodgers and Watson. If all else, Watson will probably never play with a quarterback better than Rodgers, so this is much-needed experience for the young wide receiver.

Even with the poor play and poor record, head coach Matt LaFleur is not totally ready to give up on the season in favor of younger players yet.

"You guys know how my mindset is: It's every day and it's one game, and that's the mentality," said LaFleur. "I have a hard time processing it any other way."

LaFleur's comments make it seem that he believes the Packers are still alive and can make a run toward the playoffs.

While that is technically true, when does someone like Love get his opportunity? It also begs the question of when does Watson see more work?

Though he has caught five touchdowns in the last two games, those touchdowns have accounted for more than half of his receptions in those games.

The theme surrounding the Packers this year has been inconsistency with the offense and defense both putting together a good game on the same day. At times this season, the defense has looked like the strength of the team — Tampa Bay — and other games where it has looked as bad as it has in recent years — Tennessee.

While Watson figures to help bring some consistency to that offense, where does that come on the defensive side of the ball?

Rashan Gary is lost for the season, and Eric Stokes is on injured reserve. The Packers look like they need a "Christian Watson on defense," or someone to step up and lead the defense.

"We're not in a very good position right now, that's for sure," said LaFleur. "We're going to get back to work and try to make some of these corrections because it's disappointing."

"Whether it's your coverage busting defensively, whether it's protection busts and/or any mistake in regards to the mental errors, that's extremely disappointing, especially where we are at in the season."

LaFleur is right. Eleven weeks into the season, the Packers are still making preseason mistakes — whether that's missing blocks, not communicating on defense or mismanaging the clock.

In a team with a lot of question marks, one thing is for certain — Watson is a dynamic playmaker who has proven that he can jumpstart a stagnant Green Bay offense.

TELLING PACKERS STATISTICS

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

The movie “Hope Floats” has nothing to do with football. But with their victory over the Dallas Cowboys, the Green Bay Packers’ playoff hopes were afloat.

Then the Tennessee Titans came to town and produced the sequel.

“Hope Sunk.”

The Packers were booed off the field before halftime and again late in the fourth quarter before the frozen fans headed to the exits. Barring a miracle, the 27-17 loss to the Titans will have been the final torpedo shot into the underachieving Packers.

Headed into Sunday night’s game at the powerhouse Philadelphia Eagles, here are six individual statistical reasons why the Packers have been such underachievers.

Aaron Rodgers: Efficiency

During his MVP seasons of 2020 and 2021, Rodgers was around 69% completions, 4,200 yards, 43 touchdowns, five interceptions and 8 yards per attempt. This year, he’s at 64.6% completions, projections of 3,930 yards, 29 touchdowns and 11 interceptions, and 6.8 yards per attempt.

There are a myriad of reasons, starting with the obvious of the offseason trade of Davante Adams. Adams was a great player who got open most of the time. What a luxury. And what a security blanket to know that, whether it’s first-and-10 in the first quarter or third-and-8 in the fourth quarter, that the No. 1 read on any play would get open.

Rodgers has strong connections with Allen Lazard and Randall Cobb, but they’re not Adams. The most talented receivers on the roster are rookies Romeo Doubs and Christian Watson, but Doubs has missed most of the last three games with a high-ankle sprain and Watson missed so much time with a hamstring injury, concussion and feared concussion that he didn’t play more than 40 snaps in a game until his breakout performance in week 10 against Dallas.

Combined, the players with the connection aren’t super-talented, and the players who are talented don’t have the connection.

The interceptions number, while still quite good, is noteworthy. He hasn’t thrown more than eight interceptions since tossing 11 in 2010.

“If we play up to our potential, we can win our last six games. I’m confident in that,” Rodgers said after a shaky performance vs. the Titans. “Obviously, I’ve got to play up to my potential. Tonight wasn’t it.”

Allen Lazard: Not No. 1

During training camp, Rodgers called Lazard a No. 1 receiver. It was a ludicrous statement at the time and ludicrous today. Lazard is a quality player and excellent role player. Every team would love to have someone like him. A No. 1 receiver, though? No way.

As a supporting player, Lazard was coming off three consecutive seasons in which he averaged about 36 receptions, 480 yards and five touchdowns. Lazard was never a focal point for defensive coordinators, but he is now.

The raw numbers are there with 38 receptions for 529 yards and five touchdowns. His 13.9-yard average is the best mark of his career. However, after catching 67.8% of his targets in 2021, 73.3% in 2020 and 68.6% in 2019, he’s at 58.5% this season. It’s harder to get open when you’re facing better cornerbacks.

