Wendler recognized for 20 years of service

School board president attributes success to fellow school board members, Witt-Birn staff

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A local school board president has been honored for his dedication and commitment to his school district.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood School Board President Chuck Wendler was recently recognized by the Wisconsin Association of School Boards for 20 years of serving on the board.

"They give that award out to all of the members that are on a school board for 20 years and they also have a 30-year award, too," said Wendler. "It is an honor to be recognized for being able to represent our school district on the board for so many years."

Superintendent Garrett Rogowski also showed recognition to Wendler and talked about what he means to the Witt-Birn school district.

"He has genuine interest and is very authentic when it comes to his leadership role," said Rogowski. "He always has the best interests for students and staff in the district."

Wendler said that he was asked to run in 1995 and finished second in voting. The person who beat Wendler completed two terms on the board, then had to step away for health reasons, giving Wendler an opportunity to run again.

"The reason that I ran was because I wanted to be an influence and I wanted to be able to influence the education that our kids receive," said Wendler. "I thought that I could provide leadership to the board that would help everybody out."

Wendler called his time serving as "rewarding."

"Several people ask me why I have been on the board that long or why I continue on the board, and it is because we have such a good team of staff in the school," said Wendler. "That makes it a lot easier (to be the school board president). I have been school board president for 14 years now. The way I look at it is that somebody has to have the title of school board president. However, you are only as good as the people around you."

Wendler elaborated on this saying that the school board members, administration, staff and students in the district excel at supporting each other with splitting up responsibilities and collaborating on tasks that are at hand.

"We approach it where everyone is important in the district, so they all can contribute," said Wendler. "If there is a weakness that I have or others have, there is more than enough people to make up for that weakness. It is also just knowing your team well enough to the point that if you don't have the answer, you know where to go to get that answer."

Throughout his 20 years on the board, Wendler said that he has continued to learn and develop skills to be used in a school district setting and outside of the district.

"(I learned) that you are never too old to stop learning," said Wendler. "Learning is a life lesson. One of my pet peeves — I attended college and graduated from the University of Wisconsin-River Falls — is when people think you graduated college and know everything. Actually, it teaches you how to learn, so that is the same thing with everyone that is on our staff. We are always looking to improve and learn how to do things better."

Looking toward the future, Wendler did not signify a timeline of when he plans to end his tenure on the school board, saying that he will continue to serve as long as the community continues to support him.

"I will continue to be on the board as long as I feel like I can contribute to the board," said Wendler. "What I don't want to be is that stereotypical board member, where you are old and keep doing things the way that you have always done them in the past."

To sum up his time on the school board, Wendler said that being a part of the school district is a very important part of his life, because it is his way of giving back to the community.

"A few years ago, I talked to an old friend of mine and told them that I was on the school board, and they responded saying that I am working with the future of the Wittenberg-Birnamwood area," said Wendler. "One of my crowning moments was that I was able to hand a diploma to all three of my children on stage. That is what it is all about — to share those moments of success with our kids."

Possible Wittenberg wedding venue in works

Owner hopes to turn New Horizons Church into wedding destination

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Local resident Joe Quance appeared at the Wittenberg Village Board meeting on Dec. 5 to discuss possible uses for the New Horizon Church that he recently purchased.

Quance explained to the board that he was hoping to use the church, at 400 E. Front St., as a wedding venue for people in the community or for those willing to travel to Wittenberg to get married.

"There is nothing really in the codes to say yes or no to that," said Quance. "I know churches do that, so I figure it might work."

Wittenberg Village Board member Barb Buchholz asked Quance about his plans for parking. He replied that he is going to talk to Nueske's Applewood Smoked Meats about using a parking lot that the business owns near the church.

"That parking lot that is there

"That parking lot that is there can probably do 10, maybe 15 (cars) if we squeezed it in. We would need a little bit more than that."

can probably do 10, maybe 15 (cars) if we squeezed it in," said Quance. "We would need a little bit more than that. If we can work out a deal with (Nueske's), that could solve the problem there."

Buchholz said that she likes the concept but once again warned that parking still may be an issue.

"Unless you do make arrangements that you can use that parking lot behind you, it's going to be street parking," said Buchholz. "I have seen sometimes when the church had street parking that it gets to be a mess because (Front Street) isn't very wide."

"It becomes a one-lane road (with street parking on both sides)," added board member Theresa Gatz.

Gatz, who lives near the church, said that children younger than 10 years old live in the area; an influx of cars coming and going is something that Quance needs to think about, she said.

"We don't want to have events and things like that. We just kind of want to do receptions," said Quance. "No weird parties, like bachelor parties or anything like that. That is not really the idea at all."

Gatz also noted that the church is in a residential area of the village. She asked what the plan is if a party extends into the late hours of the night.

"I think we are fine to adhere to any requirements," said Quance.

"It would be the same thing that we do with this community center, with a residential area across the street. It is in the contract that they sign for the community center that everything has to be brought indoors by 11 p.m., and the (noise) level needs to go down," said Wittenberg Village Clerk Traci Matsche. "We do have a noise ordinance in the village, especially in residential areas."

Village board member Dave Timm expressed his thoughts, saying that he thought it was a good idea as well.

"You are still within the spiritual idea with the church," said Timm.

Because Quance came to the meeting just to discuss the board's thoughts on the concept, no vote was taken.

School district looks at improving public image

Communications consultant seeks to work with Shawano to better inform staff, community

By LEE PULASKI

City Editor

The Shawano School District is working on reviving its public image, and it could be turning to a communications consultant to help restore trust with the public.

The Shawano School Board received a presentation Dec. 5 from Dorreen Dembski, who runs her own communications company out of Fond du Lac that focuses on internal communication and public relations for school districts. She has 18 years of working as a communications director for various school districts and then worked with the Wisconsin Association of School Boards before starting her own business.

"Communications is one of those things that escapes a lot of schools — not because you don't have the desire or even that you don't have the goal, but oftentimes you don't have the people on staff who can get the work done," Dembski said. "I started working with schools a long time ago, and I continue to work with schools now on my own as an independent contractor."

Interim Superintendent Kurt Krizan said that the presentation was just to get an idea of the services that could be offered through Dembski. If the board was interested, he said he would ask her for a formal proposal.

However, the question of cost soon came up, and Dembski indicated that six months of work from her company could cost the district around $25,000, which brought up questions from the board members. Dembski said the cost breaks down to about $3,000 to $4,000 per month to start, which includes dedicating 20 hours a month to examining what the district's needs are.

"Whether it's doing your newsletter or working on your social media content strategies, there's a lot of work that gets done in the first year for a foundation to be built," Dembski said.

Board member John Arens sees better communication as essential, saying that there's little to no marketing going on in the district. However, he wanted to make sure that this proposal didn't turn into more work for the staff.

"The one thing I don't want to see is that we're paying money, and it means more meetings for people," Arens said. "I need something to actually happen with this. If we look at a marketing person, what do we need to bring in? If we bring in seven outside students that join the school district, that pays for our marketing person."

Board member Karen Smith noted that the district has already offered a hefty pay hike for the work proposed to be done in house. She referred to when the board voted in 2020 to give Robyn Shingler, Shawano Community Education director, a $20,000 pay hike to take the lead in the district's marketing and community engagement.

"Are we going to be reducing that department's salary if we go this way?" Smith said.

Board member Alysia Pillsbury said she appreciated the opportunity to be able to think about the communications proposal, as she was feeling some déjà vu about the issue of public relations coming back on the board's agenda.

"I just want to know that there's going to be a return on that investment," Pillsbury said.

Dembski noted that much of her company's work focuses on ongoing communications, but she has also worked to inform communities about school referenda. Shawano's public schools have been considering going out for operational and capital requests to voters but have held off since a survey conducted earlier in the year indicated a lack of trust in the district's handling of finances, with most of the finger-pointing aimed at former Superintendent Randi Anderson.

Dembski said the reason many school districts are behind in their communications effort is that the transmission of information has changed as the internet has become entwined in people's lives. Prior to the internet, information came out more slowly with time for officials to prepare a response, something that has been lost in the age of around-the-clock information dissemination.

"Information moves quickly.

We also have misinformation and disinformation and, with all of those things, it makes communication a 24-7 job," Dembski said. "Some of us prefer emails; some of us prefer texts. Some of us prefer face-to-face. We all have our own preferences, and we only attend to what's important to us."

The key to improving public relations, in Dembski's view, will require district officials to understand that the timing of information going out is powered more by the community than by the schools.

"People want information when they want it, not when you want to send it," Dembski said. "That's a big problem for school districts — what to send, when to send it, how to send it. Another downside is that if we don't provide the information people are looking for, they become frustrated, disillusioned, think that you're hiding something."

Dembski praised some of the work done so far, including recognizing outstanding staff and students. She noted that a presentation earlier in the meeting where Krizan handed out certificates honoring people with Hillcrest Primary School is something that's not seen very often in schools.

Meth, THC, fentanyl found in drug arrest

Shawano man charged had warrant out from Outagamie County

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A Shawano man was charged Dec. 2 with multiple drug-related charges in relation to an incident in the Town of Menominee on Dec. 1.

James L. Lamczyk, 38, was charged with one count of possession of amphetamine/methamphetamine/etc., with intent (greater than 10-50 grams), one count of possession of fentanyl, with intent (greater than 10-50 grams), one count of possession of THC (second or subsequent offense) and three misdemeanor counts of possession of drug paraphernalia.

If convicted, Lamczyk faces fines of up to $100,000 and 25 years in prison for each count of possession of amphetamine/methamphetamine/etc., with intent (greater than 10-50 grams) and possession of fentanyl, with intent (greater than 10-50 grams). He also faces up to $10,000 in fines and 3½ years in prison for possession of THC (second or subsequent offense) and $500 in fines and 30 days in prison for each misdemeanor count of possession of drug paraphernalia.

According to the criminal complaint, a Menominee County Sheriff Department’s sergeant was on duty when they were alerted that James Lamczyk was at the Menominee Casino and Resort and it was believed that Lamczyk had a felony warrant. After communicating with the Menominee Dispatch Center, it was allegedly indicated that Lamczyk had two felony warrants and was on active probation/parole.

The Menominee County Sheriff’s Department sergeant was allegedly alerted that Lamczyk was getting into a vehicle in the parking lot. From there, another responding deputy allegedly pulled up to Lamczyk’s vehicle, explained that he had a warrant out and detained him. While searching Lamczyk, officers allegedly found what they believed to be methamphetamine in Lamczyk’s wallet.

A vehicle search followed, where officers allegedly found a piece of foil with burnt residue, a glass smoking device — that is allegedly used for methamphetamine, two metal containers that allegedly contained a large amount of gray substance — which officers believed to be fentanyl and a backpack containing a green, leafy substance, two glass smoking pipes, a used syringe, a green hallow pen and a digital scale.

Using a testing kit, officers allegedly determined that 0.9 grams of a crystal substance, 10.52 grams of a separate crystal substance, a glass smoking device, and the used syringe all tested positive for methamphet-amine, while the hollow green pen, burnt tin foil piece and digital scale all tested negative. The 9.9 grams of a leafy, green substance, a yellow, glass smoking device and a black grinder all tested positive for marijuana. The two metal containers — one containing 1.69 grams of a gray substance and one containing 9.5 grams of a gray substance — tested positive for fentanyl.

According to court records, Lamczyk had a bench warrant issued from Outagamie County on Oct. 27. The charges from that case includes one count of theft of movable property, one count of burglary and one misdemeanor count of criminal damage to property.

During Lamczyk’s Dec. 2 initial appearance, Shawano-Menominee Circuit Court Judge William Kussel Jr. set a cash bond of $10,000 and scheduled a preliminary hearing for Dec. 9.

Working to reduce ODs in Indigenous community

Over 107,000 people died from an overdose this year, with rates rising most quickly among Black and Indigenous communities. Moreover, the CDC revealed that only one in 10 Indigenous people with a substance use disorder reported receiving treatment. Similar to other Indigenous communities across the United States, the Menominee Indian Tribe has experienced the devastating impact of the overdose crisis. At Maehnowesekekiyah Wellness Center, we are indigenizing care and centering our culture in services to reduce health disparities and prevent overdose in our community.

The Maehnowesekekiyah Wellness Center provides a variety of therapeutic interventions to people with mental health and substance use disorders, including outpatient-based services, peer support, community education, and outreach. Indigenous people with opioid and substance use disorders are routinely denied access to treatment due to systemic social and health barriers. In addition to mental health stigma, prohibitive costs and transportation issues, one of the most prominent barriers is a lack of culturally informed healthcare and supportive services.