Green Bay Packers defensive lineman Kenny Clark, center, tries to elude a block and bring down the ball carrier during the Tennessee Titans game Nov. 17 in Green Bay.

AJ Dillon: Powerless

At about 245 pounds of bulging biceps and thick thighs, Dillon should be a nightmare for defenses. He is, in a way. He’s almost never brought down by just one defender. On the other hand, he’s generally stopped by one defender before being taken down by a host of others.

According to Pro Football Focus, 32 running backs have at least 90 carries entering week 12. Dillon ranks 20th with 117 carries but is just 26th with 17 missed tackles, 28th with eight carries of 10-plus yards, 19th with 2.93 yards per carry after contact and 30th in elusive rating, a metric that attempts to measure the impact of a runner independent of his blocking.

The Packers hoped Aaron Jones and Dillon could carry the load, literally, in the post-Davante Adams offense. Jones has been great, but Dillon has been a bit underwhelming.

Elgton Jenkins: Not at home

As a rookie left guard in 2019, Jenkins didn't allow a single sack. As a Pro Bowl left guard in 2020, he allowed one sack. Forced out to left tackle to replace David Bakhtiari in 2021, he allowed two sacks in eight games before suffering a torn ACL.

The Packers moved him to right tackle, their weakest spot on the line, with the belief that Jenkins' talent and proven versatility would be enough to overcome any lingering affects from the knee injury.

In nine games, he's allowed three sacks — two at right tackle and one since moving back to left guard. Jenkins is a high-quality player. He'll be much better once the knee injury is fully beyond him. But, headed into the stretch run, he has not been a dominant player.

Green Bay Packers outside linebacker Preston Smith (91) sacks Tennessee Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill (17) during a Nov. 17 game in Green Bay.

Kenny Clark: Not much pressure

Clark's a two-time Pro Bowler and one of the best three-down defensive tackles in the NFL. He's not Aaron Donald but he's right in that next tier, which he demonstrated at the start of the season.

In the first three games, Clark recorded two sacks and five quarterback hits, according to the official NFL stats, and three quarterback hits and 13 pressures, according to PFF.

In the last eight games, Clark has only one sack and one quarterback hit (vs. Dallas), according to the league, and one sack, zero quarterback hits and 16 pressures, according to PFF.

He's on pace for 25 pressures, which would be the fewest of his career.

Eric Stokes: Year 2 disappointment

If not for one poor game at Minnesota last season, the first-round pick might have earned All-Rookie honors. Teams count on quantum leaps forward from players in their second season, so what would Stokes for an encore?

According to PFF, Stokes gave up a 51% catch rate, 6.1 yards per target and a 79.1 passer rating while missing 9.2% of his tackle attempts as a rookie.

This year, he allowed an 84% catch rate, 11 yards per target and a 125.8 passer rating while missing 16.1% of his tackle attempts before suffering a season-ending ankle surgery against Detroit.

With Stokes' slide and Rasul Douglas going from a 50.8% completion rate in 2021 to 71.8% in 2022 and Jaire Alexander going from 50.7% during his All-Pro season of 2020 to 58.7% in 2022, it's no wonder why the Packers' defense has been such a disappointment.

KEYS TO THE GAME

By BILL HUBER

Correspondent

The Green Bay Packers will travel to face the Philadelphia Eagles at 7:20 p.m. on Sunday at Lincoln Financial Field, Philadelphia. NBC will televise the game.

History

In a series that dates to 1933, the Packers lead 29-17 (28-15 regular season; 1-2 playoffs).

The Packers have won six of the last eight, including 30-16 on Dec. 6, 2020, at Lambeau Field. Aaron Jones put the icing on the cake with a 77-yard touchdown run.

The last meeting in Philadelphia came in 2016. That was game one of "Run the Table," with Green Bay winning 27-13.

Coaches

Green Bay — Matt LaFleur, fourth season. Philadelphia — Nick Sirianni, second season.

When the Eagles have the ball

The Eagles boast a well-rounded offense. Before their week 11 game, they ranked third with 27.3 points per game. They were sixth in rushing with 142.7 yards per game and second with 7.90 yards per passing attempt.

They were fourth on third down (47% conversions), second on fourth down (75%) and third in the red zone (72.7% touchdowns). They were also No. 1 with only seven turnovers.

With Eagles quarterback Jalen Hurts, Green Bay's defense will face a challenge on par with going against Buffalo's Josh Allen. Hurts should be right in the middle of the MVP conversation. He's having a fantastic season.

As a quarterback, he was third with a 106.5 passer rating and second with 8.37 yards per attempt. Plus, he'd added 354 rushing yards (3.8 average). Between passing (14) and rushing (seven), he'd accounted for 21 touchdowns.

Miles Sanders was 10th with 710 rushing yards. He was averaging a robust 4.97 yards per carry.

Aaron Rodgers could only wish he had a one-two receiver punch of A.J. Brown, who was acquired in a trade with the Titans, and DeVonta Smith, last year's first-round pick.

Brown is a big man and a big-play threat with 44 catches for 725 yards and six scores through 10 weeks. Smith had a team-high 46 catches, which he'd turned into 481 yards and three touchdowns.

The Eagles will be down one key cog with tight end Dallas Goedert on injured reserve. He's third on the team with 43 receptions.

Green Bay's pass defense, which gave up 333 too-easy passing yards to Titans quarterback Ryan Tannehill, needs to cut out the mental mistakes that let receivers run free through the secondary.

"Yeah, that was certainly disappointing," LaFleur said. "I thought for the most part we did a pretty good job defending the run. Any time you hold Derrick (Henry) to under 100 yards and a little over 3 yards a carry, that was a pretty solid effort. It leaves you a little susceptible on the back end, where you've got to be good.

"The thing that's disappointing is just the busts, when you have guys that don't play their responsibility and you get guys running free. That happened on three of the big, explosive plays that they had."

Mailata, a former rugby player from Australia, is the weak link but the Packers have struggled to create pressure without Rashan Gary.

When the Packers have the ball

Heading into week 11, Philadelphia was eighth with 18.6 points allowed per game and third with 302.4 yards allowed per game.

The Eagles are superb against the pass, ranking second in yards per game (177.2) and yards per play (5) but vulnerable against the run, where it's 20th in yards per game (124.8) and 26th in yards per carry (4.74). It is a big-play unit, ranking first with 20 takeaways and fifth in sack percentage.

The defensive front is robust. At the trade deadline, the Eagles acquired Robert Quinn from the Bears. He ranked second in the NFL in sacks last year. And last week, they added veteran defensive tackles Linval Joseph and Ndamukong Suh off the street. Throw in veteran Brandon Graham and that, incredibly, is the Eagles' No. 2 defensive line.

As for the starters, the tackles are Fletcher Cox and Javon Hargrave with Josh Sweat and Haason Reddick manning the edges. Reddick, a former standout in Carolina, had 6½ sacks and three forced fumbles.

Sweat has 3½ sacks and team-leading totals of 12 quarterback hits and eight tackles for losses. While the multi-time Pro Bowler Cox is the big name, Hargrave is the secret star with a team-high seven sacks.

The linebackers are former Wisconsin star T.J. Edwards, and Kyzir White. Edwards has blossomed into a really good pro after entering the league as an undrafted free agent in 2019. He had 86 tackles, two sacks, five tackles for losses and five passes defended through 10 weeks. White is second with 63 tackles.

Starting cornerbacks Darius Slay and James Bradberry are excellent. Josiah Scott mans the slot. C.J. Gardner-Johnson and Marcus Epps are the safeties. Slay has three interceptions and, according to Pro Football Focus, has allowed a 43.1% completion rate and 41.2 passer rating.

Bradberry is practically a carbon copy with three interceptions, 43.1% and a 41.2 rating. Gardner-Johnson had five interceptions in three seasons with the Saints but has six in his debut season with Philly.

Special teams

In Football Outsiders' rankings, Philadelphia ranked 24th and Green Bay is 30th.

Undrafted rookie receiver Britain Covey, one of the top returners in NCAA history while at Utah, handles kickoffs and punts. He's found the NFL to be more difficult than the Pac-12. He's averaging 6.5 yards per punt return and 20.6 yards per kickoff return.

Jake Elliott is the kicker. He's 6-of-8 on field goals this season. In his sixth season, he's 60.0% for his career from 50-plus yards.

Arryn Siposs is the punter. He's averaging 46.3 yards per punt with a net average of 41.8. Opponents are averaging only 6.7 yards per return.

For the Packers, veteran receiver/punt returner Dede Westbrook, who signed to the practice squad last week, could make his debut.