It is vital to integrate our cultural values into the different treatment approaches that we offer, and to acknowledge the ways in which Menominee people are still impacted by our history. Indigenous communities have been subjected to genocide, disease, and displacement. As recently as this summer, mass gravesites of Indigenous children are still being discovered at boarding schools, within museums and state universities. Indigenous people not only must cope with this intergenerational and historical trauma, but they experience ongoing traumatization and marginalization.

Rather than promote Westernized treatment models such as the 12-step program, we are working towards utilizing harm reduction and evidence-based approaches that help Menominee people reconnect to their roots and history of our tribe. The Maehnowesekekiyah Wellness Center specifically has Indigenous clinicians and elders who work with clients. In therapeutic sessions and groups, we also utilize Indigenous medicines, such as smudging with sage and providing education on how to use traditional medicines in a respectful way.

We want to incorporate our culture in every aspect of care. This includes providing self-care workshops, which are aimed at connecting individuals to their culture through traditional craftwork and indigenous based workshops, in collaboration with other local tribal programming. We have created a community garden, where wellness center participants can learn to grow medicinal plants.

Moreover, as the Maehnowesekekiyah Wellness Center continues to grow, our goal is to expand harm reduction resources in the community. While a common misconception is that harm reduction “enables” people who use drugs, this public health approach to drug use can reduce overdose deaths and save lives. Through our community education program, we want to destigmatize harm reduction and teach people how to use naloxone in the event of an overdose.

Further, we hope to expand access to additional harm reduction strategies, such as fentanyl test strips so that people can use drugs more safely. Syringe services have not been introduced yet, and we do not have the funds currently to introduce this harm reduction intervention in our community. Not everyone is ready to stop using drugs, and it’s crucial to meet them wherever they are at on their road to recovery.

Earlier this year, our team was trained in Generation Red Road, an intensive curriculum that teaches us how to adopt holistic, culturally relevant models of care to better support people with substance use disorders. We are now guiding our clients who have substance use disorders through this curriculum so they can better understand trauma and addiction through a cultural lens.

Ultimately, I believe culture is a form of prevention. As a tribe, we are tired of tragically losing our family members, friends, loved ones to overdose. Menominee people deserve to thrive, and they deserve access to culturally driven care and harm reduction resources that can help end overdose in our community. Though we have experienced collective pain as a community, we believe that celebrating the Menominee tribe’s rich culture and history is essential to supporting people on their path to recovery.

Addie Caldwell is the director of wellness programs at the Maehnowesekekiyah Wellness Center on the Menominee Reservation in Wisconsin.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Same-sex marriage protected by law

To the editor:

When Gov. Lee Dreyfus signed the Wisconsin Anti-Discrimination Law, he was asked if that included same-sex marriage. He said, “yes,” and viewed marriage as a function of the state or civil authority. A civil marriage is a contractual union which can be dissolved when either party wishes.

Former Gov. Dreyfus said the state should provide the same rights to same-sex households with the same legal benefits and responsibilities as a male-female household. There are some who are concerned if there is any sexual activity involved; to which, he said, we should never let the state regulate such personal and private behavior. He believed that there is clearly a difference between state-approved marriage and religious or church marriage, called holy matrimony.

The joining of man and woman is considered a sacrament in some churches, and some churches may have a religious preference to not perform same-sex marriages, but that is a faith-based, private matter and clearly does not eliminate contractual right of same-sex couples to engage in a civil contract or state-approved marriage.

Court approves bond motion for Retzlaff

Former campground owner looking for month-long vacation with family outside of Wisconsin

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

Ann Retzlaff appeared over telephone in court on Dec. 5 in regards to a hearing on a recently filed motion.

During the motion hearing, Marathon County Circuit Court Judge Michael Moran said that Retzlaff filed the bond motion in order to travel out of state from Dec. 8 through Jan. 3 with her children to visit family members. Moran clarified with defense attorney Michael Hughes, who is representing Retzlaff, that she will not be residing outside of the state. Retzlaff did not indicate where she is going.

"She wants to take her three teenage children and travel out of state for winter break," said Hughes. "The plans haven't been finalized as there are still family court issues that need to be navigated, and because she can't travel without permission from the court, she hasn't made any plans yet."

Moran clarified with Hughes that Retzlaff is not looking for any other bond modifications.

District Attorney Greg Parker

objected to the motion, because Retzlaff previously failed to appear for a court date and prosecutors consider her a flight risk, stating that she is still engaging in "sovereign-citizen type" behavior. He also said that the district attorney's office received a notice of a lien against a Shawano-Menominee County Circuit Court judge and the Shawano County corporation counsel.

Parker also explained that the district attorney's office received information from the Sauk County Sheriff's Department that Retzlaff had allegedly contacted someone from a church, asking to take her out of the jurisdiction.

"The detective has a summary that says Ann called the church and said that she was looking for a ride to a Shell station in Gary, Indiana, on I-94," said Parker. "She is currently staying in a camper in Reedsburg and that person notified law enforcement. Ann wouldn't give her last name and said that she needed to stay under the radar. The Shawano County Sheriff's Department sent a photo down to (Sauk County) and the defendant was identified by both the husband and complainant in this case."

Parker said that if the Sauk County is confirmed, a bail jumping count will be filed.

Hughes responded saying that sovereign-citizen behavior or the incident involving Indiana — since charges have not yet been filed — should not have an impact on whether she goes on a winter vacation with her kids.

"In terms of Gary, it is certainly interesting for us to note, and I think we will see more documents pursued for litigation down the road for that matter," said Hughes, noting that Retzlaff is asking for permission from the court, as opposed to going on her own. "But at the end of the day, Ms. Retzlaff is asking for permission to go on a trip with her teenage children. I think it is always good for our mental health to get out of the state at least once over winter and spend time with their families."

Moran said that he would approve the bond motion, not immediately, but once Retzlaff detailed an itinerary for him for Dec. 8 to Jan. 3. He added that he cannot take the Indiana incident into consideration for bond, because she has not been charged.

"Any violation of the bond could result in all, or some of that money being forfeited," said Moran. "If it is forfeited, it could up in a bond situation, where it could endanger the possibility of being able to pay for counsel. There is a lot here, is what I am getting at. I am very optimistic and hopeful that Ms. Retzlaff will respect this court."

A final pre-trial is scheduled for Retzlaff for Jan. 12. Retzlaff is facing felony charges dating back to May 2021 of fleeing and eluding officers and two counts of second-degree recklessly endangering safety, as well as a misdemeanor count of resisting or obstructing an officer. She also faces misdemeanor charges through Menominee County for resisting and failing to stop. Bail jumping and disorderly conduct charges were added in April after she missed two court appearances in late 2021, and deputies arrested her in Wittenberg.

Dragons saga launches with intensity

This week felt like a good time for a little fantasy, so I selected Daniel Arenson's "Requiem's Song." This is the first book in his "Dawn of Dragons" series.

Ten years ago, Prince Raem of Eteer found his wife, Anai, and little daughter Laira transforming into dragons. Raem hated those who could morph into the great winged creatures and would have tortured and killed them both, but they escaped into the far north wilderness. Since that day, Raem has made it his mission to find and destroy all who carry the "weredragon" disease.

Part of Raem's madness is caused by the fact that he, too, is a weredragon but can't reconcile himself to it. The northern village of Oldforge is far from Eteer, but when weredragons were found there a mob killed Jeid Blacksmith's wife while he, his father and his children Maev, Tanin and little Requiem found their way to a mountain canyon called the eling between tribal camps, where he would juggle for food or shells and she would fight much larger men for a prize. Those forays paid for supplies not available within the escarpment.

Not long after they escaped, Little Requiem died after eating a poisoned lamb. Her terrible death made Jeid vow to turn the escarpment into a haven for all weredragons, though he feared there were no others.

For several years, Anai and Laira escarpment.

Here they were safe from the massive, vulture-like Roc birds Jeid's twin brother, Zerra, used to hunt and kill dragons. Tannin and Maev often spent days travsheltered in Zerra's tribe, but that ended when Anai was caught in dragon form and burned at the stake. Laira had always been horribly mistreated, but after her mother's death, the abuse escalated. When her dragon blood is revealed, Zerra plans to burn her at the stake, but she is saved by the bond she shares with a Roc. Eventually she reaches the escarpment where she is welcomed and cared for.

At the same time, Raem has summoned Angel, the Queen of the Demons, and her minions. He frees them to find and kill any dragons hidden in Eteer, and mayhem ensues. When he discovers his son Prince Sena in dragon form, he locks him in a high tower to die. Sena's sister Princess Issari spread the word that a dragon was captive in Eteer.

Raem goes north to enlist Zerra's clan's in dragon killing, and Maev and Tanin arrive to free Sena. Issari longs to transform and go north, too, but it never happens. By the time Raem returns, the demons have nearly destroyed Eteer. In his rage he beats Issari and locks her in a room with Angel and her demons. As they attack Issari understands that the transformation as a gift instead of a curse and suddenly morphs into a beautiful white dragon. After slaying many demons with her new-found fire, she flies north hoping to find Sena, Tanin and Maev.

Battles ensue on several fronts, and it appears Angel will be able to breed and create more horrific demons. One can only imagine the horrors that have been unleashed. No living creature is safe from their ravenous appetites for blood. Soon I'll tackle the next part of this gory saga.

You can find multi-book chronicles, simple stand-alone stories and everything in between at your public library. Just go in soon and check it out.

Preparing for Christmas and the winter routines

As I write this month's newsletter, it is apparent Old Man Winter hasn't sent his nasty weather our way just yet. I'm sure that within the coming week or two, we could be singing a very different tune. And with that, the snow boots, sleds and Christmas ornaments will begin to adorn our favorite hills, porches and family gathering areas.

The Christmas season is coming upon us faster than maybe some of us are ready for. When we celebrate it right, it presents our children with exciting anticipation of a truly unique experience we only get this one time of the year. I hope you all have a very enjoyable Christmas and continue to celebrate good health, happiness and the end of one year and start of another. Sometimes nothing brings more joy to a child than that first snowfall of the year or finding that Elf on the Shelf!

Here at school, as we adjust our maintenance schedules in preparation for the winter season, we will also keep a close watch on current and upcoming forecasts. Weather-related school cancellation decisions are made with every intention of keeping our students and families safe during times of freezing rain, ice accumulation and snow that threaten safe travel to and from our schools.

Wausau TV stations WSAW-7 and WAOW-9 are notified along with Green Bay stations WBAY-2, NBC-26 and WFRV-5 of any cancellations or closures. We also contact radio stations WSAU/WIFC/WRIG/WDEZ, along with posting announcements on our district website and Facebook page.

So as we make our final run toward Christmas break, we look forward to celebrating the holiday season with your children and all that Old Man Winter throws at us! From all of us here at Wittenberg-Birnamwood Schools, we wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Garrett Rogowski is superintendent for the Wittenberg-Birnamwood School District.

Shawano boys hold off Pulaski in thriller

Metcalf-Grassman, Landon combine for 55 points for Hawks

The Shawano Community High School boys basketball team kept its perfect season alive after holding off Pulaski late in a high-scoring nonconference battle on Dec. 3 in Pulaski. Shawano prevailed by a final score of 80-78.

Shawano built a double-digit lead by the end of the first half and led by a couple possessions for much of the second half before Pulaski clawed back into it. The visiting Hawks led by 12 points with two minutes to go, but the Red Raiders kept fighting and trimmed their deficit to just one.

After missing some free throws to allow Pulaski to hang around, Shawano knocked down its final four attempts to finally seal the contest.

"It's all trust, it comes down to knowing that you have your teammate's back and they have yours and no matter how hard it gets, you have to keep the same mindset and trust your teammates are going to make the right play," said Shawano's Jacob Landon on how the team held on late after giving up its lead.

It was Landon that knocked down four free throws over a minute-plus stretch to put Shawano up 73-61 with two minutes to play.

Pulaski's furious comeback began with a 3-pointer from Colin Schultz and was followed by a bucket from Derek Shaw. After free throws from Shawano's Michael Metcalf-Grassman, Shaw buried a 3-pointer.

Shawano missed three free throws over the next couple minutes, and two buckets from Schultz over that span brought the hosts within three with 17.8 seconds to play.

The Hawks traveled after inbounding the ball, giving Pulaski a chance to tie it with a 3-pointer. Shaw, who scored 36 points in the game, wasn't able to hit on a triple attempt, and then Metcalf-Grassman swatted away a follow-up chance by Pulaski under the basket.