Packers drop to 4-7 after loss to Titans

Green Bay has now lost 6 of its last 7 games

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A 333-yard and two touchdown performance from Ryan Tannehill put a quick end to the Green Bay Packers' momentum, as the Tennessee Titans took down the Packers 27-17 on Nov. 17 in Green Bay.

Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers finished the game with 227 passing yards and two touchdown passes. Rookie wide receiver Christian Watson was once again the benefactor of Rodgers' touchdown passes, scoring both of them.

Watson has now recorded five touchdowns in the past two games, accounting for 30 of Green Bay's last 48 points. Watson became the first rookie wide receiver for the Packers to record multiple touchdowns in back-to-back games since Max McGee in 1954.

The loss stops any momentum that Green Bay had from its emotional win against Dallas last week, as the Packers have now lost six of their past seven games.

It was obvious that Green Bay's gameplan was to stop Titans running back Derrick Henry — something that they did well, holding the All-Pro to 87 rushing yards on 28 attempts. Henry accounted for two total touchdowns, running one in and passing one on a jump-pass.

While Henry failed to top the 100-yard mark, Tennessee took control of the clock in the first half, as Green Bay totaled just 19 plays. One of Tennessee's drives lasted 19 plays for just over 10 minutes in the second quarter.

"Obviously, extremely disappointed right now," said Packers head coach Matt LaFleur. "To put on a performance like that, I just don't even know what to say. It was nothing like a few days ago, and that's why you're only as good as your last game."

Veteran wide receiver Randall Cobb found his way back into the lineup, returning from injury. Cobb led the team in receiving with 73 yards on six catches.

Allen Lazard added another 57 yards on five catches. In terms of rushing, the Packers only ran 19 times, with Aaron Jones accounting for 40 yards, A.J. Dillon accounting for 13 and Watson recording three.

"They stopped the run. They gloved us in the back end," said Rodgers.

After releasing wide receiver/punt returner Amari Rodgers the week prior, Keisean Nixon provided the best return of the season, returning a punt to the Tennessee 44-yard line late in the fourth quarter.

Down 10, the drive instantly stalled, as a Jones reception, a Jones rush and an incompletion intended for Lazard forced fourth down with 5:26 remaining. On fourth down, Rodgers' pass, intended for Lazard, was incomplete and the Titans took back over.

From there, Tennessee's drive lasted just 16 seconds as a Preston Smith sack forced the Titans to punt.

Following the punt, Green Bay put together a 10-play drive, with Rodgers throwing for 49 yards on the drive.

Faced with fourth-and-one from Tennessee's 44-yard line, Jones was stuffed by Titans linebacker David Long Jr., forcing Green Bay to turn the ball over on downs.

Tennessee opened the game strong, with Henry accounting for 18 total yards. The drive was capped off with Tannehill completing a 14-yard touchdown pass to backup running back Dontrell Hilliard.

Green Bay got on to the board late in the first quarter, as Rodgers hit Watson in the back of the end zone on a free play for 14 yards. Cobb provided the big play on the drive, taking a crossing route for 24 yards. The subsequent extra point was blocked.

Henry scored his first touchdown of the game on a 10-play drive from Tennessee that included a 9-yard reception from wide receiver Robert Woods on a third-and-seven.

Green Bay answered back on its first drive on the second half on a Mason Crosby field goal to cut the lead to five. Scoring continued to pick up as Tennessee immediately marched down the field, culminating in Henry's touchdown pass to tight end Austin Hooper.

Green Bay's next score came on the next drive with a Watson 8-yard touchdown, followed by a Jones two-point conversion.

A 16-yard receiving touchdown from Hooper proved to be the dagger, as Tennessee's defense held Green Bay out of the end zone for the remainder of the game.

"They were obviously more physical and made a lot more plays than we made," said LaFleur. "There was no consistency in terms of being complimentary, offensively and defensively."

Q&A WITH SAMORI TOURE

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

Samori Toure started his collegiate career at Montana before transferring to Nebraska for his senior season. A seventh-round draft pick who was given the nickname Capt. Casual for his work habits, Toure didn't play the first six weeks of the regular season.

He made his NFL debut in week seven at Washington and caught a 37-yard touchdown pass against Buffalo in week eight.

Q: Where did the Capt. Casual nickname come from?

A: They felt like I wasn't giving the effort or the finish that I should, and I agree with that. You're supposed to burst for 15 (yards) every time you catch the ball, and there were a few times I didn't do that and (coach Matt) LaFleur would always say, 'You look real casual out there. You're never going to be able to reach your potential if you're not really just finishing and stop being casual. Be more intentional with everything.'

So, that's kind of how that nickname came about. You don't want to be known as that guy who's casual, so I guess my practice habits just started

AT A GLANCE

Position: Wide Receiver
Age: 24
Season: Rookie
College: Nebraska

to gradually get better.

Q: Did that bother you?

A: I wasn't mad, but I was just like, 'Dang, that's not what you want to be known for.' Like I said, you don't want one of the greatest quarterbacks thinking you're casual, so I'm like, 'All right, if that's what they think of me, I've got to change something.'

Q: Is that just your personality?

A: Yeah, I think that was a big part of it, just because I'm so laid back off the field. I kind of let my laid-back personality carry over to the field. Once I step on that field, I can't be laid back anymore. I can still be calm, cool and collected, but I've got to be intentional with everything.

Q: Was there a moment when you cranked it up?

A: I think '12' said something about it. He pulled me aside after practice and was basically saying, 'You could be really good; you've just got to finish everything. Be intentional with everything,' and he said, 'I think you should be suiting up by midseason.' So, that was a moment where I was like, 'OK, I need to step it up.'

Q: That first career touchdown at Buffalo, did you keep the ball?

A: Yeah, I kept the ball. It's in my locker.

Q: Any plans for it?

A: Just take it home. Maybe eventually frame it. I don't know. I might ask him to sign it, but I don't know if I want to ask him.

Q: Coming out of high school, what did people miss that led you to Montana?

A: It was probably a mixture of things. I never really went to any camps until I was going into my senior year, so I kind of started behind the eight-ball. I was in Oregon, which isn't considered California or Texas when it comes to recruiting. So, people were watching my film saying, 'Who is he going against?'

And then the last thing would be my size. I was probably 160 soaking wet coming out of high school. So, it was a combination of all those things.

Q: So, is the NFL a dream at that point in your life? Not that Montana is a bad program, but it's not a football factory, either.

A: Coming out of high school, yeah, that's the dream, obviously, but you can't even really think about that unless you play college. So, my whole mindset was I want to be able to play DI and dominate the DI level and then see what comes after that.

Q: Does being overlooked, whether it was in college or not being invited to the Scouting Combine motivate you? Or what is your motivation?

A: I have a lot of different motivations. My loved ones, my mom is definitely my No. 1. Yeah, I definitely let that stuff drive me. I'm used to that. It's been like that my whole career.

Definitely being the fifth-to-last pick in the draft, not being invited to the Combine, it's just a little extra motivation.

Q: So, once you got to the NFL, did you have to prove to yourself that you belonged?

A: I knew that from Day 1. During the draft, after Nebraska, I was realistic with myself. I had people in my ear telling me that I was going in the fifth round to the seventh round. I knew I was going to be Day 3 but I knew I was better than that. It's about showing everybody else.

The advertisement for Charlie's County Market features a collage of food items and logos. At the top left, the text "Charlie's County Market" is written in a large, stylized font. Below this, there are images of donuts, a tray of fruit (including apples, oranges, and grapes), a large steak, a plate of food, and several bottles of beer. Logos for "Mum's BAKERY", "South Main Produce Co.", "PREFERRED ANGUS", "BC's bottle.shop", and "corner deli" are also visible.

Shop Small Saturday, Holiday Stroll are a part of the season in Shawano

There's Black Friday on the day after Thanksgiving and Cyber Monday after the weekend, not to mention Giving Tuesday. More and more, the Saturday of Thanksgiving weekend is being recognized as Small Business Saturday.

Small Business Saturday has become an important part of small businesses' busiest shopping season.

Historically, reported projected spending among U.S. consumers who shopped at independent retailers and restaurants on Small Business Saturday reached an estimated $19.8 billion.

Locally, Shop Small Saturday is observed with in-store specials on the streets of Shawano Downtown from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 26.

Later in the day, visitors can enjoy Christmas music, hot chocolate and sweet treats while you stroll through the 100 decorated Christmas trees and visit with Santa and his reindeer during the Holiday Stroll from 3-5 p.m. at Franklin Park and the annual Tree Lighting at 5 p.m.

Activities at Franklin Park include:

- A Christmas stocking for each child, sponsored by Shawano Orthodontics.

- Hot chocolate and sweet treats available for purchase.

- Horse and wagon rides sponsored by Wolf River Dental.