Shawano then decided to foul with 6.2 seconds remaining, with Schultz converting both attempts to make it 76-75.

A infraction was called on Pulaski before the ball was inbounded, giving Shawano two free throws and the ball. Landon made both free throws to reach 30 points for the contest, and then Metcalf-Grassman hit two more free throws to get to 25 points.

Shaw hit a triple as time expired, capping a game in which he buried eight 3-pointers. He kept Pulaski in striking distance all game before Schultz heated up down the stretch.

"I like the fact that we battled back, which is good, that's what we want to do," said Shaw of the team's efforts.

"Our goal every game is to give ourselves a chance at the end, so at halftime we were down a little bit and wanted to make a run so we could get back in it and hopefully make it interesting."

It was a back-and-forth battle between the teams in the early going. Metcalf-Grassman gave the visitors a 9-7 lead before Schultz hit a 3-pointer and Shaw knocked down two triples to put the hosts up 16-9.

Shawano responded with a big 17-4 run, with Landon doing most of the scoring for the Hawks.

Later on, an 11-1 run by the Hawks — this time with Landon and Luke Guenther doing the majority of the scoring — created a 15-point cushion.

Pulaski didn't let things unravel though, ending the half on a 7-2 run, with Brady Wotruba and Shaw scoring the points.

The second half was a continuation of the first, with both offenses scoring at a torrid pace.

Deacon Carroll got into the scoring mix for Shawano, while Shaw hit a couple more shots for Pulaski. Brandon Reed then scored three straight buckets for the Hawks off inbound plays — including a thunderous jam off a lob play — but the Red Raiders continued to find ways to score on their end.

Shaw knocked two a couple 3-pointers and scored eight points for the hosts during a quick 10-2 run to make it a three-point game with still nearly nine minutes to play.

Metcalf-Grassman and Landon teamed up to answer for Shawano. In fact, that duo scored all 20 of the team's points over the next seven-plus minutes.

Pulaski wasn't able to score at the pace it had most of the contest, but the baskets it converted were crucial in hanging around. Schultz and Wotruba converted and-one opportunities and Wotruba also scored after a steal.

Metcalf-Grassman credited Pulaski for fighting back several times in the contest before the Hawks were finally able to put them away.

"We just had to box out and get rebounds on defense when they did miss and then it was just taking care of the ball at the end and knocking down free throws," said Metcalf-Grassman.

Witt-Birn girls continue hot start to season

Chargers open conference play with lopsided win

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Wittenberg-Birnamwood High School girls basketball continued its impressive start to the season with a convincing 62-31 win over Shiocton in a Central Wisconsin Conference-East Division matchup on Dec. 2 in Wittenberg.

The Chargers shot 36% from the field — missing some good looks near the rim — and missed seven free throws, but the team made up for it by knocking down 11 3-pointers and turning Shiocton over early and often.

The win pushed Witt-Birn to 5-0 overall and 1-0 in conference play.

“I think we just have a great bond with each other, and we can really — without actually verbally communicating — we just kind of know where everyone is going to be on the floor,” said freshman Rory Salvesen, who led the team with 19 points on the night. “And that really helps us out, because we know where we got to be, and we know who is going to be where when. It’s really a benefit for our team.”

Salvesen was one of three Chargers to hit three 3-pointers in the contest. Senior Reese Rogowski and freshman Melaina Granquist each hit three triples and provided 16 points for the hosts. Senior Jami Wendler hit the team’s other two 3-pointers to score her six points.

It was a slow start offensively for Witt-Birn. The Chargers missed their first five shots and were only able to score seven points in the first seven minutes. Despite the cold shooting to start the game, the hosts were tied thanks to great defensive play.

“We stayed true to our defense and worked hard on the defensive end, and that led to a lot of steals and turnovers on their end,” said Rogowski. “We were able to push down the floor and get some easy baskets.”

After not hitting a triple in the early portion of the game, Witt-Birn caught fire from deep to bust the game wide open.

one. Salvesen converted a 2-point make — the team’s first non-triple in nine minutes — before she hit another 3-pointer, making it 24-11.

After a Shiocton basket, Salvesen had a steal and bucket before Granquist buried another triple. Granquist converted another shot before Wendler hit her second 3-pointer to cap the scoring in the first half and give the Chargers a 34-13 halftime lead.

The 3-point barrage briefly carried over into the second half, with Rogowski hitting a triple, but after that the Chargers went scoreless for five-plus minutes. Despite the scoring drought, the lead was never truly threatened because the hosts only surrendered nine points in that span.

Granquist broke the drought with a free throw, sparking a 16-0 run which helped Witt-Birn close up the win.

Sophomore Faith Resch, Salvesen and Rogowski joined Granquist to provide the scoring on the big run.

Granquist and Salvesen hit their final 3-pointers during that stretch.

From there, Witt-Birn was able to coast to the victory, with Rogowski, Granquist and junior Katherine Stewart tallying the team’s final points.

Along with leading the team in points, Salvesen also was credited with nine steals, six rebounds and five assists. Rogowski had eight rebounds and three assists, while Granquist had six boards.

Senior Allison Linke contributed six rebounds and four steals for the Chargers in what turned out to be a balanced effort.

Despite the lopsided score and perfect start to the season for the Chargers, the team knows it can still get better. That gives the players some big aspirations.

“We have high expectations this season, so just being able to get this first win in the conference by this much and not have all of us playing our best shows that once we do hit our peak that it will be good,” said Rogowski.

“You can always be better; never settle for anything,” said Salvesen. “At practices, we’re constantly pushing one another, which is great. I love the group of girls that I get to be with every day and the coaching through everything. The motto is to get better always, never settle, push to be the best you can be. That’s kind of the mindset we go into every day in practice.”

Shiocton 13 18 — 31

3 Tigers combine for 45 points

By MORGAN RODE

The Gillett Secondary School girls basketball team earned a non-conference road win over Gresham on Nov. 29 in Gresham after controlling the start of the second half.

The visiting Tigers went on a 16-4 run at the start of the second half to put away a pesky Wildcats group. Gillett went on to win 51-33.

Gillett scored on its first possession of the final half. Gresham answered with a couple free throws before the Tigers rattled off the next eight points. At that point, Gillett led 40-19 and cruised to victory from there.

"We definitely boxed out a lot more in the second half than the first half," said Gillett's Cheyenne Krueger on what the team did in the second half to pull away. "We made sure that even if we made a mistake, we kept our heads up and that really helped push us to a 20-point lead."

Cilena Guns led Gillett with 20 points in the contest — despite missing the last chunk of the game with an injury. She scored eight of the points on the Tigers' second-half spurt.

Guns also helped the visitors grab the lead in the opening half, scoring back-to-back buckets early on and then tallying eight of the team's final 13 points to give the team a 28-16 halftime advantage.

The Tigers pushed the ball every chance they could against Gresham's press, and it led to some quality looks.

"I feel like when we're on a fast-break, it was easy layups, so there really wasn't much to really compete with — I was wide open for the fastbreaks," said Guns.

Aside from Guns' 20-point performance, Krueger and Carleigh Kaczmarek also scored in double figures.

Kaczmarek heated up in the second half and tallied 14 points for Gillett. She scored the team's final seven points.

Krueger was aggressive all night and attempted all of the team's free throws on her way to an 11-point showing for the Tigers.

"It's such a relief because if I'm having a bad night, I can always count on my teammates to pick it up where I'm lacking," said Krueger of the balanced scoring attack. "Even if they aren't having a good shooting night, they always make up for it in rebounds or steals."

Gresham's Jessa Jensen opened the scoring in the contest with a 3-pointer, but Gillett scored the next 11 points.

A three-point play from Jensen, basket from Josie Cerveny and another triple from Jensen made it a two-point game, 13-11.

Gillett scored the next two baskets before Maddie Haffner knocked down a 3-pointer for Gresham.

It took the Wildcats nearly three minutes to score again, and by then, Gillett had built an eight-point cushion.

The Tigers also ended the half on a 6-0 run to push that lead to double digits.

Haffner knocked down Gresham's free throws near the start of the second half, but it was another three minutes until the team scored again.

"I think we weren't talking enough," said Jensen on some of the team's struggles. "When we want to throw into the lane, we want to do a bounce pass and we were trying to lob it, or throwing it when we shouldn't have, and I think our passes got away from us. We weren't talking enough and our shots were just off."

The mini scoring droughts proved to be too much for the hosts to overcome in the end, despite a solid finish to the contest.

Janay Pecore-Kirkland, Chloe Bohl, Haffner and Jensen all scored late for the Wildcats, with many of the points coming off offensive rebounds.

Jensen led the team with 12 points, while Pecore-Kirkland had eight and Haffner seven.

Gillett bests Marion in nonconference clash

Tigers with well-rounded effort in opener

By MORGAN RODE
Sports Editor

The Gillett Secondary School boys basketball team turned in a well-rounded effort in its 61-33 nonconference victory over Marion on Dec. 1 in Gillett.

The Tigers knocked down nine 3-pointers while also attacking the paint against Marion's zone defense. Gillett also locked the visiting Mustangs down on the defensive end, and pulled away for a lopsided win in its season-opening contest.

"It's good. Last year, we lost our first couple of games and we started out very low, but it's nice to get a win in our first game," said Jesse DeBauch, who led the Tigers with 20 points.

"It feels great, we got a lot of confidence now," said Austin VandeCorput, who added 15 points. "We just got to build on that and keep that momentum going."

Gillett looked like it might run away with the game early after jumping out to a 9-2 lead in the first three minutes. Ben Matczak hit a triple for the team's first points of the year, and then DeBauch knocked down a couple more triples.

Parker Miller kept Marion in the contest, scoring six straight points for his team to cut the deficit to two, but another DeBauch 3-pointer forced a Marion timeout.

"In zone, that's all you can really do is move the ball fast. We get it to our high post, and they look opposite and it's usually wide open," said DeBauch. "In zone, you can't really guard that."

With Marion making some tweaks to its defensive approach, Gillett countered to continue getting good offensive looks.

VandeCorput got into the heart of the Marion defense and was able to knock down a couple shots from around the free throw line. His play near the paint helped keep defenders off the 3-point line, and the hosts ended the opening half with six 3-point makes.

"I know when I'm in the middle of a zone there's a lot of people, so when I get it, I like to look for the dish, and if it's not there, I like to make my move and go up for a basket," said VandeCorput.

Miller kept the Mustangs within striking distance for much of the first half, but a 3-pointer from Aydin Franti and bucket from Tyler Frank right before the halftime buzzer gave the hosts a 32-15 halftime lead.

Marion's Jaden Stuhr hit a shot on the visitor's opening possession of the second half and a 3-pointer from Sam Gueths brought the Mustangs within 12. After that, Gillett went on a 6-0 run and ran away with the lead.

"Our offense we were running, we didn't really get open looks, we weren't going as hard as we normally do," said Miller. "Defensively, we weren't fast enough tonight."

"They pressured the ball really well and they played tight defense — there's not much you can do," said Stuhr of Gillett's play. "They knocked down some good 3s and continued hitting their shots throughout the game and made it tough to play good defense when they do that, and they'd also be quick inside."

Miller led Marion with 16 points in the contest. Stuhr, who picked up four first-half fouls, was second on the team in scoring with seven points.

The Mustangs were missing a couple players and only had eight players suited for the contest.

Gillett had seven players score in the contest. Along with DeBauch and VandeCorput scoring in double figures, Matczak finished with 11 points.

Marion went on a 6-0 run in a two-plus minute span to make it a 52-33 game with just under six minutes to play.

After that, the Mustangs didn't score again, with DeBauch going on a personal 6-0 run to help seal the contest.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

New Badgers coach Fickell begins by reaching out to his new players

Wisconsin AD apologizes to team for tough season

By STEVE MEGARGEE
The Associated Press

Wisconsin football coach Luke Fickell spent much of his first day on the job speaking to his new players, knowing many of them had hoped this search would have a different outcome.

His message to them was sympathetic but direct.

"Change is inevitable," Fickell said Nov. 28 during a welcome event before his introductory news conference. "The growth is what's optional. I'm willing to grow."

Fickell posted a 57-18 record in six seasons at Cincinnati and helped the Bearcats earn a College Football Playoff berth last year. He has Big Ten experience as a former Ohio State defensive lineman and interim head coach.

Yet his immediate challenge will be winning over a roster featuring many players who weren't shy about saying they wanted this job to go to Jim Leonhard, the former Wisconsin defensive coordinator who went 4-3 as the Badgers' interim head coach after the Oct. 2 firing of Paul Chryst.