- Christmas caroling with the St. Jakobi Church choir.

- Children's activities sponsored by saYPro, which will also be collecting toys for Toys for Tots during the event. Visitors are encouraged to bring an unwrapped toy to donate.

- Children's activities sponsored by Shawano Area Early Childhood Partnership.

- Roasting marshmallows and making s'mores with the Shawano Park and Recreation Department.

- A rock quest throughout the park.

- The Shawano Optimist Club will be providing free holiday goody bags for area youth and will also be collecting non-perishable food items to donate to SAFPARC.

- Story time with the Shawano County Library at 3, 3:30, 4 and 4:30 p.m.

- Christmas music by Terryoke's Mountain Top Entertainment, sponsored by U.S. Cellular.

The tree in the center of Franklin Park is covered in twinkling lights during the 2020 Holiday Stroll and Tree Lighting.

Avenue of Lights is a Christmas season tradition on Oconto Falls' Main Street

Santa and Mrs. Claus settle in after arriving with the Oconto Falls Fire Department and are surrounded by children with their 2021 Christmas lists at the ready.

FILE | NEW MEDIA

Santa and Mrs. Claus' arrival is part of the opening ceremony

The Oconto Falls' Avenue of Lights is guaranteed to make you merry. Add sparkle to the holiday season with a visit to the free, walk-through or drive-through light display in the heart of the city. Every year, Main Street and the East Side Beach are decked out with 100 decorated trees and a dozen Christmas displays.

"All of the lights and decorations help you get into the holiday spirit," said Erica Beaumier, chairperson of the Avenue of Lights.

Organized by the Oconto Falls Lioness Club, the Avenue of Lights involves the entire community. Oconto Falls' businesses, families and nonprofits decorate trees for the holiday light display. Families oftentimes decorate trees in memory of a loved one, making the Christmas exhibit more meaningful.

Visitors can walk along Main Street to look at each display individually or drive through the lighted corridor to get a sweeping view. Many Oconto Falls residents make it a point to drive down the Avenue of Lights on their way home from work every night.

The Avenue of Lights is lit at a special ceremony on the first Saturday after Thanksgiving. The lighting ceremony begins with live entertainment at 6 p.m., followed by Santa Claus arriving on a fire truck at 6:30 p.m.

"Everyone loves seeing Santa," Beaumier said. "We have cookies and hot chocolate, and everyone gets to talk to Santa. We have a choir singing Christmas carols, and live music isn't always something you hear."

The Avenue of Lights remains lit from 6-10 p.m. daily for the Christmas season, ending Jan. 1.

So, load everyone into the car, turn on the holiday tunes and head to Oconto Falls for the lighting ceremony or a trip down the Avenue. It's a holiday tradition the whole family will love.

"I hope it brings joy to the community," Beaumier said. "That's why we do it every year."

Spectacular Winter Wonderland greets visitors to Oconto campground

Christmas trees made of light line the entrance to Winter Wonderland at Holtwood Campground.

FILE | NEW MEDIA

Every winter, Oconto's Holtwood Campground transforms itself from a riverside campground to a twinkling and colorful Winter Wonderland. Pack some hot chocolate and Christmas cookies, gather the family and hop in the car to enjoy Oconto's drive-through holiday light display.

The illuminated campground sparkles with over 150 displays, featuring a mix of traditional, religious and humorous scenes. Just driving into the park is a feast for the eyes. Visitors travel through spectacular arches and down a road lined by brightly lit trees.

"You just have to see it for yourself. It's really a pretty display," said Nicki Reed, Winter Wonderland organizer. "It's in the center of Oconto, and it really lights up the city. You can see it coming into Oconto."

Winter Wonderland, located at Oconto Holtwood Campground, 400 Holtwood Way, Oconto, is open free of charge. Wonderland opens the day after Thanksgiving and remains open 5-11 p.m. daily until Jan. 1. Winter Wonderland has been a family tradition for generations of Oconto residents because it's something that everyone can enjoy, young and old alike.

"We try to get new displays every year to switch it up," Reed said. "It's free, and families can come and go as many times as they'd like."

Oconto-area businesses, nonprofits and families sponsor displays throughout the park, contributing to the display's community feel and holiday spirit.

Winter Wonderland is sure to get you in the Christmas mood. Who's ready for a road trip to Winter Wonderland in Oconto?

Winter Wonderland features more than 150 lighted displays provided by Oconto area businesses and organizations.