"We'll all be growing together through this change," Fickell said. "It's never easy. It's never easy, but the things that are easy aren't what last. The things that are easy aren't going to get us to where we want to go, to get us back to where we deserve and believe we need to be."

Athletic director Chris McIntosh said Fickell will get a seven-year contract averaging $7.8 million per year.

Fickell, 49, takes over a Wisconsin program that hasn't won a Big Ten title since 2012 and must win its bowl game to avoid its first losing season since 2001.

Wisconsin hasn't indicated its staffing plans for the bowl game, though Fickell said he and Leonhard had started talking it over.

"I'll be coaching in some way, shape and form," Fickell said. "We'll figure out what that means."

The hiring of Fickell represents a second stunning move by McIntosh, who took over this job last year after the retirement of Barry Alvarez.

First McIntosh fired a coach who had won 72% of his games, though Chryst had gone just 15-10 since 2020 and was off to a 2-3 start this year. Then he passed up the opportunity to make Leonhard the permanent replacement and instead spent big to bring in Fickell, who has a much more proven track record.

Leonhard is a former Wisconsin walk-on who developed into an All-American safety, played 10 years in the NFL and gained a reputation as one of college football's top defensive coordinators. McIntosh praised Leonhard's performance as interim head coach, called him "part of the DNA of this program" and said he gave him "very strong consideration" before deciding on Fickell.

"It became evident that Luke and his experience and his belief system and his approach and his process, which was proven and does align with what we believe here, was the way that I felt we should go and the way I felt best positioned our program for long-term success," McIntosh said.

Fickell can identify with Leonhard's circumstances, having gone 6-7 as the interim head coach at his alma mater in 2011 after the exit of Jim Tressel and before the arrival of Urban Meyer at Ohio State. Fickell said he's open to the possibility of including Leonhard on his staff if there's mutual interest.

But he noted that Leonhard figures to have plenty of options.

"Jim will know what's best for him," Fickell said. "Jim will know what's best for this program. Jim will know what's best for this team. And I respect that. We'll continue to talk about what the future looks like, but we don't know what that is right now."

McIntosh said he did apologize to Wisconsin's players this season for all they've endured. Dozens of them attended the public welcome for Fickell.

Many players expressed their disappointment over the firing of Chryst back in October before calling for Leonhard to get the job. They've also dealt with tragedy off the field, as former running backs coach Gary Brown died in April and former teammate Devin Chandler was one of three Virginia players killed in a shooting earlier this month.

"The experience that these kids on this team had this year isn't one that I would wish on anyone," McIntosh said. "It's been extremely difficult. That's why I said earlier how proud of the approach they took. When we met with them last night, I recognized it and I apologized for decisions I have made this season that have contributed to the challenges of this season. That just can't be overlooked. It's been the hardest part for me and it's clearly been hard on these players, on these student-athletes."

Wisconsin is counting on Fickell to help the program move forward and get back to competing for titles in a Big Ten that should get much more competitive with Southern California and UCLA arriving in 2024.

Fickell has referred to Wisconsin as a destination job. He appreciated Wisconsin's program while competing against it as a player and coach. He can't wait to lead it.

"I'm incredibly excited to get started," Fickell said. "We can't get this thing rolling fast enough."

Deer gun harvest numbers up across Wisconsin

The preliminary 2022 nine-day gun deer season harvest totals were up 14.4% across Wisconsin.

A total of 203,295 deer were harvested this year, compared to 177,667 a year ago. Of this year's total, 104,898 deer taken were antlerless, while 98,397 were antlered.

All four deer management zones showed harvest increases from 2021 for both antlered and antlerless harvests. The Central Forest Zone (30.6%) saw the most significant increase, with the Northern Forest Zone (19.3%) also seeing a considerable increase. The Central Farmland Zone was up 13.5%, while the Southern Farmland Zone was up 10.2%.

The Central Farmland Zone in Adams County led the state with over 12 deer registered per square mile. Vernon County led the Southern Farmland Zone with almost seven deer registered per square mile. The Central Forest Zone in Eau Claire County registered 4.8 deer per square mile. Taylor County registered the most per square mile in the Northern Forest Zone at four.

Opening weekend saw cold temperatures and snow throughout the state, with ideal conditions except for the strong winds on Nov. 19. DNR staff across the state reported good weather throughout the weekdays of the season. Warm weather later in the season melted snow, reducing deer and hunter activity.

More information regarding preliminary registration totals, including county-level numbers, is available at dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/WildlifeHabitat/harvest/deerharvest.html.

Since archery seasons opened on Sept. 17, hunters have registered 301,540 deer statewide.

As of 11:59 p.m. on Nov. 27, sales for gun, bow, crossbow, sports and patron licenses reached 795,072. Of that total, 436,423 were for gun privileges only and 554,898 were for all gun privileges including gun, sports and patron licenses. The year-to-date sales for all deer licenses are down 1.6% from the same time last year.

This year, licenses were sold to hunters in all 50 states, Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico. Additionally, hunters came from 21 different countries to deer hunt in Wisconsin.

As of Nov. 29, the DNR reported eight firearm-involved injuries and one fatality for the entire 2022 gun deer season.

MORGAN RODE | NEW MEDIA

The Shawano Community High School boys basketball team is off to a perfect 5-0 start this winter season after a strong 2021-22 season. Michael Metcalf-Grassman, playing in his senior season, has been a big part of the team's success of late and is off to a hot start this season.

Metcalf-Grassman scored 31 points in a win over Lakeland Union on Nov. 22, and then scored 21 points while also contributing eight rebounds and four assists in a win over Clintonville on Nov. 26.

The senior scored 28 points in a home win over Appleton North on Nov. 29 before scoring 18 points in a victory over Wittenberg-Birnhamwood on Dec. 1. He scored 25 points in a tight win over Pulaski on Dec. 3.

Metcalf-Grassman is coming off a junior season in which he averaged just under 20 points a game and landed on the Bay Conference's second team.

ATHLETE PROFILE: CARLEIGH KACZMAREK

Tigers' senior hopes to lead team to success

The Gillett Secondary School girls basketball team has high hopes for the winter season. They are returning several key players from a team that placed second in the Marinette & Oconto Conference last winter. Senior Carleigh Kaczmarek is one of those players, and she's ready to lead the team this year.

Kaczmarek led the squad in scoring a season ago and made the all-conference first team for her all-around play. She averaged 12.2 points, 3.5 rebounds, 2.9 assists and 1.9 steals per game.

The senior also is a long-distance runner, competing for the cross-country and track and field teams for the Tigers.

Q: When did your interest in basketball begin?

A: From the minute I was born. My dad (Mike) has been a basketball coach since I can remember. The gym was practically my second home; I was always in it. I always begged to go to the gym and go to practices with him. I constantly had a basketball in my hand.

Q: What is your favorite part about the basketball season?

A: The fun and competitive practices and games, along with the fans/student sections at games. They bring so much energy. Overall, the whole season is just so much fun because I make so many more new memories to be thankful for.

Q: As a senior, how do you try to lead the rest of your team?

A: As a senior, I lead the rest of my team by giving them as many opportunities as possible to get into the gym. I give reminders on the court, celebrate teammate's wins/success with touches and words, team wins, communicate and give teammates confidence.

Q: As the season ramps up, what are you and the team most focused on?

A: The team is most focused on getting better every day and game. Along with getting better at boxing out and rebounding.

Q: What is your favorite thing to do on the basketball court and why?

A: Create — whether it's a pass, drive or shot. I love having good plays, high-fiving teammates, smiling and laughing with them.

Q: Do you have any individual goals you hope to accomplish this winter season?

A: To be a better player and leader than last year, while enjoying my last season in a Gillett Tigers uniform with my best friends next to me.

Q: In order for the team to have a successful season, what needs to happen?

A: We need to play to the best of our ability, work as a team, box out and have fun.

Q: Before a game starts, do you or the team have any routines or rituals you go through?

A: I do, or have someone braid my hair. Also I take a picture with the team or someone.

Q: What's your favorite memory of competing on the Gillett girls basketball team?

A: I have many memories and choosing a favorite is really hard, so my top two are my game-winning shot at Wausau East last year, or our regional semifinal against Florence last year.

The Wisconsin DNR reminds turkey hunters that 2023 spring harvest authorization applications are due by 11:59 p.m. on Dec. 10.

WISCONSIN DNR

Spring turkey harvest applications due

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources reminds wild turkey hunters that applications for the 2023 season are due by 11:59 p.m. on Dec. 10.

Hunters can apply for harvest authorizations or purchase preference points toward future drawings at GoWild.wi.gov or through an authorized license agent.

Turkey harvest authorizations are issued through a preference-based drawing system. More information on the turkey preference drawing is available in the Turkey Frequently Asked Questions (dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/hunt/turkey-question.html).

Applicants may choose up to two time period and zone combinations that they would like to hunt. As a third choice, applicants may choose one zone in which they will accept a harvest authorization for any period. This third choice can be the same zone as the first and/or second choice.

The second and third choices are optional, but applicants are encouraged to submit additional choices to maximize their likelihood of drawing a harvest authorization.

Successful applicants are notified by mail after the drawing results are finalized. Applicants not selected will receive a preference point that will increase their chances of drawing a harvest authorization the following spring season. Hunters can check their application status online through Go Wild.

Any harvest authorizations not awarded in the drawing will be available for purchase as bonus harvest authorizations. Bonus harvest authorizations will cost $10 for residents and $15 for non-residents.

All turkey hunters must possess a valid spring turkey license and wild turkey stamp when they acquire their spring turkey harvest authorization. A 2023 spring turkey license is $15 for Wisconsin residents and $60 for non-residents. The 2023 wild turkey stamp is $5.25. Licenses will go on sale March 1, 2023.

The 2023 spring turkey season is as follows:

- Youth Hunt – April 15-16
- Period A – April 19-25
- Period B – April 26-May 2
- Period C – May 3-9
- Period D – May 10-16
- Period E – May 17-23
- Period F – May 24-30

For information on hunting in state parks, visit the DNR webpage at dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/parks/hunt. All harvested turkeys must be registered. For information on how to register your turkey, visit the DNR turkey hunting and management webpage at dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/hunt/turkey.

2023 black bear harvest applications due by Dec. 10

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources reminds black bear hunters that applications for the 2023 season are due by 11:59 p.m. on Dec. 10.

Hunters can apply for harvest authorizations or purchase preference points toward future drawings at GoWild.wi.gov or through an authorized license agent.

Preliminary estimates show hunters harvested approximately 4,100 bears during the 2022 black bear season. Final harvest totals will be available at a later date. In the meantime, DNR staff and the Bear Advisory Committee are currently determining the 2023 harvest quotas.

The drawing for 2023 harvest authorizations will take place in early February.

With growing interest in bear hunting in Wisconsin and a limited number of licenses, the DNR encourages the public to review management zone boundaries and license wait times while making hunting plans.

Last year's bear drawing results and zone-specific wait times are available on the DNR's website at https://widnr.widenet.net/s/jlcmr7z-7vg/beardrawing_summary2022.

Bear permit applicants must apply at least once during any period of three consecutive years to retain their accumulated preference points otherwise all accumulated preference points will be lost.

If an applicant is selected in the drawing, their preference points will be reset to zero, even if they do not purchase the harvest permit. Applicants must remain aware of drawing status.

Applicants selected in the drawing are notified by mail shortly after the drawing and may purchase their 2023 Class A bear license beginning in March 2023. Applicants may also check their status online through their Go Wild customer account (gowild.wi.gov/).

The current zones are part of the Wisconsin Black Bear Management Plan, 2019-2029, developed by the DNR Bear Advisory Committee and approved by the Natural Resources Board in May 2019. The new bear management zones (p.widencdn.net/rz6opf/BMZ_2021) are designed to address bear conflicts and manage desired population levels effectively.

The season structure for the 2023 bear season is as follows:

Zone A, B and D: Sept. 6-12 with the aid of dogs only; Sept. 13-Oct. 3 with the aid of dogs, aid of bait, and all other legal methods; Oct. 4-10 with the aid of bait and all legal methods not using dogs Zone C, E, and F: Sept. 6-Oct. 10 with the aid of bait and all other legal methods not using dogs.

For more information on bear hunting in Wisconsin, visit the DNR bear hunting webpage at dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/hunt/bear.

WIAA Board sanctions lacrosse as sport

Spring sport to begin in 2024

The Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association Board of Control approved the addition of lacrosse as a sanctioned sport at its December meeting on Dec. 2.

After receiving a presentation from the committee assigned to evaluate the feasibility of adding boys and girls lacrosse to sports sponsored by the WIAA, the board unanimously passed the proposal that targets the spring of the 2023-24 school year for the inaugural season with a tournament series. Additional details, including season regulations and tournament procedure, will be communicated when they become available.

It's the first time an entirely new sport has been introduced for both genders since the addition of boys and girls soccer in 1982-83. Since that time, hockey and wrestling expanded to girls sponsorship in 2002 and 2022, respectively, and boys volleyball was reinstated in 2000, but those sports were already sanctioned for the other gender.

"We commend members of the planning committee for months of work and collaboration with member schools that already sponsor the sport," WIAA Executive Director Stephanie Hauser said. "Our staff and membership look forward to the new opportunity for student-athletes to participate in a sport quickly gaining popularity around the nation."

Among the action items approved by the board include the 2021-22 independent audit report conducted and presented by Hawkins Ash CPAs, the October general fund statements and payments, the deferred liability fund report for September, and the 2022-23 meeting dates calendar.

The executive staff provided reports to the board on the Competitive Balance Ad Hoc Committee, continued efforts to recruit and retain licensed officials, review of participation in the Wisconsin Athletic Directors Association Conference, awareness of upcoming membership elections, a review of fall tournaments as well as an update on the InsideOut Initiative endorsed by the board in October.

The board received liaison reports from John Ashley of the Wisconsin Association of School Boards, Paul Manriquez of the Department of Public Instruction and Eric Plitzuweit of the Wisconsin Athletic Directors Association.

Festival of Trees rings in Christmas

Trees will be on display at Tigerton Main Street throughout December

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

One local community organization has brought back a holiday tradition in Tigerton.

Tigerton Main Street opened its Festival of Trees event at the organization's office on Dec. 2. Visitors were treated to wintertime snacks and treats while they toured the office, which is decorated for the season with trees from various organizations in the area.

Also present at the event was the Grinch, who children and adults were invited to talk with and take pictures with. She explained that visitors are given the opportunity to vote on which trees that they like the best, using pennies. Whichever organization receives the most votes, will get a prize, which is yet to be named.

"Today, we are kind of bringing the community together with our annual Festival of Trees lighting," said Tigerton Main Street Manager Amanda Marker. "The community can come in, look at the trees and vote on which ones they like the best. It is just something fun to do."

Marker said the more than 20 trees on display are decorated by various businesses and organizations in Tigerton and in surrounding areas. Marker explained that the Festival of Trees lighting event is held in early December every year and helps not only to give the community an opportunity to meet each other and catch up, but also to help ring in the holiday season.

"I had a lot of volunteers who did the decorations, too, outside of the trees," said Marker. "We like to hold this to help bring in Christmas spirit. This is one of our bigger events to help bring people together — this and Applefest in September."

The lighting was the first day that visitors had the opportunity to tour the trees and enjoy some holiday treats. If someone missed it though, it is no problem, as Marker said that the trees will be on display through Christmas. She added that an updated schedule will be posted on Tigerton Main Street's Facebook page, Tigerton Main Street Inc.

"I will be here from 1:30-4:30 p.m. every day throughout the week, and then we have some volunteers," said Marker. "I am working on getting a schedule to put out to the public."

In terms of preparation, Marker said that planning for the event happens weeks in advance. She said with the help of board members from Tigerton Main Street and other community members, the event was able to be set up smoothly.

"I had a couple of high schoolers come, and they dragged all the trees up to the second floor, and we had a haunted house set up for Halloween," said Marker. "That was a way to utilize trees for something other than one month. It was like a little haunted forest."

Marker added that seeing various community members come together to help Tigerton Main Street make this event a reality again was a welcomed sight and helped her to work on other things.

"It is so nice," said Marker. "It has definitely been a relief that we have had all of this help."

She said that Tigerton Main Street has around the same amount of trees as last year. She said that hasn't stopped visitors from taking the tour of the trees in the building. Marker said that one thing that stuck out to her in their early hours of the lighting was seeing the amount of children and their reactions to the trees and The Grinch.

"I work at the elementary school too, so seeing the kids come in, me knowing who they are and seeing the excitement on their faces — it has been just a really nice start to the holiday season," said Marker.

In terms of what visitors can expect when they arrive, Marker said that she wants visitors just to enjoy their time among the specially decorated trees.

"I would say just kind of let everything go, enjoy the decorations and get into the holiday spirit," said Marker.

To heal, energize and find inner strengths

Sweetgrass Behavioral Health new provider for Shawano area

By WARREN BLUHM
Editor-in-chief

With her husband, children, sisters, mother and invited guests looking on, Alegra Fowler formally opened her new clinic, Sweetgrass Behavioral Health, on Dec. 2.

"This is something I've been dreaming about for some time," Fowler told the group that packed into the small office suite at 102 E. Green Bay St. in Shawano. "Thank you to my family and you all for your support."

Fowler, a psychotherapist and licensed clinical social worker with experience working for the Oneida Nation and Menominee Tribal Social Services, said she saw a need for a local mental health provider for ages 10 and up.

Her services include cognitive behavioral therapy, trauma-focused therapy and grief counseling, as well as brainspotting, which her literature describes as "a powerful, focused treatment method that works by identifying, processing and relating core neurophysiological sources of emotional/body pain" and other symptoms.

Why "Sweetgrass"?

"Because of its medicinal properties," Fowler said. "It's very helpful in purifying and healing the system."

The goal of her service is to provide a neutral, safe space for clients to help them heal, become energized and regain their inner strengths, she said.

WARREN BLUHM | NEW MEDIA

After graduating from the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay in 2002, Fowler worked for the College of Menominee Nation for nearly nine years, then returned to UW-Green Bay to study for her Master of Social Work. She did her internship with Oneida Behavioral Health and spent three years as a family preservation social worker for Menominee Tribal Social Services, earning her certification as a licensed clinical social worker in 2019 and going to work with the Oneida.

At least two dozen people attended the ribbon cutting, including Fowler's husband, Joel, her mother, Ava Fowler, and sisters Alden Payne and Alea Cox.

"We're all proud of her," Ava Fowler said, encouraging visitors to partake of the spread prepared by Tom Jonet, longtime chef at Reinhart Foodservice in Shawano. "You have to eat if you want to have a beautiful day."

To get information or make an appointment, call Fowler at 715-280-8130, email contact@sweetgrassbh.com or visit www.sweetgrassbh.com.

Calendar art features dazzling trail photos

I have a love-hate relationship with trail cameras. Checking their SD cards is like an early Christmas — opening those images on my point-and-shoot camera in a hunting blind brings the surprise gift of the local bucks, does and even an occasional coyote or raccoon that pass by.

ROSS BIELEMA

I've had more than my share of issues with these magical little hunting tools. First, they suck batteries like Winnie the Pooh at his honey jar, especially when it's cold. Second, some of them are so complex that they require an engineering degree to set properly. I've only owned three brands of trail cams: Moultrie, Wildgame Technologies and Browning. The Moultrie was simple to use and took fairly good photos, but had a somewhat slow trigger speed (faster is better to avoid missing moving animals) and eventually stopped working. The Wildgame Technologies seems to work a little better, and I've had pretty good luck with it. The Browning has an amazing range of 100 feet, no-glow flash and a complex menu that I still haven't mastered.

I set the Browning up once when we were on vacation and, when I got back, I had thousands of photos of a moving tree limb. Recently, I tried it in a deer woods and accidentally set it on time lapse (I still haven't figured out the purpose for such a setting, unless you want photos of a melting iceberg) and got 2,500 photos, spaced a minute apart, of my ground blind and two photos of turkeys.

Seeing deer and other game moving through an area is useful to help you know what sort of bucks or does are there, but a beautiful buck photo taken at 2:35 a.m. doesn't mean you will ever see that buck during legal shooting hours.

One man who knows trail cameras and has put them to work for him is Jim Schoenike, of rural Marion. He produces an annual wildlife calendar shot only with his trail cams. His tips on trail cam usage can help you use them more effectively, and might encourage you to use them during the off-season to get extraordinary shots of wildlife, just as he has.

The avid deer hunter and owner of about 200 acres of woods, swamp and farm fields in Waupaca County first started using basic trail cameras in the early 2000s, when they still used film. Like most of us deer hunters, he just wanted to know what bucks and does were roaming his hunting haunts.

Schoenike, president of Clintonville Bow Hunters and a columnist for the Wisconsin Bowhunters Association magazine, began to catalog his thousands of images, including raccoons, hawks, owls, foxes and even bears, bobcats and wolves.

Schoenike's calendars, produced under his Big Oaks Products moniker (www.bigoakproducts.com), have amazingly sharp, clear photos that are so much better than any trail cam photos I've ever seen. In fact, many of the images rival those shot with professional cameras.

He offers many tips on using trail cams, but the Jim Schoenike, of rural Marion, produces a wildlife calendar entirely from trail camera photos. He displays two of the Cuddeback cameras he uses and two favorite photos — a juvenile red-tailed hawk and a stalking bobcat — from his archives of more than 50,000 images. You can see his calendars at BigOakProducts.com.

keys are to position the camera properly (at the proper height for the animal you are trying to capture) and make sure the lighting is sufficient.

Placing the camera with the sun to the rear is obvious. Depending on the time of day you may expect the deer or other game to show, you may need more than one camera pointing in different directions for optimum results. In most cases, face your cameras to the northeast or northwest.

He uses a fully adjustable bracket that allows the camera to be positioned at almost any angle.

Practice good scent control around your trail cams, even wearing rubber gloves if possible.

He's stuck with Cuddeback cameras because he knows how they work and because they have proven reliable. Cuddebacks have a fast 1/4-second trigger when motion is detected, resulting in capturing more images than a slower trigger time. He may have up to two dozen cameras out at any time and uses them all year, not just during the deer season.

One thing I like about the Cuddebacks he showed me was that some models feature a dial setting, rather than an electronic menu. This means fast and simple settings that can be checked at a glance. I hate clicking through long menus and hoping they are set properly.

He agrees with the philosophy of the simpler, the better.

He never shoots video, saying video is less useful for determining a buck's antlers than still photos. He's not used any of the newer cameras that send images to a cell phone.

He powers his two dozen cameras with ordinary alkaline batteries, stocking up when they are on sale.

Trail cams aren't just used by hunters. He encourages birdwatchers to set one up near the backyard bird feeder, or set one on a post frequented by hawks and owls. He built a box to protect a camera and make it easier to mount on a post. That's how he got several of his most dramatic shots.

His photos also caught the attention of Fleet Farm, which has sold holiday gift tins of candy with his Big Oak Products images for many years. He also sells note cards and prints of his amazing photos.

Dear's gone hunting, brought home a deer

Though my home and heart are in the Northwoods, I don't come from a deer hunting family. My people were dairy farmers, and the idea of taking time off to go up north to kill a tough, stringy buck when you are raising your own grass-fed beef was beyond comprehension. There was one time, though, that a neighbor gave us some fresh venison steaks. Mom was game to try it, but as a busy farm wife, she didn't have time to find out how to cook it.

Oh, dear. To this day I am convinced those steaks were from a mean old bark-fed buck looking for revenge, because they actually looked and chewed like leather. The meat had such a "wild" taste that, for once, my father did not insist we eat everything on our plates. In fact, I think that was the only time I ever saw him leave more than a morsel on his plate.

My first husband wasn't really a hunter, either, but he went to deer camp for cognac, camaraderie and card games. He never brought home a deer, and that was fine by me. If he had, like my mother, I would have had no idea what to do with it. The truth is I had no desire to learn, so years passed

KATHLEEN MARSH

40 that I have genetically-transmitted high cholesterol. As luck would have it, that year I married my second husband, who had been deer hunting since age 10. Jon explained that venison has very little fat and no cholesterol, perfect for someone with my heredity who likes red meat. I was excited when he brought home a buck that year. My game plan was to learn how to prepare it so I could eat it without gagging.

Taking advice from a cousin who was a lifelong connoisseur, I succeeded, and over the years I've learned to cook all kinds of wild game: squirrel, turkey, rabbit, grouse, elk and, of course, venison. I have had guests say it's better than beef, though I would never try to fool anyone and always ask before I needed to change my destiny — and my diet.

The motivation came from a strange source, a primary care physician who informed me when I turned before serving it. I have found many ways to prepare a great meal of venison, but if you've come into possession of some, here's an easy, delicious recipe.

While the meat is thawing but still firm, remove all the silver skin and fat with a sharp knife. This eliminates the wild taste. Loins are easy; all they need is to be cooked or grilled quickly at high heat and eaten immediately. However, that will not work if you are cooking less tender cuts. These should be thinly sliced or cut into small chunks (think tenderloin tips). Measure a couple tablespoons of flour into a plastic bag, throw in the venison and shake the bag to coat the meat.

Next, brown the venison over medium high heat in butter just until the red is gone. Season with salt and pepper. It really adds a nice touch and makes for a tender finish if you add a splash of Worcestershire sauce and a squirt of ketchup. Smother the meat in onion, garlic, canned or fresh mushrooms, whatever you like, and simmer gently in beef broth for at least three hours. Be sure to add water as needed to keep the meat in a simmering liquid at all times. As my mother learned the hard way, venison can turn to shoe leather in a hurry.

As for the beef broth, I prefer Penzy's, but even broth made from the little cubes wrapped in foil will do. Just be aware they are loaded with salt. Whatever you do, do not add spices like bay leaf or thyme if you have never tasted them before. For most people, it's the unfamiliar spice and not the venison they dislike.

When the meat is fork tender, cook down the juice to make a delicious brown gravy. Ladle the meat and gravy over mashed potatoes, noodles, rice or pasta. Cooked carrots and peas and grilled French bread make perfect sides. Serve it piping hot, then sit back and enjoy both the meal and the compliments!

Oh, in case you were wondering, Jon got a nice eight-point buck on opening weekend. He says every year that this might be the year we won't have venison in the freezer. I hope that never happens, because I am told grilled cheese is loaded with cholesterol.

Prayers answered and unanswered guide lives

Do you pray? How and when do you pray? Prayer according to Meriam Webster Dictionary is "an address (such as a petition) to God or a god in word or thought."

I was raised in a family with a religious foundation. My mom, dad, grandparents and myself attended church every Sunday, always sitting in the same pew. I attended parochial grade school and high school, so I was taught early on in life how to pray. I had learned the basic simple prayers and recited them habitually to the point I stopped believing the words. They didn't seem to have any meaning anymore.

From the age of 18 years old to about 38 years old, I would pray when things didn't go my way or when I found myself in a crisis. I very rarely prayed for someone else or just prayed to thank God. I would pray for a relationship to work out. When it didn't, I would blame God. Years down the road, I would realize God did answer my prayer in His way, not mine, and God's answer was much better than mine could ever have been.

I began to understand prayer more when I found my spirituality in a power greater than myself whom I call God. I no longer prayed without feeling and sincerity. I do pray the Lord's Prayer given to us by Jesus and a prayer I wrote mainly at night when I go to bed.

During the day my praying is more like a conversation with God. Something like "God, thank you for your blessings, what do you need me to do today? Please guide and protect me in the tasks I need to do. Bless and protect my family and friends today and always. In Jesus name I ask this, Amen." This is how I pray now or at least try to, but I am not perfect and do fall short. My God is patient and will be there to listen.

God already knows what is in my heart and soul. I will sometimes pray silently with the feeling in my heart and the thoughts in my head. You can pray however you understand and feel. A simple "Hi God, thank you," or "Help me please, God," is a start to praying. I have found humbling myself on my knees and praying with true sincerity seems to help me find the answers, not necessarily the answers I am asking for but answers just the same. The answers to your prayers may not be what you want or think they should be, but they will be in accordance with God's will for you. Your prayers may not be answered on your timeframe, but they will be answered according to God's plan. Time, patience, and faith is needed to receive the answer to your prayers. In this day and time, everything is faster paced and confusing. With all the pain and suffering around us today, why not try to pray then wait for the answer? What will you have to lose? You perhaps will gain everything. Talk with God today. He is listening. Bless you.

Quilt combines cattle with flowers

The nation's largest barn quilt trail in Shawano County continues to grow with the addition of its 401st quilt. It is on a barn owned by Sheldon and Merissa Cannon at W3896 County Road BE, Bonduel.

The Cannons just moved to their new home a few months ago. They plan to grow sunflowers, fruits and vegetables and raise beef cattle. Thus, their quilt pattern, which combines the two, is called "Beef and Blooms." It was painted by the Shawano County barn quilt committee.

Sheldon Cannon grew up working on farms in the Bonduel and Cecil areas, and both he and Merissa had wanted to have their own place. When this one came up for sale, they purchased 2.5 acres of the property, which includes the barn and house.

The farm was homesteaded by John Luebker and his wife in 1869 when they moved to the area from Dodge County. They built a log cabin on the property in 1870 and added onto the house and built the barn in 1900.

Theodor and Alma (Luebker) Kupsy owned the farm for a number of years, until it was purchased by Ted and Marian (Westphal) Kupsy in 1958. They sold the last piece of the farm land in 2008. The farm was an active dairy farm from 1900 to 1987 and went through several owners after Ted and Marian moved out. Formerly known as the Luebker Family Homestead, it is now the Cannon Family Farm.

"We really like our quilt and are very happy to be part of Shawano County's barn quilt trail," Merissa Cannon said.

The barn quilt was put on display by LeRoy Raddant and his son, Keith, who owns Raddant Electric in Shawano.

Hoffman gets Wisconsin Farm Bureau accolades

Christa Hoffman was selected as the winner of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau's Young Farmer and Agriculturist Outstanding Agriculture Professional Award at the organization's 103rd annual meeting on Dec. 4.

Hoffman is a business development administrator at URUS. She manages grant-funded projects focused on improving cattle management practices on farms in emerging markets. Working for a global cattle genetics company, her primary focus is establishing new commercial markets while providing access to artificial insemination to make long-term impacts on production and profitability of farms. Hoffman and her husband, Brad, raise two young children on the family's dairy farm in Gresham.

"This contest recognizes Young Farmer and Agriculturist members going above and beyond for agriculture and within their communities," said WFBF President Kevin Krentz. "Christa is a shining example of the impact Farm Bureau members have in rural areas."

The Outstanding Agriculture Professional Award is presented to a Farm Bureau member between the ages of 18 and 35 who has not derived a majority of his or her income from a farm for the past three years. Examples of occupations of ideal applicants include agricultural education instructor, fertilizer salesperson, veterinarian, farm employee, journalist or marketer.

Hoffman serves on the Shawano County Farm Bureau board of directors and is the co-chair for Brunch on the Farm.

She will receive $1,500 courtesy of Growmark Inc., the opportunity to attend the 2023 AFBF Fusion Conference in Jacksonville, Florida, and is eligible to participate in the 2023 YFA Washington, D.C., Fly-In.

The Wisconsin Farm Bureau Foundation co-sponsors this contest with Growmark Inc., and Rural Mutual Insurance Company. This is a new Wisconsin Farm Bureau award replacing the Excellence in Ag competition.

performance dates are Feb. 10-12 and Feb. 17-19.

"War of the Worlds" is a radio play, only now the audience will be able to watch how a live radio production occurs. In 1939, this radio program swept the country as listeners truly believed that aliens had invaded the earth.

This production will need 10-15 actors and actresses of various ages for this performance. Call 920-834-4353 or email susie.machickaneeplayers@gmail.com for more information.

Shawano County Library eliminates fines system

Beginning Jan. 1, Shawano County Library will be fines-free on all books. This means that books will no longer accrue a daily overdue fine when items are not returned by the due date. Two years ago, the library removed fines on children's and teen books.

In 2019, the American Library Association passed the Resolution on Monetary Library Fines as a Form of Social Inequity. The resolution outlines that removing fines tends to increase library card adoption and usage while retaining fines leads to barriers in access to materials and resources.

Items that are never returned, lost or damaged will continue to be billed to the patron account. Movies, video games, music and other all other media will continue to accrue daily fines at this time.

For information, contact the library at sha@shawanolibrary.org or 715-526-3829.

SNBT donates to Oconto County aging commission

This October marked 148 years that The Stephenson National Bank and Trust (SNBT) has been servicing the needs of the community.

SNBT may no longer hand write its ledgers, or use bank notes as currency, but the long-lasting bank continues to be involved in its local community.

"Our Chairman's Challenge has become an annual staple of employee support for local non-profits," said Daniel Peterson, SNBT president and chief executive officer. "This year it marks our 148th anniversary, and I can think of no better way to celebrate this milestone than by giving back, because the success of the bank has always stemmed from our community."

All SNBT branches participated in a collection drive during the months of October and November. The Oconto office donated its collected items to the Oconto County Commission on Aging Inc.

Packers beat Bears, take over all-time wins lead

Rodgers salutes Soldier Field in possible last game at Chicago

By LUKE REIMER
Reporter

A win over the Chicago Bears pushes the Green Bay Packers to the winningest franchise in NFL history.

The first matchup in this storied rivalry came in 1921, when the then-Chicago Staleys (a name that would change to the Bears a year later) shut out the Packers 20-0 on the back of a 45-yard touchdown run from Pete Stinchcomb.

Since that game, the rivalry has evolved to include such NFL Hall of Fame players as Walter Payton, Ray Nitschke, Gale Sayers and Brett Favre. While players and championships come and go, one thing has remained constant in the rivalry — Chicago holding the record for most all-time wins in NFL history.

In the offseason, many pointed at the week two matchup between the teams as the game where Green Bay could pass Chicago in all-time wins. Since Chicago won its week one matchup against San Francisco and the Packers lost their week one matchup to Minnesota, that anticipated matchup was delayed. In a divine circumstance, the teams came together in week 13, tied in the all-time NFL win column.

Winning this game puts the Packers at No. 1 all-time in wins, with 787. This is the first time since 1920 that the Bears have not held the record for the most wins — another NFL history-defining chapter in this storied rivalry.

“That’s a pretty cool deal for us to be the all-time winningest franchise,” said Green Bay Packers head coach Matt LaFleur.

Since games continue to be played, this record is not set in stone for Green Bay, and Chicago has a chance to reclaim its spot atop the list in two weeks. Over the next two weeks, Green Bay is on bye and then hosts the Los Angeles Rams at home on Monday night.

The Bears, on the other hand, have a bit more difficult schedule as they match up with Philadelphia, followed by Buffalo. While this record may change a couple times over the course of the rest of the season, one thing hasn't changed — Aaron Rodgers owning the Chicago Bears.

In what could be his last appearance at Soldier Field, Rodgers saluted the crowd as he walked off the field with his 24-5 career record against the Bears. In those 29 games, Rodgers has thrown for 6,695 yards (230.9 per game), 64 touchdowns (2.2 per game) and only 10 interceptions (0.3 per game).

“Right now, we’ve flipped the all-time series. We’ve flipped the all-time wins,” said Rodgers. “I’ve had a lot of success against them, so I think in a few years, you look back and you feel pretty good about your contributions to the rivalry.”

Rodgers’ contributions to rivalry have been more than plentiful, as he has hooked up with receivers Randall Cobb, Davante Adams and Jordy Nelson on numerous occasions. A newcomer seems to have emerged into that list in Christian Watson.

Now, it’s probably not likely that Rodgers is going to spend as much time with Watson against the Bears as the other four players, but in the two games that Watson has played against Chicago, he has recorded 57 receiving yards, 46 rushing yards and two combined touchdowns.

“I definitely had a feel for it — just the intensity of the game. I felt it from the first drive,” said Watson, on what it feels like to play in this rivalry. “Obviously, you feel the fight every single play, and I mean it’s exciting to get any win, but it’s definitely (exciting) to get a win against the Bears and a win against an NFC North opponent.”

In a disappointing season for Green Bay, Rodgers and the Packers proved that they still own the Bears, beating them twice. While Chicago was able to build such a strong lead in the win column through the 1940s, ’50s, ’70s and ’80s, Favre and Rodgers have done more than enough to swing the rivalry back in Green Bay’s favor.

Overall, the record between the two storied franchises is 105-95. With Chicago seemingly finding its next franchise quarterback in Justin Fields, the Packers may need to act quickly after Rodgers inevitably retires.

Does that include Jordan Love, or do the Packers go a different route? Nobody really knows the answer to that, and it may not be known for the next couple of years.

What is known, though, is that the Packers are 10 games ahead in the head-to-head record and at the top of the all-time wins list, something no team other than Chicago has accomplished since 1920.

Receiver room revamped

The offseason trade of Davante Adams played a big role in the colossal disappointment that has been the Green Bay Packers' 2022 season. How general manager Brian Gutekunst replaced Adams could play a big role in the franchise's quick rebound.

Second-round pick Christian Watson leads all NFL rookies with nine touchdowns, including seven touchdown receptions, on the strength of an astounding four-game stretch of eight touchdowns. Fourth-round pick Romeo Doubs showed plenty of promise before suffering an ankle injury that's essentially cost him the last five games. And, in a smattering of snaps, seventh-round pick Samori Toure has delivered a couple big plays.

"I'm very high on those guys' ceilings and what they could do as a group," Gutekunst said Monday.

Watson has taken the league by storm in one of the most incredible turnarounds imaginable. He infamously dropped a 75-yard touchdown at Minnesota on his first NFL snap in week one. Hamstring issues and a concussion limited him to only 81 snaps the next eight weeks. His season appeared to be going from bad to worse when he dropped his first two targets against Dallas in week 10.

And then came the play that changed everything, a 58-yard touchdown pass that jumpstarted Green Bay's upset win over the Cowboys. He scored three touchdowns vs. Dallas, two vs. Tennessee, one vs. Philadelphia and two vs. Chicago. His eight touchdowns in four games tied Randy Moss' NFL record for most touchdowns in a four-game span by a rookie receiver.

"You've got to give that kid a lot of credit because, obviously, the way the season started, going into camp with the (knee) surgery and then having to miss that time and falling behind because of different injuries and stuff," Gutekunst said. "I think a lot of guys, that would've been it, right? 'Hey, let's get to the next season and see how it goes.'"

"But I give him a lot of credit for not losing faith and not losing his work ethic because, when the opportunities presented themselves, he's made the most of them. I think the thing I'm most proud about with Christian right now is he really has a desire to be great and he's not walking around here like he's arrived in any way. I think he truly wants to be the best version of himself that he can be, and he knows there's still a lot of work out there for him."

Green Bay Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers points to the sideline during the win over the Chicago Bears on Dec. 4 in Chicago.

Gutekunst rolled the dice on Watson in this year's draft. With six receivers off the board in the top 20 picks, he used his first-round picks on linebacker Quay Walker and defensive tackle Devonte Wyatt. At the start of day two of the draft, he didn't just trade his two second-round picks to select Watson. He traded his second-round picks to the rival Minnesota Vikings.

It's one thing to make a trade. It's another to make a trade with a division foe. Imagine the outcry had Watson been a Year 1 bust while the Vikings got a couple stars. Instead, Watson looks like a future star.

"I always have a sigh of relief when our players do well," Gutekunst said. "I'm not really looking back on all that. I'm just really happy for the player and for Christian. He's done a heck of a job on his own, fighting through some of these things and just being prepared for his opportunities. It's not easy making it in this league, especially as a young player and coming in with a quarterback who has a standard that is so high. Those guys have been fighting really hard to get to that standard, and to see it come to the other side of it is really nice to see."

There's definitely more room for growth. Despite practically taking up residency in the end zone, he's only caught 15-of-26 targets the past four games. The Packers have to find ways to get the ball into the hands of the rookie with rocket speed and suddenly sure hands.

"Obviously, you want to get your playmakers the ball, and he's done a great job when we've gotten him the ball of making some big-time plays," coach Matt LaFleur said. "We'll continue to look, and I think right now is a great time for us to look at different ways that you can potentially get him the ball, whether it's on those jet sweeps and what else we can build off of that."

"But he is an explosive player, no doubt about it. You've seen it two weeks in a row where he just outruns everybody. He's a guy that you want to give as many opportunities to as possible."

No regrets

This past offseason, Gutekunst could have gone one of two ways. One, he could give quarterback Aaron Rodgers a contract extension to free up salary cap space to make additional moves to fortify a roster that reached NFC Championship Games in 2019 and 2020 and was the No. 1 seed in 2020 and 2021. Or, he could have traded Rodgers and moved forward with Jordan Love.

Gutekunst went with the first option. Going about as all-in as possible by kicking tens of millions of cap dollars into future seasons so he could re-sign linebacker De'Vondre Campbell and cornerback Rasul Douglas and add a few veterans, the Packers seem destined to miss the playoffs after an unprecedented three consecutive seasons of 13-plus wins.

"No regrets. Not at all," Gutekunst said. "Obviously, heading into the season, being the No. 1 seed the last two seasons leading into this season, a lot of high hopes. "We were certainly expected to be competing for a championship, and we are still in it. If we're able to dig our way back into this thing, we still feel like we have the ability to do that. But this season has not gone as we expected. But I think back then when we made those decisions, certainly, we were looking at a different outcome right now."

Will Bakhtiari be back?

When the Packers signed David Bakhtiari to a four-year, $92 million contract extension in November 2020, it was a reward to a player who was on his way to first-team All-Pro honors for the second time in his career.

About six weeks later, Bakhtiari suffered a torn ACL at practice. The injury not only derailed Green Bay's run to the Super Bowl but it derailed his brilliant career. He missed almost all of the 2021 season and the start of the 2022 season. When he's played, he's been great. But the knee remains the great unknown. He was a part-time player against the Giants and Lions and a surprise inactive against the Commanders.

Moving forward, Bakhtiari has cap charges of $29 million in 2023 and $33 million in 2024. The Packers could move on this offseason and create some cap space; he's due a $9.5 million roster bonus on the third-day of the 2023 league year. Or, they could roll the dice with a premier player at a premium position with the belief that the worst is behind him.

Gutekunst wouldn't tip his hand on which way he was leaning.

"I thought he played really, really well, and (the knee) was holding up really well, and then just snakebit with the appendectomy (before the Chicago game) and what he's going through right now," Gutekunst said. "But he's playing at a very, very high level. Left tackles don't grow on trees."

Love debate heats up as season slips away

With playoff chances dwindling, will team make QB switch?

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

With a broken thumb, Aaron Rodgers continued to start at quarterback for the Green Bay Packers. With injured ribs, Rodgers started at Chicago.

If/when the Packers are eliminated from the NFC playoff race — they're hanging on by a whisker with a 5-8 record entering their week 14 bye — the Packers could make a call to the bullpen to Jordan Love.

Does Love need to play?

Would it be nice for Love to play?

Will Love play?

General manager Brian Gutekunst, speaking on Dec. 5 during his mandatory, once-per-regular-season news conference, addressed each of those questions.

First, it's the narrative that Love needs to play to show the Packers what he can do both in terms of being the long-term successor at quarterback and for activating the fifth-year option on his contract, a $19.8 million decision that must be made by May 1.

The team's controversial first-round pick in 2020, Love has gotten substantial playing time in three games in three seasons.

He struggled in a regular-season start at Kansas City when Rodgers was out with COVID in 2021. He struggled while playing with mostly backups in the 2021 finale at Detroit. And he was sharp in relief of Rodgers during the fourth quarter at Philadelphia last month, when he led the team to 10 points in two possessions.

That's not much playing time, but three years of behind-the-scenes work carries a lot of weight in the long-term projection.

"We're really pleased with his progression and what he's been able to do," Gutekunst said. "I think that it would be really good for him, the growth that you need to go through, seeing things for the first time, making those mistakes that you need to make. But I think from our end of it, we've seen what we need to see."

If that sounds like nonsense — can the team really have a strong belief in a player one way or the other without significant playing time? — that was the consensus of three personnel executives who talked to Sports Illustrated's Packer Central.

"I'd say that, yes, you'd have some sense of whether a guy has 'it' by then or not," one of them said. "Three years is a good length of time to have a body of work to observe/make a judgment on that. Especially at that position, seeing how he operates daily, how he interacts with guys on and off the field, how locked in he is during practice and also how successful he is against the starters while running the scout team."

That doesn't mean there wouldn't be upside to getting Love in the lineup. There's no substitute for experience and handling situations in the heat of the moment. The Packers, for instance, knew Rodgers was going to be a successful starter before he replaced an injured Brett Favre at Dallas in 2007.

Rodgers had and up-and-down first season as a starter in 2008 before leading the team to the playoffs in 2009, winning the Super Bowl in 2010 and winning his first MVP in 2011.

"Obviously, we've seen him for three years in practice and doing the things that he's doing," Gutekunst said. "I think there was a stretch here while Aaron's been banged up where he's had a lot of reps with the 1s, which was great for him. I think it was great for us to see, but it was also just really, really good for him to experience game-planning each week.

"I think quarterbacks got to get into this league, play a bunch of games before they learn how to win, but I do think we feel very confident that Jordan can move the ball, score points and do the things that we ask of our quarterbacks."

Presumably, Rodgers will be in the starting lineup next Monday night against the Los Angeles Rams. After winning again at Chicago on Sunday, he said the thumb was "close to being a nonissue" and the ribs will be "close" to healed following the bye.

But if the Packers lose that game and are officially knocked out of the playoff race, will it be time to give Love those meaningful reps for the final games at Miami on Christmas and at home against Minnesota and Detroit to close the season?

Rodgers has said he'd be willing to step aside "without any bitterness or resentment."

Gutekunst, however, wasn't ready to say Love would get those opportunities.

"I think obviously if we get to that point, we'll kind of look at those things," he said.

"But I think no matter even if we're eliminated from the play-offs which it wouldn't be ideal, we're going to still go out to win the game, and I think that's really important. There's a bunch of guys in that locker room that deserve that, so we're going to go out to win the game and we're going to make the decisions that are in the best interests of us going and winning the game."

Would Gutekunst like to see Love go win a game?

"Sure," he responded. "I mean whoever's playing, you know what I mean? It's one of those things, it's as long as I think whoever gives us the best chance to win needs to be out there. It's only fair to this locker room. That's the way I feel about it. I think Matt (LaFleur) feels the same."

"Again, there's always kind of different ways to look at things, but football's a little bit different game than some others, so we'll make those decisions when we get there and what's best for the football team and going out and winning those games."

Q&A WITH CHRISTIAN WATSON

By BILL HUBER
Correspondent

Having traded Davante Adams, the Packers entered the 2022 NFL Draft in dire need of an impact receiver. Early in the second round, general manager Brian Gutekunst sent his two second-round picks, Nos. 53 and 59, to Minnesota in exchange for pick No. 34, which he used on Watson.

After dropping a 75-yard touchdown pass on his first NFL snap and playing only 81 snaps the next eight games due to injuries, Watson has scored eight touchdowns the last four weeks — tied with Hall of Famer Randy Moss for most in NFL history by a rookie receiver. After scoring two touchdowns at Chicago, here was his postgame interview.

Q: You caught the touchdown pass on fourth down. Even though you missed so much time, do you feel like you have chemistry with Aaron Rodgers?

A: For sure. For sure. I think the more reps I get with 12, the better that chemistry gets. I've got a ways to go personally, in terms of getting to the level that I want to be at, to be able to connect with 12 even more, but I'm still a work in progress.

Q: Do you feel unstoppable? Not every play but that you're too talented to be stopped for too long?

A: I think that's my mindset, for sure. That's the mentality everyone has to have, honestly, when they're out there. When you're going every single play, it's a one-on-one between you and the man across from you. So, I think that's the mentality everyone has out there, and it's definitely the mentality I have, for sure.

Q: Have you thought about what your numbers might be and where this team would be if not for the injuries?

A: Obviously, there's what ifs and stuff like that, but I can't predict any of that. I think that God had a plan for me and it's working out just the way he planned.

Q: You got bragging rights over the Bears. Do you have a feel for the rivalry?

A: For sure. I definitely had a feel for it and just the intensity of the game. I felt it from the first drive. Obviously, you feel the fight every single play, and I mean, it's exciting to get any win, but it's definitely exciting to get a win against the Bears and get a win against an Green Bay Packers receiver Christian Watson carries the ball during a win over the Chicago Bears on Dec. 4 in Chicago.

GREG MELLIS | NEW MEDIA

NFC North opponent.

Q: What's the feeling of taking the all-time NFL lead with 787 wins?

A: It's exciting. I can only speak for myself but I truly feel blessed to be part of an organization like the Green Bay Packers. Regardless of how the season so far has gone for us, I'm just happy to be part of this organization.

Q: Can you take us through the jet-sweep touchdown? You got past Sammy Watkins and he started celebrating. What's that feeling like?

A: Yeah, to be honest, if I see nothing in front of me, it's looking pretty good. Honestly, that's exactly what I saw: I saw no one. I saw the corner go in with Sammy on his little crack block and I knew if the corner's not coming off there's no one that's going to make the play from the inside.

Q: Was your leap into the end zone planned?

A: No, actually, that was not planned at all and, when I was in midair, I had no clue what I was doing. So, I've got to come up with something beforehand if I'm going to do something like that because that was definitely not what I was trying to do or planned on doing.

Q: The last four games, you've had 17 touches and eight touchdowns. Have you ever had a stretch like that?

A: I have not. I have not. Not even close, honestly. Obviously, having a run-first team in college, we weren't relying as much on the pass game as we were the run game in college. So, it wasn't expected of me nor were the opportunities always present. But I'm just doing what I can with the opportunities when they come.

Q: Entering the draft, some scouts thought you were really talented but really raw. Have you improved that much during your time or were you pegged as being rawer than you actually were?

AT A GLANCE

Number: 9
Age: 23
Season: Rookie
Position: Wide receiver
College: North Dakota State

A: I think I was definitely pegged as being rawer than I truly was. I definitely feel like I have a lot of growth, a lot of potential, as well. I was in an offense that was really successful at what we did and, if I only needed to run three or four routes for us to be successful and win championships in college, then that's exactly what we were going to do.

But I think there was a lot that scouts or anyone who turned on the tape wasn't able to see out of me just because we didn't need to do that to be successful. So, I think I've been able to continue to prove that I can do more and more than people thought I could do, but I think there's a lot of room for growth, as well.

Rodgers, Packers rally in 4th quarter to beat Bears

Watson scores 2 more touchdowns

Aaron Rodgers figured the Green Bay Packers were in a good spot and would find a way to pull out the win. Given his history against the Chicago Bears, it wasn't exactly a big leap of faith.

Rodgers led three fourth-quarter scoring drives, receiver Christian Watson took an end-around 46 yards for a touchdown in the closing minutes after Jaire Alexander intercepted Justin Fields, and Green Bay rallied to beat Chicago 28-19 on Dec. 4 in Chicago.

The Packers (5-8) looked like they were on their way to another loss after dropping seven of eight. They trailed by 13 in the second quarter and were down 19-10 through three before before outscoring Chicago 18-0 in the fourth on the way to their eighth straight win over their rival.

The Bears (3-10) lost their sixth game in a row.

"There was probably a lot of people that felt good at 19-10," Rodgers said. "So did I."

AJ Dillon ran for a 21-yard touchdown in the opening minute of the fourth. Mason Crosby kicked a 32-yard field goal to give Green Bay a 20-19 lead with just under five minutes left after Chicago's Cairo Santos had a 40-yard attempt blocked.

The Bears drove to the Packers 43 before Alexander stepped in front of a pass intended for Equanimeous St. Brown.

Three plays later, Watson sprinted untouched to the end zone, leaping across the goal line with his arms spread.

The Packers opted to go for 2, and Rodgers completed a pass to Mercedes Lewis, making it 28-19 with 1:51 remaining.

Fields was then intercepted at the Green Bay 5 by Keisean Nixon.

The Bears were left frustrated and vowing to do better after failing to convert late in a game yet again. Chicago has six losses by one score, and this was almost the seventh.

"You have to find ways to close games out," coach Matt Eberflus said. "We're excited about these next four games to get ourselves in position to do that. We were right there to get that done, and we'll get that done in the future."

Rodgers didn't exactly dominate the Bears. But he showed he still owns them, as he shouted last year toward the crowd at Soldier Field.

Rodgers, who exited last week's loss to Philadelphia with a rib injury and has been dealing with a broken right thumb since early October, improved to 25-5 against Chicago including the playoffs.

The four-time MVP completed 18 of 31 passes for 182 yards and a touchdown.

"He always gives you confidence that we can go out there and execute whatever the play is," coach Matt LaFleur said.

"I thought our o-line was doing a great job and then his ability to extend plays, just have that poise to kind of hang in there and allow those guys to go off schedule and work, gives me a lot of confidence."

Watson had 48 yards receiving and a touchdown reception — the rookie's seventh in the past four games — to go with that huge run. Dillon ran for 93 yards, and the Packers moved ahead of Chicago for the NFL lead in regular-season wins with 787.

"It is crazy and it is awesome to be a part of. Most wins in football at this level, it is really an honor to be part of the Packers and be part of that winning tradition," Dillon said.

The Bears led 19-10 with 1:50 left in the third after Santos kicked a 28-yard field goal. The Packers pulled within two in the opening minute of the fourth on a 21-yard run by Dillon to cap a four-play, 82-yard drive aided by a pass-interference penalty against Jaylon Jones.

Then the Packers blocked Santos' kick to stay within two.

Crosby nailed a 32-yarder to give the Packers a 20-19 lead with 4:49 remaining after Rodgers failed to squeeze a 14-yard pass to Robert Tonyan in the end zone.

Rodgers said his thumb is "close to being a non-issue," and his ribs probably will be, too, for Green Bay's next game in two weeks.

Running back Aaron Jones (shin) was hurt in the first half but returned.

Jones up for Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year Award

Winner to be announced at NFL Honors

The Green Bay Packers announced that running back Aaron Jones has been named the team's nominee for the NFL's Walter Payton Man of the Year Award.

Considered one of the league's most prestigious honors, the award recognizes an NFL player for outstanding community service activities off the field, as well as excellence on the field. Each of the league's 32 nominees were announced Dec. 6.

"We are honored to nominate Aaron for this prestigious award," said Packers President/CEO Mark Murphy. "We are incredibly proud of him for the great work he does both on and off the field. His A&A All the Way Foundation has had such an influence on the kids and families it serves.

"He has also been a devoted contributor to our Packers Give Back efforts, including serving as our Salute to Service spokesperson this year. We are so fortunate to have him in Green Bay. He is an amazing young man and a tremendous role model for all of our players."

Jones has been a constant presence in the community dating back to his time in high school and college, and especially since coming to Green Bay in 2017. In his six years with the Packers, Jones has jumped at every opportunity to take part in community events.

Having grown up with two parents in the U.S. Army and with other loved ones who have served, causes affiliated with the military are particularly important to Jones. During his time in Green Bay, he's been a big part of the Packers' Salute to Service efforts, from sending videos to veterans to speaking to youth at military academies and taking part in events like the team's Huddle for Heroes aimed at honoring veterans.

He's visited service members in the hospital and visited military bases, including Fort Bliss in his native El Paso. He also devoted his time this year to serving as the team's Salute to Service spokesperson to help honor those who serve their country.

Jones also has been involved with numerous programs and charities that benefit kids. He has attended a variety of events at the Boys & Girls Club, both in Green Bay and in Milwaukee, and he hosts football camps during the offseason in El Paso and Wisconsin.

Jones also has a special connection with kids battling illnesses, including cancer. He frequently visits children in the hospital or those who are facing health issues, whether in person or over video chat, and has highlighted them and their courage through the My Cause My Cleats campaign.

He has taken his community involvement to the next level in recent years by building upon the work of his foundation, the A&A All the Way Foundation, with his twin brother, Alvin. The A&A All the Way Foundation is dedicated to making an impact in the lives of children through charitable giving and action and executes events that inspire, educate and promote unity and diversity across multiple communities.

The foundation helps address children's basic needs, providing opportunities for recreation and fitness, and supporting children in military families. Through the foundation, Jones has done turkey giveaways for needy families in both El Paso and Green Bay, run football camps for kids and given bikes away to students.

His Yards for Shoes campaign donates a pair of shoes to children at Boys & Girls Clubs throughout Wisconsin for every rushing yard he gains up to 1,000 yards. The foundation also includes the Freedom Is Campaign, which focuses on honoring military families each month by raising funds to provide joy-filled experiences to children who have parents serving in the military, such as a trip to the zoo or a family movie night.

As a nominee, Jones will wear a Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year helmet decal through the end of the season in recognition of his accomplishments on and off the field.

All 32 team winners will be highlighted as nominees and recognized for their important work during the weekend leading up to Super Bowl LVII. The 2022 Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year will be announced during NFL Honors, a primetime awards special to air the Thursday before Super Bowl LVII, on NBC.

All 32 nominees will receive up to a $40,000 donation in their name to their charity of choice. The winner of the Walter Payton NFL Man of the Year award will receive a $250,000 donation to the charity of his choice.

For the eighth year, each Walter Payton Man of the Year nominee will also take part in the Charity Challenge, a social media campaign designed to support and promote team nominees.

Fans can vote on Twitter by using #WPMOYChallenge followed by their favorite nominee's last name or Twitter handle. The player whose unique mention is used the most between Dec. 6 and Jan. 8 will receive a $25,000 contribution to his charity of choice, while the second- and third-place finishers will receive $10,000 and $5,000 donations.

How to create the perfect charcuterie board for your holiday party (StatePoint) Are you hosting a holiday party and looking for a simple way to impress your guests?

The Texas Roadhouse Butcher Shop is sharing steps for building an eye-catching and mouth-watering charcuterie board that will add color, flavor and variety to your holiday table.

1. Grab a platter or surface to display your charcuterie. Anything will work, even a simple cutting board. Just be sure to choose a size that you can fill completely.

2. Use dishes or ramekins of mismatched sizes, shapes and colors to hold dressings, toppings and sauces. This will keep your board clean and add fun visual details to the display.

3. Include two to four cheeses of contrasting flavors and textures to please all palates, and to complement other elements of the board. The varieties you select should represent these basic categories: hard cheese, (such as Chardonnay Bellavitano) soft cheese, (such as brie) and blue cheese (such as French Roquefort).

4. While a traditional charcuterie board typically sticks with cured meats, the holiday season is the perfect occasion for adding depth and richness to your feast with grilled meats, such as filet, sliced into strips. Whether you are firing up the grill or preparing on a cooktop, allow any cooked meats to rest well before adding them to your board.

5. No charcuterie board is complete without some crunch. Add two to three options like pita crackers, crusty breads or toasted baguettes that will stand up to the weight of your meats and cheeses.

6. Now, add some brightness and sweetness to your board. Fresh fruits like blueberries, strawberries and green grapes, and preserves such as peach pepper jam, will add contrast to rich, salty meats and cheeses. Don't forget seasonal sweets and treats like soft peppermints, peanut brittle, chocolate dipped pretzels and candied nuts.

7. You'll want your charcuterie board to look as if it's overflowing. So, as you're building it out, start with the largest elements like the cheeses and meats first, followed by smaller items like crackers, fresh produce and sweets. Fill in any holes with sprigs of aromatic rosemary for trimming, along with additional portions of the smaller items. The various elements of the board should pair well together, so it's OK if they touch.

WE'RE NOT “THE MEDIA.”

There's a lot of talk about “the media,” the talking heads on cable TV who pander to political views for profit.

That's not the news, and it's certainly not this newspaper. Our goal every day is to fully and fairly report the news about this vibrant community and the people who live here.

That's at the heart of American newspapering—preparing timely and insightful reports about what matters most, prepared by hometown journalists who love this town and care about its future.

That's our pledge and our purpose.

Screen-free holiday gift ideas for families

(StatePoint) Holiday shopping for families with children? Check out these five totally screen-free gift ideas that are sure brighten the season by getting families to spend some much-needed quality time together.

1. Upgraded outdoor games: Give outdoor play an upgrade with KidiGo NexTag from VTech, designed for ages 5 and up. Way more than just tag, it's a high-tech spin on 20 different backyard games including capture the flag, freeze tag and hide-and-seek. To play, all you need are the four included electronic units and adjustable arm bands. A friendly voice explains the quick and easy-to-learn rules and no referee is required — the game lets you know who got tagged, who's safe and who's it. With single- and multi-player options, the whole family can get in on the fun, especially when you combine two systems. Play indoors or out with a 135-foot range between units. All you have to do is press the big button and tag, you're it!

2. Kitchen assistance: Introduce adults and kids alike to the fundamentals of baking with a family-friendly baking kit subscription. Each month, a new kit is mailed to your recipients' home with recipes, activity booklets and all the ingredients needed to create something delicious.

3. Swim time: The weather may be frightful, but that's no reason why families can't enjoy a delightful day at the pool. Consider gifting your favorite family with a day pass to an indoor aquatic center or water park. For families with young children, look for a facility that offers splash pads and swim lessons. For those with older kids who are already proficient swimmers, check for amenities like water slides and wave pools. Want to take it a step further? Sign your recipients up for an indoor pool membership until summer returns.

4. Inspiration: Give families all the ideas and inspiration they need to beat boredom, create new traditions and make memories with "The Adventure Challenge: Family Edition." This journal offers 50 adventures in different categories, along with space to share thoughts and photos about each experience.

5. Board — not bored: Encourage some good old-fashioned family fun with board games. From chess and checkers to modern classics to the latest trendy games, this is a gift option that's sure to engage family members of all ages.
